Strong U. S. Means Free U. S., Ike Says

Declares Any Korean Peace Must Be Fair

President Receives Howling Ovation At Republican Dinner

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower said tonight the United States "must stay strong to stay free" and must never pursue a foreign policy which amounts merely to reaction to the policy of other nations.

Addressing a $100-a-plate Republican dinner, Eisenhower also said that in 1949 eminent scientists did not dream that the secrets of this country's atomic weapons would be lost to others.

They did not know, the President added, that the nation had been "robbed" of security in that field.

He apparently was alluding to espionage in the U. S. and Great Britain which gave America's atomic secrets to Russia.

Eisenhower addressed a capacity audience of 1,300 persons in the ballroom of the Astor Hotel on Times Square. He went from there to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for a talk at another $100-a-plate dinner.

Eisenhower was introduced by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and got a howling ovation before he began his first major political speech since taking office Jan. 20.

In talking of world peace, the President declared no peace can be sound if it is "partial and pyrrhic"—an empty peace.

Referring to the Korean War, he said any peace there must be fair to both the people of Korea and "to those seeking political asylum."

That seemed to be a reference to the Communist prisoners of war who have said they do not want to be repatriated.

Eisenhower arrived by train earlier in the evening. It was his first return to New York since he went to the White House. Weather prevented his flying here.

The President in his speech, delivered from notes, declared the U. S. "must stay strong to stay free."

He added that does not mean "complete and total dependence on military strength," but he said "of course, we must have military strength."

Then he said this country's foreign policy must never amount to a "reflex action" to the foreign policy activity of other nations.

That obviously was an allusion to the program of Soviet Russia.

At the outset of his talk, the President got a laugh in saying that he had shown his respect for $100-a-plate political dinners "by having mine on the train."

He added:

"I should assure you that I am now just a bureaucrat."

U. S. Will Press France To Take Laos Case To UN

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Informed sources said today the United States will press France to place the Red invasion of Laos before the United Nations for some positive action.

The French government has told the State Department it is firmly opposed to such a move on the ground, it is understood, that it would give the Communist Vietminh leader, Ho Chi Minh, the status of an international belligerent and dignify his case before the world.

But responsible officials here said privately they were certain the United States would ask the French to reconsider their position.

If France doesn't appeal to the U. N., they pointed out, there is a strong possibility that Thailand (Siam) will. Thailand could claim that the Vietminh drive into the heart of Laos is a threat to its own sovereignty.

The American position, while it has not been stated officially, apparently is that the U. N. should grapple with the problem and that France, which is battling the Reds in Indochina, is the nation to raise the issue.

Two major developments are being taken into consideration in the negotiations.

First is that the Red Vietminh units, after overrunning more than a third of the Indochinese kingdom of Laos, are reported to be withdrawing.

The second is that the Communists in Korea have offered a new, eight-point plan on prisoner exchanges, which high officials here are studying to determine whether it contains concessions which might bring a truce nearer.

Four Navy Airmen Die In Plane Crash

POMFERT, Conn., May 7 (INS) — Four Navy airmen were killed today when a single-engine AF2W training plane spiraled out of a foggy mist and into a wooded farm area near Porfert in the northeast corner of Connecticut.

State police said they were informed by the Navy that the plane was from the Quonset Point, R. I., Naval Base.

Robert Rossen, Who Won 'Oscar,' Comes Clean With Probers

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Robert Rossen, a top-flight Academy Award winning Hollywood producer, came clean with House probers today and admitted he once was a Communist. He previously had refused to say.

The 45-year-old producer and director told the House Un-American Activities Committee he kicked in $40,000 to Communist causes as a party member from 1937 to 1947. He said others in Hollywood probably gave as much.

He named dozens of Hollywood figures who he said were Communists. However, none of the bigger names was new.

Disillusioned, Rossen Says

Rossen testified youthful idealism led him into the party but that disillusionment finally made him break with it. He said he found Communists more interested in promoting communism than in achieving ideals.

Rossen went to Hollywood in 1936 as a writer. He had been a playwright and stage director on Broadway. He won the Academy Award in 1949 for producing and directing "All The King's Men."

The committee took a longer-than-usual luncheon recess as Chairman Velde (R-Ill) addressed the American Jewish League Against Communism.

No Church Probe Planned

The Illinois Republican said he believes hardened Communists have been planted in the clergy and he added:

"I regret that I believe there are some who have embraced this treachery after having donned the holy robes . . . .

"Any clergyman, regardless if he be Catholic, Protestant or Jewish or any other denomination or faith, should be made to realize that association with Communists or being a member of the Communist party is equal to believing in atheism and that the state is more powerful than God."

Velde has said he has no intention of probing churches, themselves, but rather any subversives within their clerical ranks.

Navy Denies Allied Ship Sunk By Reds

SEOUL, May 8 (Friday) (INS)—The 16-inch guns of the battleship New Jersey poured another shattering stream of shells on Red-held Wonsan Thursday while the Navy denied Communists claims that they sank an Allied warship off Songjin.

Fired upon by enemy shore batteries but unhit at Songjin was the British destroyer Cockade, the Navy said.

The devastating blast at Wonsan was the second in three days.

Gen. Vandenberg Will Be Retired At End Of June

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower today made his first appointment of a military service chief since entering the White House. He named Gen. Nathan Twining to be Air Force chief of staff succeeding Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, who asked to be retired at the end of next month.

Vandenberg's request came as no surprise, as he was reappointed last April to a specific 14-month term by former President Truman. That was to give him time to complete enough service for retirement with maximum of benefits. He is 54.

The job will not be entirely new to Twining. As vice chief, he sat in for Vandenberg for several months last year while Vandenberg was recovering from a serious illness.

Twining's appointment will enable the Air Force to continue its operations and planning without any serious shakeup. The new vice chief will be Lt. Gen. Thomas D. White, now the deputy chief who has worked closely with Twining and Vandenberg.

Sen. Taft, the Republican Leader, has said it would be a good idea to have some new faces in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, which is the nation's top military command. Taft said he favored giving the new ones some time to resurvey the whole field of defense planning, including costs.

The present chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, will complete his second two-year term on Aug. 16. The Army chief, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, will complete his four years on the same date, but the remaining member, Adm. William M. Fechteler, has more than two years left of his term.

In accepting Vandenberg's retirement request "with reluctance," Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott said "you have made a great contribution to our nation's security."

NEW AIR CHIEF — President Eisenhower yesterday named Gen. Nathan P. Twining (above) to succeed Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg as Air Force chief of staff. Vandenberg will retire, effective June 30.

Truman Urges Action To Stop Reds' Asia Drive

(World Copyright, 1953 By INS)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 7 (INS)—Former President Truman said today he hopes with his whole being peace will soon come to Korea, but warned that Soviet "peace" gestures appear to cloak a more perilous new Communist offensive aimed at conquering all Southeastern Asia.

Mr. Truman, 69 years old tomorrow, declared in an exclusive interview that decisive action such as he ordered in Korea when he was president, is needed to halt the Communists from seizing Thailand, heart of Asia's "Rice Bowl"; the main world supply of tin and rubber Malaya, and India's hundreds of millions of people.

Hits Defense Budget Cut

He warned the Republican administration's proposal to slash 8.5 billions in defense and foreign aid from the 1954 budget imperils U.S. and free world security at a critical moment.

Mr. Truman declared: "If it is carried out we may be in for real trouble."

The former President, who after his retirement expressed doubt in an exclusive interview with INS that Soviet Russia has unlocked the secret of the atomic bomb, stated flatly again today:

"I still do not believe Russia has the atomic bomb."

A-Arms "Security Edge"

Mr. Truman asserted U.S. atomic weapons have been, and still are, "our security edge" against Russia starting a third world war.

But he warned that peril lies in any failure to complete speedily the defenses of Western Europe, or to let the new Communist drive in Southern Asia go unheeded.

The former President, just returned from a six-week rest in Hawaii, sternly admonished the free world against taking current Soviet peace gestures on their face value.

He said they appear to be motivated by a struggle for power inside the Kremlin and the hope of recouping their reversal in Korea.

Collier's Bi-Weekly

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—The publishers of Collier's magazine which has been a weekly since 1888 announced today that the magazine will come out every other week starting with the August 7 issue.

Clarence E. Stouch, president of Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. said, "Collier's lost money last year."

Christine Would Welcome Inquiry

LOS ANGELES, May 7 (AP) — Christine Jorgensen, here for a debut as an entertainer, today said she would welcome an inquiry by the American Medical Association into her change of sex.

The former G. I., who was called George before a series of operations in Denmark, added: "I am not afraid of it. But I am not offering myself for a public circus. There are certain boundaries of human rights that should not be transgressed."

Miss Jorgensen, who has assumed female identity after 25 years as a boy, appeared at a press conference in a beige sport dress and bolero with long gloves and pearl necklace and earrings.

A-Scientist Who Worked On Bomb Admits Red Ties

BOSTON, May 7 (AP)—A slight physicist who walks with aid of a cane today told a Senate subcommittee hearing he had been a Communist and that he helped develop and test the atom bomb in World War II.

Dr. Philip Morrison, presently doing research work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology while on sabbatical leave from Cornell University, said his superiors in the atom project knew of his affiliations and had cleared him as a security risk.

Answers All Questions

Morrison answered all questions fully and unhesitatingly. He was not asked specifically if he is now a Communist.

Questioned about this Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind) and Committee Counsel Robert Morris both said "the record speaks for itself."

Morrison told newsmen "I haven't been a Communist since I was a young man."

Resents Implication

Morrison, accompanied by Atty. Arthur Sutherland, showed resentment only once—when asked by Morris if he had discussed atomic secrets with a Marcel Scherer.

Morrison answered negatively, flushed and snapped "I resent the implication, sir."

Scherer was pictured for the record as a Communist agent trained in Moscow to deal with leading scientists.

Dulles Warns Reds' Leaders

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said tonight the United Nations Command is "not prepared indefinitely to continue" truce talks with the Communists in Korea.

"We earnestly desire and seek an honorable peace in Korea," Dulles said, "but we shall not allow our enemies to use peace talk as a stratagem for gaining military advantages in their way of aggression."

The secretary, in a speech prepared for a Republican dinner, said also that Thailand by its help to the U. N. in Korea "has won the right to help from others" now that it is threatened by Communist forces invading Laos.

Dulles assailed as "shocking" the Soviet refusal to agree to a postwar settlement restoring Austria to independence and he said the American people should be "vigilant lest we fall into a trap" of Communist peace propaganda.

The secretary based his remarks on present difficulties with the Communists on the global peace program which President Eisenhower laid down on April 16.

UNC Looking To Washington For Guidance

Ike And Top Defense, State Dept. Officials Meet At White House

MUNSAN, Korea, May 8 (AP)—Allied truce negotiators and policy makers in Washington today cautiously examined for booby traps a surprise Communist compromise plan for an armistice in Korea.

The plan—thrown out Thursday at an hour when the revived truce talks were apparently stalling—bowed to Allied insistence that 48,500 North Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to return to Red rule be kept in Korea.

It also proposed a five-power commission of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia and India to act as caretaker for the prisoners. This is similar to the India plan which the Reds once coldly rejected.

Ike, Top Officials Confer

President Eisenhower called a high-level conference in Washington late today, possibly to discuss the new Red proposals. The White House did not announce the purpose of the conference and when it was over nobody would talk. Among those attending were Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense Wilson, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

What made the United Nations Command cautious was a possibility that somewhere in the formula is a camouflaged way for the Reds to get back all those 48,500 whether they want to return or not.

The U. N. Command delegates took a one-day recess to study the plan and to get guidance from Washington. The negotiators return to the truce hut at Panmunjom at 11 a.m. Saturday (9 p.m. Friday, EST).

Two Provisions Questioned

Any gimmick might be in two provisions of the Communist plan which are restatements of their original demands.

The first provision insists that the Communists be allowed to send their agents to the balking prisoners to try to talk them into returning. The second insists that the fate of those who still balk thereafter shall be settled at a political conference after the armistice.

The Communists in making the offer insisted that the U. N. Command accept the whole plan or it would be withdrawn. Undoubtedly, these two provisions proved the most disturbing to the Allies.

It was possible that the Communists would find ways of getting back all those captives or doom them to prolonged and indefinite captivity while a political conference argues over them. The Allies are firmly opposed to both alternatives.

"Strict Guard" Needed

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U. N. negotiator, made this clear in bringing up the matter of caution with newsmen after the truce meeting Thursday.

"No involuntary repatriation is the principle on which we have

Testimony Bares McCarthy Clash With Newsman

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Bulky volumes of printed words disclosed today how Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) accused James Wechsler of a "phony break" with communism and how the New York Post editor fired back protests of intimidation and "brain washing."

Charges of smearing and lying were batted back and forth in hours of battling between the senator who crusades against what he calls Communist subversion and the newspaperman who says he now is just as anti-Communist as he is anti-McCarthy.

McCarthy and Wechsler confronted each other in closed hearings of the Senate investigations subcommittee April 24 and May 5. McCarthy released a stenographic transcript of the sessions today, minus a list of persons Wechsler named as Communists or members of the Young Communist League at the time the editor belonged to the YCL years ago.

Offered Proof Of Change

Wechsler swore his break with communism in 1937 at the age of 22 was sincere, complete and proven. He cited writings and actions, and supplied numerous documents for the record, as proof of his change.

"I may say," McCarthy told him, "that your purported reformation does not convince me at all."

McCarthy insisted Wechsler was called before the subcommittee because he wrote a book or books which the State Department put into its public libraries overseas. Wechsler insisted McCarthy really was out to intimidate newspapermen who have criticized the senator. He said he intends to place the entire record of the hearing in the hands of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Hopes For ASNE Probe

At a news conference today he said he would ask the ASNE to form a committee "at once to study what I have called the clear and present danger to the press."

At the hearing McCarthy said he hoped the ASNE would "investigate your abuse of freedom of the press and your low ethical standards as a newspaperman."

"The New York Post," Wechsler declared, "is as bitterly opposed to Joe Stalin as it is to Joe McCarthy."

"Your paper, in my opinion", McCarthy replied, "is next to and almost paralleling the Daily Worker."

British Release Ex-Nazi General

ALLMENDINGEN, Germany, May 7 (AP)—Ex-Field Marshal Fritz Erich von Manstein, who fought on both Eastern and Western fronts in World War II, was freed from a British war crimes sentence today—four years early on a 12-year term.

This whole village turned out to cheer him.

The hawk-nosed Prussian, 66, answered the cheers with a speech expressing hope for international friendship and freedom for others, "especially the war prisoners in the East."

"We should not think today about the past," Von Manstein said. "We should rather look toward the future with optimism that it will bring a reconciliation of all the peoples and a unification of Europe."

Von Manstein, rated a brilliant general, was convicted in 1949 by a British military court of responsibility for atrocities committed by troops under his command in Russia.

His original sentence of 18 years was later cut to 12. He was released from the British war crimes prison at Werl, Germany, last August to undergo an eye operation. The last few months he has been living on medical parole with his 52-year-old wife in a castle in this small South German village.

Father Arrested In Death Of Little Girl Aquatic Star

MIAMI, Fla., May 7 (AP)—Russell Tongay today was ordered "held for investigation of murder" in the death of his five-year-old daughter, Kathy, tiny swimming star.

Det. Charles A. Sapp of the Miami Homicide Bureau ordered the 36-year-old ex-coast guardsman and swimming instructor held after an autopsy report showed Kathy died from a ruptured intestine caused by a blow.

Lt. Chester Eldredge, chief of the homicide bureau, said earlier that Kathy "apparently suffered an extremely brutal beating about 24 hours before she died."

Sapp said Tongay did not make any admissions during the one hour and 20 minutes he was questioned by detectives working in relays.

Tongay was taken from police headquarters to the 16th floor jail across the street where Sapp said he would be held overnight and formal charges filed Friday.

Kathy, who learned to swim before she could walk and recently played a bit part in a movie, suffered convulsions Wednesday and died en route to a hospital.

Eldredge said an autopsy showed Kathy, who would have been six years old on May 22, died of a ruptured intestine caused by a blow suffered 24 hours before the time of death.

"The girl had apparently suffered an extremely brutal beating," he said. "She was bruised all over and had a ruptured intestine."

The actual cause of the child's death, Eldredge added, was infection caused by the discharge from the ruptured intestine. The child died about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Tongay, who started the swimming careers of Kathy and her older brother, Bubba, at the age of ten months, frequently had been criticized for starting the children so young and for his handling of their careers. He said his children loved swimming and it was simply part of their nature.

Mechanical Heart And Lung Used First Time On Human

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (INS)—The medical world opened a new highway of hope for heart patients today through a "detour."

The "detour" is the first perfected mechanical heart and lung machine which performs the work of those two vital organs and enables doctors to work surgical miracles hitherto impossible.

The apparatus, invented by Dr. John H. Gibbon, Jr., of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital of Philadelphia, has been used many times successfully on animals during its development over the past five years.

But the medical milestone came Wednesday when it was used successfully for the first time on a human being — 18-year-old Cecelia Bavolek, a freshman at Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

For 26 minutes out of a total of nearly five hours in the operating room, the surgeon said, Miss Bavolek's life depended upon a mass of electronic gadgets, tubes and wires.

There was a large congenital opening between the auricles or upper chambers of her heart—in the wall that separates the two sides. This had caused one side of her heart to overwork and become strained. The only way to relieve the condition was to close the opening. Without the machine, surgeons would have had to work by touch because the heart would be flooded with blood.

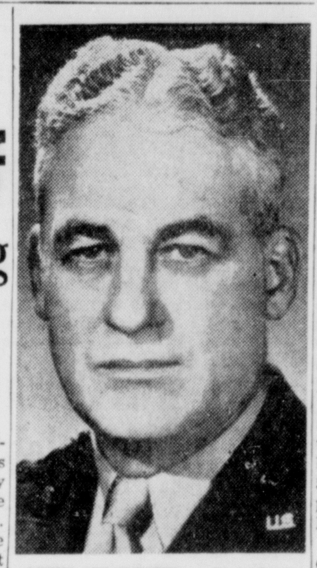
Twining's appointment will enable the Air Force to continue its operations and planning without any serious shakeup. The new vice chief will be Lt. Gen. Thomas D. White, now the deputy chief who has worked closely with Twining and Vandenberg.

Sen. Taft, the Republican Leader, has said it would be a good idea to have some new faces in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, which is the nation's top military command. Taft said he favored giving the new ones some time to resurvey the whole field of defense planning, including costs.

The present chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, will complete his second two-year term on Aug. 16. The Army chief, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, will complete his four years on the same date, but the remaining member, Adm. William M. Fechteler, has more than two years left of his term.

In accepting Vandenberg's retirement request "with reluctance," Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott said "you have made a great contribution to our nation's security."



NEW AIR CHIEF — President Eisenhower yesterday named Gen. Nathan P. Twining (above) to succeed Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg as Air Force chief of staff. Vandenberg will retire, effective June 30.

Testimony Bares McCarthy Clash With Newsman

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Bulky volumes of printed words disclosed today how Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) accused James Wechsler of a "phony break" with communism and how the New York Post editor fired back protests of intimidation and "brain washing."

Charges of smearing and lying were batted back and forth in hours of battling between the senator who crusades against what he calls Communist subversion and the newspaperman who says he now is just as anti-Communist as he is anti-McCarthy.

McCarthy and Wechsler confronted each other in closed hearings of the Senate investigations subcommittee April 24 and May 5. McCarthy released a stenographic transcript of the sessions today, minus a list of persons Wechsler named as Communists or members of the Young Communist League at the time the editor belonged to the YCL years ago.

Offered Proof Of Change

Wechsler swore his break with communism in 1937 at the age of 22 was sincere, complete and proven. He cited writings and actions, and supplied numerous documents for the record, as proof of his change.

"I may say," McCarthy told him, "that your purported reformation does not convince me at all."

McCarthy insisted Wechsler was called before the subcommittee because he wrote a book or books which the State Department put into its public libraries overseas. Wechsler insisted McCarthy really was out to intimidate newspapermen who have criticized the senator. He said he intends to place the entire record of the hearing in the hands of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Hopes For ASNE Probe

At a news conference today he said he would ask the ASNE to form a committee "at once to study what I have called the clear and present danger to the press."

At the hearing McCarthy said he hoped the ASNE would "investigate your abuse of freedom of the press and your low ethical standards as a newspaperman."

"The New York Post," Wechsler declared, "is as bitterly opposed to Joe Stalin as it is to Joe McCarthy."

Ike And Top Defense, State Dept. Officials Meet At White House

MUNSAN, Korea, May 8 (AP)—Allied truce negotiators and policy makers in Washington today cautiously examined for booby traps a surprise Communist compromise plan for an armistice in Korea.

The plan—thrown out Thursday at an hour when the revived truce talks were apparently stalling—bowed to Allied insistence that 48,500 North Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to return to Red rule be kept in Korea.

It also proposed a five-power commission of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia and India to act as caretaker for the prisoners. This is similar to the India plan which the Reds once coldly rejected.

Ike, Top Officials Confer

President Eisenhower called a high-level conference in Washington late today, possibly to discuss the new Red proposals. The White House did not announce the purpose of the conference and when it was over nobody would talk. Among those attending were Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense Wilson, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

What made the United Nations Command cautious was a possibility that somewhere in the formula is a camouflaged way for the Reds to get back all those 48,500 whether they want to return or not.

The U. N. Command delegates took a one-day recess to study the plan and to get guidance from Washington. The negotiators return to the truce hut at Panmunjom at 11 a.m. Saturday (9 p.m. Friday, EST).

Two Provisions Questioned

Any gimmick might be in two provisions of the Communist plan which are restatements of their original demands.

The first provision insists that the Communists be allowed to send their agents to the balking prisoners to try to talk them into returning. The second insists that the fate of those who still balk thereafter shall be settled at a political conference after the armistice.

The Communists in making the offer insisted that the U. N. Command accept the whole plan or it would be withdrawn. Undoubtedly, these two provisions proved the most disturbing to the Allies.

It was possible that the Communists would find ways of getting back all those captives or doom them to prolonged and indefinite captivity while a political conference argues over them. The Allies are firmly opposed to both alternatives.

"Strict Guard" Needed

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U. N. negotiator, made this clear in bringing up the matter of caution with newsmen after the truce meeting Thursday.

"No involuntary repatriation is the principle on which we have

(World Copyright, 1953 By INS)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 7 (INS)—Former President Truman said today he hopes with his whole being peace will soon come to Korea, but warned that Soviet "peace" gestures appear to cloak a more perilous new Communist offensive aimed at conquering all Southeastern Asia.

Mr. Truman, 69 years old tomorrow, declared in an exclusive interview that decisive action such as he ordered in Korea when he was president, is needed to halt the Communists from seizing Thailand, heart of Asia's "Rice Bowl"; the main world supply of tin and rubber Malaya, and India's hundreds of millions of people.

Hits Defense Budget Cut

He warned the Republican administration's proposal to slash 8.5 billions in defense and foreign aid from the 1954 budget imperils U.S. and free world security at a critical moment.

Mr. Truman declared: "If it is carried out we may be in for real trouble."

The former President, who after his retirement expressed doubt in an exclusive interview with INS that Soviet Russia has unlocked the secret of the atomic bomb, stated flatly again today:

"I still do not believe Russia has the atomic bomb."

A-Arms "Security Edge"

Mr. Truman asserted U.S. atomic weapons have been, and still are, "our security edge" against Russia starting a third world war.

But he warned that peril lies in any failure to complete speedily the defenses of Western Europe, or to let the new Communist drive in Southern Asia go unheeded.

The former President, just returned from a six-week rest in Hawaii, sternly admonished the free world against taking current Soviet peace gestures on their face value.

He said they appear to be motivated by a struggle for power inside the Kremlin and the hope of recouping their reversal in Korea.

Collier's Bi-Weekly

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—The publishers of Collier's magazine which has been a weekly since 1888 announced today that the magazine will come out every other week starting with the August 7 issue.

Clarence E. Stouch, president of Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. said, "Collier's lost money last year."

Christine Would Welcome Inquiry

LOS ANGELES, May 7 (AP) — Christine Jorgensen, here for a debut as an entertainer, today said she would welcome an inquiry by the American Medical Association into her change of sex.

The former G. I., who was called George before a series of operations in Denmark, added: "I am not afraid of it. But I am not offering myself for a public circus. There are certain boundaries of human rights that should not be transgressed."

Miss Jorgensen, who has assumed female identity after 25 years as a boy, appeared at a press conference in a beige sport dress and bolero with long gloves and pearl necklace and earrings.

A-Scientist Who Worked On Bomb Admits Red Ties

BOSTON, May 7 (AP)—A slight physicist who walks with aid of a cane today told a Senate subcommittee hearing he had been a Communist and that he helped develop and test the atom bomb in World War II.

Dr. Philip Morrison, presently doing research work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology while on sabbatical leave from Cornell University, said his superiors in the atom project knew of his affiliations and had cleared him as a security risk.

Answers All Questions

Morrison answered all questions fully and unhesitatingly. He was not asked specifically if he is now a Communist.

Questioned about this Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind) and Committee Counsel Robert Morris both said "the record speaks for itself."

Morrison told newsmen "I haven't been a Communist since I was a young man."

Resents Implication

Morrison, accompanied by Atty. Arthur Sutherland, showed resentment only once—when asked by Morris if he had discussed atomic secrets with a Marcel Scherer.

Morrison answered negatively, flushed and snapped "I resent the implication, sir."

Scherer was pictured for the record as a Communist agent trained in Moscow to deal with leading scientists.

Dulles Warns Reds' Leaders

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said tonight the United Nations Command is "not prepared indefinitely to continue" truce talks with the Communists in Korea.

"We earnestly desire and seek an honorable peace in Korea," Dulles said, "but we shall not allow our enemies to use peace talk as a stratagem for gaining military advantages in their way of aggression."

The secretary, in a speech prepared for a Republican dinner, said also that Thailand by its help to the U. N. in Korea "has won the right to help from others" now that it is threatened by Communist forces invading Laos.

Dulles assailed as "shocking" the Soviet refusal to agree to a postwar settlement restoring Austria to independence and he said the American people should be "vigilant lest we fall into a trap" of Communist peace propaganda.

The secretary based his remarks on present difficulties with the Communists on the global peace program which President Eisenhower laid down on April 16.

Father Arrested In Death Of Little Girl Aquatic Star

MIAMI, Fla., May 7 (AP)—Russell Tongay today was ordered "held for investigation of murder" in the death of his five-year-old daughter, Kathy, tiny swimming star.

Det. Charles A. Sapp of the Miami Homicide Bureau ordered the 36-year-old ex-coast guardsman and swimming instructor held after an autopsy report showed Kathy died from a ruptured intestine caused by a blow.

Lt. Chester Eldredge, chief of the homicide bureau, said earlier that Kathy "apparently suffered an extremely brutal beating about 24 hours before she died."

Sapp said Tongay did not make any admissions during the one hour and 20 minutes he was questioned by detectives working in relays.

Tongay was taken from police headquarters to the 16th floor jail across the street where Sapp said he would be held overnight and formal charges filed Friday.

Kathy, who learned to swim before she could walk and recently played a bit part in a movie, suffered convulsions Wednesday and died en route to a hospital.

Eldredge said an autopsy showed Kathy, who would have been six years old on May 22, died of a ruptured intestine caused by a blow suffered 24 hours before the time of death.

"The girl had apparently suffered an extremely brutal beating," he said. "She was bruised all over and had a ruptured intestine."

The actual cause of the child's death, Eldredge added, was infection caused by the discharge from the ruptured intestine. The child died about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Tongay, who started the swimming careers of Kathy and her older brother, Bubba, at the age of ten months, frequently had been criticized for starting the children so young and for his handling of their careers. He said his children loved swimming and it was simply part of their nature.

Mechanical Heart And Lung Used First Time On Human

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (INS)—The medical world opened a new highway of hope for heart patients today through a "detour."

The "detour" is the first perfected mechanical heart and lung machine which performs the work of those two vital organs and enables doctors to work surgical miracles hitherto impossible.

The apparatus, invented by Dr. John H. Gibbon, Jr., of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital of Philadelphia, has been used many times successfully on animals during its development over the past five years.

But the medical milestone came Wednesday when it was used successfully for the first time on a human being — 18-year-old Cecelia Bavolek, a freshman at Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

For 26 minutes out of a total of nearly five hours in the operating room, the surgeon said, Miss Bavolek's life depended upon a mass of electronic gadgets, tubes and wires.

There was a large congenital opening between the auricles or upper chambers of her heart—in the wall that separates the two sides. This had caused one side of her heart to overwork and become strained. The only way to relieve the condition was to close the opening. Without the machine, surgeons would have had to work by touch because the heart would be flooded with blood.

British Release Ex-Nazi General

ALLMENDINGEN, Germany, May 7 (AP)—Ex-Field Marshal Fritz Erich von Manstein, who fought on both Eastern and Western fronts in World War II, was freed from a British war crimes sentence today—four years early on a 12-year term.

This whole village turned out to cheer him.

The hawk-nosed Prussian, 66, answered the cheers with a speech expressing hope for international friendship and freedom for others, "especially the war prisoners in the East."

"We should not think today about the past," Von Manstein said. "We should rather look toward the future with optimism that it will bring a reconciliation of all the peoples and a unification of Europe."

Von Manstein, rated a brilliant general, was convicted in 1949 by a British military court of responsibility for atrocities committed by troops under his command in Russia.

His original sentence of 18 years was later cut to 12. He was released from the British war crimes prison at Werl, Germany, last August to undergo an eye operation. The last few months he has been living on medical parole with his 52-year-old wife in a castle in this small South German village.

U. S. To Increase Flow Of Weapons To Free Nations

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The flow of American guns, tanks, planes and other military equipment to Allied nations around the world will be stepped up sharply during the coming months, Secretary of Defense Wilson said today.

Wilson gave this report to a closed-door meeting of senators as Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a group of House members, also in closed session, that Russia's "atomic capability is rapidly improving."

"I know of no intelligence," Bradley said, "which reveals any change of attitude on the part of the Soviet Union or which would give us any reason to diminish, or slow down, or stretch out our preparedness effort."

Wilson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the Eisenhower administration hopes to deliver five billion dollars worth of military supplies to Allied nations during the fiscal year starting July 1.

He said this would be an increase of $1,200,000,000 over the $3,800,000,000 in actual deliveries during the current 12-month period.

Wilson said the foreign shipments will represent roughly 10 per cent of total military spending in the new Eisenhower budget.

"This is the best solution to the problem of defense," he added.

Along the same lines, Gen. Bradley said of the other free nations:

"To a large extent our security is dependent upon their security."

Gov. McKeldin Accepts Pierson's Resignation

BALTIMORE, Mya 7 (AP)—Governor McKeldin, in a letter tinged with sarcasm, tonight accepted the resignation of Dr. J. W. Pierson from the medical board of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

McKeldin took note of Pierson's statement that he was quitting because the governor had "interjected politics" into the selection of the board's members and added:

"I am led to assume that, in addition to the reason which you gave me, you may be finding the press of other work too burdensome to permit your continuing your board duties."

McKeldin said records indicated Pierson was absent from 46 of the 101 medical board meetings held since June 1, 1951, and the chairman sat "alone on many occasions."

stood from the first in these negotiations," he declared.

Harrison added that "a strict guard" was needed to see the Red plan did not allow forced repatriation.

He declared, however, that "this is an important proposal" and "is a proposal that merits careful and considerable thought."

(Peiping radio began a propaganda drumfire for the plan with unusual speed, declaring in broadcasts heard in San Francisco that "an armistrice in Korea is completely within reach" and "American sincerity . . . is again put to the test."

Caution Is Watchword

(Caution also was the watchword in Washington, where State and Defense Department officials launched a searching study of the Red proposal. It was possible officials would consider whether India, as a fifth member of the neutral commission, might be subject to Communist pressure.

(In Bern, Switzerland, it was indicated unofficially that India and Switzerland would accept the invitation to act on the commission and that Sweden would give the matter full consideration.)

(In Seoul, a South Korean government spokesman said his government would oppose Poland and Czechoslovakia because as "satellite countries of Russia" they could not be neutral in supervising prisoners.)

Former School Official Cleared

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md., May 7 (AP)—Harry P. Hughes, former superintendent of Calvert County schools, was cleared today of a charge he embezzled $500 of school funds.

Hughes was acquitted after a trial before Circuit Judges Charles C. Marbury and J. Dudley Digges. They heard the case without a jury.

The former superintendent was indicted in February in connection with a $1,002 loan of school board money to a high school teacher for the purchase of an automobile.

The teacher repaid the loan in full and had receipts for all the money. Until today Hughes had not accounted for $500 of the amount.

He testified today he had put the $500 in an envelope in the Board of Education safe as a special petty account and had disbursed it for school purposes.

Part of the money, Hughes said, was used to pay construction bills, part for school shop equipment and a movie camera. A balance of $9.76, he told the court, was placed in a small petty cash account used for stamps and miscellaneous items.

Hoff Turns Down U. S. Attorney Job

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—State Sen. Stanford Hoff (R-Carroll), regarded as a shoo-in for appointment as United States Attorney, said today he doesn't want the job.

His decision, disclosed in a letter to U. S. Senator Beall (R-Md), threw the field wide open again and further complicated the life of Bernard J. Flynn.

Flynn is current holder of the office, a Democratic appointee who submitted his resignation last January three days after the inauguration of Republican President Eisenhower. He has served since 1934.

Weeks ago Flynn made preparations to return to private practice. He has had an office rented for two months but hasn't been able to move in because his resignation hasn't been accepted and he must continue as U. S. attorney until then.

Hoff, longtime leader in Maryland Republican politics, was endorsed for the post by Beall, Governor McKeldin and Maryland's other Republican U. S. senator, John Marshall Butler.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., May 7 (INS) — Eighteen-year-old Fred McManus, who killed five persons on a cross-country murder spree, was declared sane today and indicted on a charge of first degree murder.

The youth, an AWOL Marine whose murder rampage netted $58 and ended by capture in Dubuque, Iowa, was declared sane following mental tests in Willard State Hospital.

McManus was returned from the state hospital to Ontario County jail under heavy police guard.

Today, this blending of the finest whiskies from these 3 states achieves a smoother, more delightful drink. Fishing Rights Worth $10,000

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Fishing rights taken from a Maryland fisherman would be valued at $10,000 under a bill passed yesterday by the Senate.

The bill, which now goes to the House, would give $11,500 to William R. Jackson, administrator of the estate of W. C. Jackson—$10,000 for the fishing rights and $1,500 for the lowered value of his fishing nets.

The sums were recommended by the U. S. Court of Claims. The court was directed by a Senate resolution to rule on the case.

W. C. Jackson, who died in 1951, held a Maryland license to fish off the Eastern Shore of Spesutie Island in the Chesapeake Bay. In 1943, the Federal government made Jackson's fishing area a part of the restricted area of the Aberdeen Proving Ground.

Jackson stored his fishing nets on Spesutie Island and his property later was burned in a fire of undetermined origin.

The court ruled that the fishing rights held by Jackson were property rights in a sense. The sum of $10,000 was fixed as the amount which Jackson's fishing rights would have sold for in 1943.

The taking of his fishing ground in turn reduced the value of his nets and fishing gear by $1,500, the court said.

Air Mail In Its Infancy

Commercial air mail transport was still an infant when the Atlanta-New York route was opened up on May 1, 1928. The (Kelly) Air Mail Act of 1925 had authorized the carrying of air mail by private companies under contract. The government had retired from the field of air mail operation in the fall of 1927.

The Atlanta-New York plane 25 years ago was a Pitcairn Mailwing biplane, with single engine and open cockpit. The pilot was Eugene R. Brown, graduate of the Army Air Corps flying school. He required nine hours, 30 minutes for that Atlanta-New York flight in 1928. Modern airliners now make it in two hours, 40 minutes.

Great strides had been made since May 15, 1918, when the Post Office Department had opened the first air mail route, run by Army pilots, between New York City and Washington. New York and Chicago were to be linked by air mail in 1919; New York and the Pacific Coast by 1920.

But as The New York Times editorialized in 1928: "With the (recent) announcement of the Department of Commerce that mailed matter may be carried through the air in all 48 states by the end of 1928, the growth of the service in private hands since the Post Office Department retired stands out as the most impressive development of commercial aviation in the world."

In the spring of 1927 there had been 18 lines, covering 9,000 miles; by May of the following year there were 22 mail routes, two operating twice a day (New York-Chicago, Chicago-Kansas City), covering 11,466 miles. Other links were scheduled for the near future.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce had quizzed 100 firms about air mail. All but 16 replied that they "used the . . . service and testified that it greatly accelerated business transactions." The rate: 10 cents a half-ounce, as against the present rate of six cents an ounce.

The flight from Atlanta to New York in 1928 was made at night, take-off being at 7 p. m. The pilot had wrecked a plane in a test flight two nights previously, but had escaped with a minor injury. The route was marked by beacons 10 miles apart.

The national hero, Col. Lindbergh, who had just delivered his "Spirit of St. Louis" to the Smithsonian Institution, was to meet the flight in Washington. The plane carried a greeting from the Atlanta Journal to The New York Times. Enclosed was a clipping of a Journal editorial which read, in part: "New horizons beckon, new opportunities dawn from these airplane wings. We shall make the best of them by supporting the enterprises whence they sprung."

The nation was aviation-crazy back in 1928. But the flight caused more stir in Atlanta than in New York. For one thing, the New York terminus was a New Brunswick, N. J., airport. But more important, the New York papers were still full of the reception the city had given, the day before, to the now almost forgotten international trio, Capt. Koehl, Major Fitzmaurice, and Baron von Heunefeld, who had just flown the Atlantic East-West in the Junker monoplane, "The Bremen."

Licking The "Whiteout"

Those who have seen what is called a "whiteout" by arctic experts describe it as an unnerving experience. "Whiteout" in their lexicon is an almost impenetrable cloud of ice crystals or frozen fog. Either one is as frightening as a blackout, but there are added distractions.

Sound waves get bent all out of shape. In short, lost in a "whiteout" a human being hardly knows whether he's coming or going. Sounds seem to come from every direction.

U. S. Army engineers are aware that men and machines can get irretrievably lost in a whiteout and are doing something about it. A hypersensitive instrument has now been developed which will locate a man, if he is within a 100-foot radius of the operator, by picking up radiations of his body heat.

The 100-foot operating radius doesn't seem like much to the layman, but to those who know the problems posed by this opaque blanket, it appears to be nothing short of sensational. Engineers point out, too, that arctic outposts might be saved from a sneak enemy attack under cover of the frozen fog.

Gradually, it appears, man is running out of places in which to hide. Another military application, the night scope with invisible, infra red rays providing illumination, makes it possible for a man to spot another on the darkest night. Now the new device, which duplicates the heat sensitive gimmick with which nature endowed the rattlesnake, among others, makes it tougher than ever to get around without being found out.

Future Of The Suez

Britain could use her armed might to enforce her will in Egypt. Instead, British and Egyptian representatives are conferring in Cairo in a renewed effort to reach an agreement about the Suez Canal. This course, many observers believe, is wise, practical and expedient on Britain's part.

The Suez Canal runs through Egyptian territory. It was completed in 1869 by the Frenchman deLesseps. Disraeli later bought a block of stock in the company and Egypt in time became a British dependency. The canal was guarded by British troops because it was vital to British interests that it should not fall into the hands of a hostile power.

Now Egypt has achieved a form of independence, but British troops continue to guard Suez. Egypt, obviously, would be too weak to protect the canal from a power hostile to Britain.

The problem is more than academic. Certainly U. S. security would be menaced if Panama were to insist on the withdrawal of American forces from the Panama Canal Zone. Or if Colombia, from which nation the U. S. sliced Panama, were to move in on it.

But both canals are not only vital to the national interests of great powers. They are also international waterways, and every nation whose ships sail the high seas has a stake in protecting them against aggressors.

Before there can be agreement at Cairo, Egypt must recognize that the international character of the Suez Canal is no threat to Egyptian interests. If Egypt approaches the problem from this viewpoint, details should not be hard to work out.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

Certified Milk

What is certified milk? To answer this question properly, we ought to go back to the turn of the century when diarrhea of infancy was a common cause of death and cholera infantum (summer complaint) was a frequent and serious disturbance. Milk was blamed and it was obvious to all concerned that if this essential food were to remain on the market something had to be done to make it safe for human consumption.

The medical society of Essex county, New Jersey, paved the way for the production of a superior milk, certified as to quality. The term, certified milk, was coined by Dr. Henry L. Coit of New York, who needed good milk for his own baby. The medical society of the county of Kings in New York followed suit shortly thereafter. It insisted upon clean milking and milk handling, healthy cows, and healthy employes. Ultimately a medical milk commission was established which in turn appointed supervisors to act as a liaison between the participating farms and the commission which included physicians, veterinarians, sanitarians, and laboratory directors. It was the job of these men to see that the rules were upheld so that milk was safe. The indirect effect upon the dairy industry was the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle and the ring test for the detection of milk from cows with Bang's disease. Meanwhile, the encouragement of cleanliness also helped to mow down typhoid and other intestinal diseases from this source. The streptococcus also was on the rampage and more than one epidemic of tonsilitis was caused by contaminated milk. In Chicago, for example, an outbreak of 10,000 such cases was traced to infected milk.

While this was going on, pasteurization was introduced. This process was more readily accepted by the dairy industry and the health authorities because it lent itself to mass production and eliminated the need for veterinarians and physicians. Pasteurization was cheaper, required less laboratory work, and could be used on milk of inferior sanitary quality. As a result it was accepted in many parts of the country as more practical than certified milk. But the certified milk producers have continued because they believe, according to Dr. Harry Zuckerman of the milk commission of the Medical Society of the County of New York, that "there is more to quality milk than cream line and low bacterial count."

Certified milk comes from animals free from brucellosis, tuberculosis, and mastitis, a streptococcal infection of the udders. In this respect the product is unique and altho it is not as well known as pasteurized milk, it is enjoyed by a faithful and loyal clientele in many cities. The production of this type of milk is more work for the farmer, the dairy man, the veterinarian, and the physician but it is clean, fresh, and good.

The supply is limited because there are only 40 certified milk farms, which stems from the trend toward fewer but larger certified dairies. Much of the certified milk also is pasteurized to make it doubly safe. The term, certified, is limited to milk produced in accordance with the requirements of the American Association of Medical Milk commissions. The first requisite is a trustworthy dairyman who is willing to enter into a contract with a medical milk commission which in turn is appointed by the local county medical society. Certificates are the caps for the bottles which are furnished by the commission.

SMOKING AND NASAL TISSUES

A. B. writes: In your article on mistreatment of the nose you did not mention the effects of smoking. Would you care to comment on this aspect?

REPLY

In my opinion, smoking should be taboo in the presence of disturbances of the upper air passages including the nose. Smoke is irritating and may interfere with healing.

PRESSURE COOKING

Mrs. D. writes: Does cooking in a pressure pan or cooker affect the nutritive value of food?

REPLY

We do not have the final answer on whether quick cooking preserves all the food elements better than does ordinary cooking. Experts believe that the loss of vitamins A and C and other soluble factors is reduced by cooking quickly and in little water but there are varying opinions about vitamin B.

IRRITATED NERVE CENTER

B. V. writes: Is it safe for a person with a carotid sinus disorder to drive?

REPLY

Yes. The vast majority of persons with a sensitive carotoid sinus in the neck will not faint unless the structure is rubbed or pressed upon. The exception occurs when a tight or wing collar is worn and the individual turns the head quickly.

Electric Lobby Spends $477,941.74 For Influence; Interior Department Budget Cut On Government Power Projects Traced To NAEC

WASHINGTON — Top-spending lobby group in the nation's capital today is the National Association of Electric Companies, which doled out $477,941.74 to influence Congress and the government last year.

This topped the doctors lobby by about $170,000, though the American Medical Association, by taxing every M. D. member, now ranks as the second largest lobby with a total expenditure to influence Congress last year of $309,514.93.

Under the lobbying act these groups, plus private influence-wielders, plus attorneys practicing before Congress, are required to register. There is nothing derogatory about such registration. The sound principle behind it is to let the public know who is spending the money to swing votes and pass appropriations.

During the Hoover administration there was no Lobbying Registration Act, and one of the things that helped defeat Hoover was revelation that the electric power lobby—its newer name is the National Association of Electric Companies—was spending money secretly to influence textbooks, newspapers, schools and colleges without the public knowing it.

Today the amount of money spent by the electric power lobby in Washington must be publicly registered so the American people are better able to judge what's happening. However, the manner in which the lobby pulls wires is still kept about as secret as a classified cable in the Pentagon, though this columnist can report some of the lobby's back-stage operations.

Secret Wire-Pulling

The public doesn't realize it, but the utility lobby has been more successful than at any time since Hoover's day and the Association of Electric Companies deserves credit for more than earning its pay.

What the lobby has done is virtually to write the budget of the Interior Department so as to cut off $110,000,000 of funds for transmission lines, public power, and irrigation-reclamation projects.

This was accomplished by working through Congressman Ben F. Jensen of Iowa, chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee and long-time friend of the private utilities. Jensen has co-operated so closely with the power lobbyists in the past that Purcell Smith, who draws $65,000 a year plus expenses as top influence man for NAEC, has actually used the congressman's office. In 1950, when the power lobby was trying to cut government power appropriations, Smith was found secluded in Jensen's office, sending notes to Jensen by messenger while Jensen sat in the House Appropriations Committee deciding how much should be cut from government funds.

More recently the chopping down of the Interior Department budget —with the complete acquiescence of Secretary of the Interior McKay —was so brazen that Congressman H. Carl Anderson of Minnesota, himself a Republican, accused Jensen of "selling out" to the private utilities.

What the power lobby, plus Secretary McKay, plus the House Appropriations Committee succeeded in doing was to reverse a policy enacted into law by another Republican President, Teddy Roosevelt, in 1906, providing that power from government dams shall be sold with preference rights to cities, states, and other public bodies.

Chief immediate effect of this power-lobby victory will be to boost future rates to REA co-ops serving millions of farmers; also permit private utilities to purchase government power dirt cheap without going to the expense of building the dams. Thus the taxpayer will pay for building future dams and generating the electricity, while private utilities will be able to get the profit from selling the electricity.

Hitherto, the government has kept electric rates down in certain areas, such as the Tennessee Valley and the Northwest by selling the power itself.

Big Business Objects

Significantly the first people to kick about Secretary McKay's new power policy are not the farmers —who don't know what's in store for them yet—but some of the biggest companies in the U.S.A. They include: the Aluminum Corporation of America, Reynolds Metals and Kaiser Aluminum Industries.

These and other private concerns have been getting cheap government power from Bonneville Dam in the Northwest and from TVA in the South. Without cheap power they would be unable to make aluminum at a low-enough price to compete with Canadian aluminum, especially now that a tariff reduction is in prospect.

These three companies now have contracts for government power which expire in the 1960's. However, Secretary of the Interior McKay proposes to sign 20-year contracts with the private utilities giving them the first call on all new power, which may leave the three big aluminum companies out on a limb. The effect may be equally

Who Is Max Lowenthal?

Max Lowenthal was one of Harry Truman's closest advisers. In fact, it has been suggested that Lowenthal was responsible for the original suggestion to make Truman vice president. Of this I do not know first hand.

Lowenthal is the author of a violent attack on the FBI in which he abuses that agency and its director, J. Edgar Hoover. It was a curious circumstance that one of the close friends of the President, a man who often visited the White House, wrote a book attacking this agency whose record is unblemished.

Now Lowenthal's name is coming up again and the circumstances are peculiar, for witnesses before congressional committees have taken the position that to know Lowenthal would incriminate them. Why? What has this man done that to know him could be grounds for indictment for a criminal offense?

Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, who has been identified by witnesses as a Communist and as head of the Silvermaster cell, answered a question in this manner:

". . . have you ever imparted any classified documents of this government to any enemy of this country or any other foreign power?

"Mr. Silvermaster. I claim privilege of refusing to answer this question under the Fifth Amendment."

This same Nathan Gregory Silvermaster was questioned about Max Lowenthal as follows:

Plead Their Privilege

"Mr. Silvermaster. I refuse to answer the question under the same privilege.

"Mr. Morris. Did you ever have conversations with Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Silvermaster. I refuse to answer the question under the same privilege."

Now we come to Frederick Palmer Weber, who has worked for several congressional committees, for the CIO-PAC, for the Progressive party, and for the American Management Council of New York City, and who testified concerning his activities in Southern states as follows:

"Mr. Morris. Now were you a member of the Communist party when you were organizing those 11 states for the Progressive party?

"Mr. Weber. I plead my privilege, Mr. Counsel."

So, he was asked about Max Lowenthal. This is the colloquy:

"Mr. Morris. I am going to ask some questions about Max Lowenthal. He has been an adviser to the executive branch of the government. When did you last see Mr. Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. I plead my privilege.

"Mr. Morris. You will not tell us under what circumstances you last saw Mr. Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. I plead my privilege.

"Mr. Morris. Will you plead your privilege about other questions relating to Mr. Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. I shall, Mr. Counsel.

"Senator Welker. Just a moment. Did any of your work on these committees that you heretofore described bring you in contact with Mr. Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. I will plead my privilege . . .

Lowenthal Different

"Senator Welker. You can't tell us whom you did meet in the executive branch of the government by virtue of your work on the hill?

"Mr. Weber. Mr. Senator, I am very reluctant to mention any number of very well known administrators and wartime officials from business and various policy-making people in the executive branch of the government.

"Senator Welker. That is because you don't want to embarrass them regardless of whether or not there is any connection whatsoever.

"Mr. Weber. I don't.

"Senator Welker. Is that the reason you decline to answer the question about Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. declined under my privilege.

"Senator Welker. In other words, you draw two different lines — one time you don't want to involve anyone that might be embarrassed by your testimony, but when we get to Mr. Lowenthal you invoke your privilege under the Fifth Amendment as to not giving testimony that might be used against you.

"Mr. Weber. That is right."

When analyzed, this is a startling reply, because Weber segregates Lowenthal as different from others. He is reluctant to speak of some, but to speak of Lowenthal would incriminate him. Why? What has Lowenthal done that it would incriminate Silvermaster and Weber to have known him?

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Gradually and with unashamed frankness, the British are conceding that they think it is more important for them to continue their trade with Communist countries than to help the United States put economic pressure on the Soviet Union even as the latter supplies to Red China guns and munitions with which to kill American boys in Korea.

But, what is much worse, the evidence now indicates that the Department of State feels helpless to change the Allied point of view. This has just been uncovered in testimony before congressional committees, and it points up as a paramount issue whether the Eisenhower administration intends to use its diplomatic influence effectively and whether Congress will use its appropriations to sure that an embargo on all trade with Communist countries is inaugurated.

Great Britain today sends no strategic materials to Red China but admits sending them to the Soviet Union and hides behind the fiction that Communist Russia is not "legally" an aggressor.

Cites Russian Relationship

The other day a letter appeared in a Washington newspaper signed "Diplomat" which was written presumably by someone connected with one of the British Commonwealth embassies. He said:

"The British have to live with—and, to a certain extent, by—trade with the Soviet Bloc. They sell rubber to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the European satellites, and refuse to sell it to Communist China, as a part of a policy which recognizes their need for grains and timber from the European Soviet bloc, which looks to the 'legal' situation in which Red China is an 'aggressor' under the UN resolution but the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is not; and which strives to achieve a workable and sensible balance.

"Like all compromises, the balance they strike may seem inconsistent, and may, in fact, be inconsistent or stupid or wrong. But it is their official policy in a matter of great delicacy."

Surely this is a matter of "great delicacy" for the parents and relatives of the more than 130,000 American boys who have become casualties in Korea. One wonders when the British government will discover that it is more important to put economic pressure on the Communist countries and bring the "cold war" to an end than it is to seek profits no matter where they can be obtained.

Surely, also out of the five to six billions of ecoonmic aid about to be voted by Congress to foreign countries, some few millions might be "earmarked" to buy the timber Britain needs and to absorb the freight expenses from distant points and thus aid in every way to achieve the "sensible balance" the British want. It would cost $800,000,000 a year to buy up the East-West trade. The American people would gladly pay it to end the "cold war." It might even replace some other $800,000,000 item in the foreign-aid budget.

Surely to "bribe" or "induce" the British producers with American dollars cannot be less harmful if trade is to be maintained than to let them be influenced by Soviet rubles or commodities—and if money is the only consideration, perhaps the American Congress can agree to pay the expenses of a complete embargo. It would be worth while to do so if American lives could be saved in Korea. For rubber is a strategic material, and when rubber is sold by Britain to the Soviet Union, everyone knows it is shipped over the Trans-Siberian Railway to Red China just as certainly as if it had been sent there by boat direct.

Real Reason Disclosed

It was Senator McCarthy who recently uncovered the scandal in foreign shipping which reveals that citizens of various countries, including Britain, are engaged in selling directly to Red China. Then, all of a sudden, the European press began to denounce "McCarthyism" with far more vigor than would normally be expected from a foreign press which has so little interest in whether subversives are being driven out of the American government. Now the "London Times" has revealed the real animus against Senator McCarthy —he is exposing the details of the improper trade with the Communists. The British newspaper says:

"The McCarthy policy, if one can dignify it by such a name, would logically lead to the stopping of all trade with the whole of that part of the world that is under Soviet influence, without regard to the strategic or non-strategic character of the goods carried. It would mean, on the trade front, a general state of war . . .

"The idea seems to be gaining fresh hold in the United States that trade with a Communist country is in itself wrong."

To most Americans — and now President Eisenhower has agreed— the fighting in Korea is not a "police action" but a "war." And when there is a war going on, Americans have been taught to believe it is wrong to trade with the enemy. During World War I, before America entered the conflict, Great Britain seized American vessels carrying cargoes to neutral countries because they might ultimately get to enemy countries. In World War II, the United States and Great Britain bought up the production of neutral countries to prevent its going to enemy countries.

The UN has adopted a resolution calling on all members to refrain from aiding the aggressors. This wasn't a hair-splitting resolution which said there could be exceptions if some country wanted to make profits or if some country wanted to send her strategic materials to a country bordering on Russia. The embargo resolution was clear-cut and the question now is how do the British and other nationals justify the use of shipping to permit trade directly or indirectly with the enemy.

On top of all this, Premier Nehru of India has announced that India does not and will not accept the UN embargo on strategic materials. How can the other UN members now allow India to remain a member of that organization? This is another question which deserves a realistic answer.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The U. S. airlines have ordered, or are in the course of ordering, the last piston-engined big planes they'll ever buy, C. R. Smith, president of American, asserts. But we have not fallen behind the jet-minded British by more years than first supposed.

The next big wave of U. S. orders will be for jet-engined planes. But the former Air Transport Command general says they won't be pure jets, such as Britain's Comet. We'll take the intermediary step and order prop-jets, planes which make use of turbine engines geared to propellors. They won't be as fast as the present or improved-type Comets. But they'll be faster than our latest conventional type airliners, smoother in the air, cheaper to run and easier to handle than the pure jets.

Neither the airlines nor the customers can now afford a pure jet, Smith said in a talk at Syracuse University. (The British insist they are making money on their Comet runs.)

He listed the pure jet's disadvantages as he sees them: (1) An estimated $30,000,000 for the prototype model; (2) production model costs of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 each; (3) tremendous fuel consumption; (4) longer runways for takeoffs; (5) no way to stop the roll after landing, except by brakes; (6) difficulty of "holding" at low altitude over a stacked-up airport; (7) inefficiency on short hops—because the pure jet operates best at great altitudes; (8) deafening noise around airports; (9) upkeep expenses; (10) not now suited for very long range operation, due to high fuel consumption and limited pay-load capacity.

The prop-jet, on the other hand, can use airstrips now in being, reverse the props for ground control, "stack up," burn less fuel, stay quieter and fly short or long distances. (The British have these in operation, too.)

Speeds of 450-500 miles per hour are possible with prop-jets, Smith said. That will enable transcontinental times to be cut from eight hours—with the equipment now on order—to six hours. When finally we graduate to pure jets, and their range is increased to permit them to fly non-stop, the flying time across the country will be shaved to five hours.

Smith feels, and most of his opposite numbers in TWA, Pan-Am, United, Eastern, Northwest, etc., agree, that the Wright compound engine that will power the new DC-7 and the newest Constellation represents the end of the line for piston engines. It will permit the new Douglas and Connie to cruise at 350 and cut coast-to-coast flying times to eight hours. It "recaptures" power normally spent through exhaust pipes.

Since most of these last-word-in-pistons won't be delivered before next year, you can expect the airlines to use them for maybe four or five additional years. Then will come the turbo-props (which will have to be used for another four or five years to get back the investment) and at long last the jets.

From this it would appear that in time we will be ten or even 15 years behind the British in the matter of advanced commercial flying, instead of five or six.

Smith traced the long uphill fight of U. S. airlines to win their independence from government subsidy. He acknowledged tacitly that it was necessary at first.

". . . The tri-motored Ford, one of the best known transports of the early days, was not able to earn its operating cost with a full load of paying passengers. A profit without subsidy was then a mathematical impossibility. It was often said then if someone should give you a transport airplane without charge you would not be able to operate it without loss.

"Some of the operating loss was reimbursed through mail pay, but a substantial part of it was borne by the capital of the shareholders. They were the real pioneers.

"The airlines began to 'turn the corner' and see the prospect of self-sustaining service when the twin-engined Douglas DC-3 transport was available for service in 1936. . . . Today, not a single one of the principal air carriers receives any subsidy from the federal government for its domestic operation. Most of them pay federal income taxes in excess of the total of their mail income and in excess of the total of their net earnings."

Smith wants to keep it that way. Hence his and the U. S. aviation industry's pedestrian pursuit of the jet-propelled British.

Air Mail In Its Infancy

Commercial air mail transport was still an infant when the Atlanta-New York route was opened up on May 1, 1928. The (Kelly) Air Mail Act of 1925 had authorized the carrying of air mail by private companies under contract. The government had retired from the field of air mail operation in the fall of 1927.

The Atlanta-New York plane 25 years ago was a Pitcairn Mailwing biplane, with single engine and open cockpit. The pilot was Eugene R. Brown, graduate of the Army Air Corps flying school. He required nine hours, 30 minutes for that Atlanta-New York flight in 1928. Modern airliners now make it in two hours, 40 minutes.

Great strides had been made since May 15, 1918, when the Post Office Department had opened the first air mail route, run by Army pilots, between New York City and Washington. New York and Chicago were to be linked by air mail in 1919; New York and the Pacific Coast by 1920.

But as The New York Times editorialized in 1928: "With the (recent) announcement of the Department of Commerce that mailed matter may be carried through the air in all 48 states by the end of 1928, the growth of the service in private hands since the Post Office Department retired stands out as the most impressive development of commercial aviation in the world."

In the spring of 1927 there had been 18 lines, covering 9,000 miles; by May of the following year there were 22 mail routes, two operating twice a day (New York-Chicago, Chicago-Kansas City), covering 11,466 miles. Other links were scheduled for the near future.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce had quizzed 100 firms about air mail. All but 16 replied that they "used the . . . service and testified that it greatly accelerated business transactions." The rate: 10 cents a half-ounce, as against the present rate of six cents an ounce.

The flight from Atlanta to New York in 1928 was made at night, take-off being at 7 p. m. The pilot had wrecked a plane in a test flight two nights previously, but had escaped with a minor injury. The route was marked by beacons 10 miles apart.

The national hero, Col. Lindbergh, who had just delivered his "Spirit of St. Louis" to the Smithsonian Institution, was to meet the flight in Washington. The plane carried a greeting from the Atlanta Journal to The New York Times. Enclosed was a clipping of a Journal editorial which read, in part: "New horizons beckon, new opportunities dawn from these airplane wings. We shall make the best of them by supporting the enterprises whence they sprung."

The nation was aviation-crazy back in 1928. But the flight caused more stir in Atlanta than in New York. For one thing, the New York terminus was a New Brunswick, N. J., airport. But more important, the New York papers were still full of the reception the city had given, the day before, to the now almost forgotten international trio, Capt. Koehl, Major Fitzmaurice, and Baron von Heunefeld, who had just flown the Atlantic East-West in the Junker monoplane, "The Bremen."

Licking The "Whiteout"

Those who have seen what is called a "whiteout" by arctic experts describe it as an unnerving experience. "Whiteout" in their lexicon is an almost impenetrable cloud of ice crystals or frozen fog. Either one is as frightening as a blackout, but there are added distractions.

Sound waves get bent all out of shape. In short, lost in a "whiteout" a human being hardly knows whether he's coming or going. Sounds seem to come from every direction.

U. S. Army engineers are aware that men and machines can get irretrievably lost in a whiteout and are doing something about it. A hypersensitive instrument has now been developed which will locate a man, if he is within a 100-foot radius of the operator, by picking up radiations of his body heat.

The 100-foot operating radius doesn't seem like much to the layman, but to those who know the problems posed by this opaque blanket, it appears to be nothing short of sensational. Engineers point out, too, that arctic outposts might be saved from a sneak enemy attack under cover of the frozen fog.

Gradually, it appears, man is running out of places in which to hide. Another military application, the night scope with invisible, infra red rays providing illumination, makes it possible for a man to spot another on the darkest night. Now the new device, which duplicates the heat sensitive gimmick with which nature endowed the rattlesnake, among others, makes it tougher than ever to get around without being found out.

Future Of The Suez

Britain could use her armed might to enforce her will in Egypt. Instead, British and Egyptian representatives are conferring in Cairo in a renewed effort to reach an agreement about the Suez Canal. This course, many observers believe, is wise, practical and expedient on Britain's part.

The Suez Canal runs through Egyptian territory. It was completed in 1869 by the Frenchman deLesseps. Disraeli later bought a block of stock in the company and Egypt in time became a British dependency. The canal was guarded by British troops because it was vital to British interests that it should not fall into the hands of a hostile power.

Now Egypt has achieved a form of independence, but British troops continue to guard Suez. Egypt, obviously, would be too weak to protect the canal from a power hostile to Britain.

The problem is more than academic. Certainly U. S. security would be menaced if Panama were to insist on the withdrawal of American forces from the Panama Canal Zone. Or if Colombia, from which nation the U. S. sliced Panama, were to move in on it.

But both canals are not only vital to the national interests of great powers. They are also international waterways, and every nation whose ships sail the high seas has a stake in protecting them against aggressors.

Before there can be agreement at Cairo, Egypt must recognize that the international character of the Suez Canal is no threat to Egyptian interests. If Egypt approaches the problem from this viewpoint, details should not be hard to work out.

How To Keep Well

Certified Milk

What is certified milk? To answer this question properly, we ought to go back to the turn of the century when diarrhea of infancy was a common cause of death and cholera infantum (summer complaint) was a frequent and serious disturbance. Milk was blamed and it was obvious to all concerned that if this essential food were to remain on the market something had to be done to make it safe for human consumption.

The medical society of Essex county, New Jersey, paved the way for the production of a superior milk, certified as to quality. The term, certified milk, was coined by Dr. Henry L. Coit of New York, who needed good milk for his own baby. The medical society of the county of Kings in New York followed suit shortly thereafter. It insisted upon clean milking and milk handling, healthy cows, and healthy employes. Ultimately a medical milk commission was established which in turn appointed supervisors to act as a liaison between the participating farms and the commission which included physicians, veterinarians, sanitarians, and laboratory directors. It was the job of these men to see that the rules were upheld so that milk was safe. The indirect effect upon the dairy industry was the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle and the ring test for the detection of milk from cows with Bang's disease. Meanwhile, the encouragement of cleanliness also helped to mow down typhoid and other intestinal diseases from this source. The streptococcus also was on the rampage and more than one epidemic of tonsilitis was caused by contaminated milk. In Chicago, for example, an outbreak of 10,000 such cases was traced to infected milk.

While this was going on, pasteurization was introduced. This process was more readily accepted by the dairy industry and the health authorities because it lent itself to mass production and eliminated the need for veterinarians and physicians. Pasteurization was cheaper, required less laboratory work, and could be used on milk of inferior sanitary quality. As a result it was accepted in many parts of the country as more practical than certified milk. But the certified milk producers have continued because they believe, according to Dr. Harry Zuckerman of the milk commission of the Medical Society of the County of New York, that "there is more to quality milk than cream line and low bacterial count."

Certified milk comes from animals free from brucellosis, tuberculosis, and mastitis, a streptococcal infection of the udders. In this respect the product is unique and altho it is not as well known as pasteurized milk, it is enjoyed by a faithful and loyal clientele in many cities. The production of this type of milk is more work for the farmer, the dairy man, the veterinarian, and the physician but it is clean, fresh, and good.

The supply is limited because there are only 40 certified milk farms, which stems from the trend toward fewer but larger certified dairies. Much of the certified milk also is pasteurized to make it doubly safe. The term, certified, is limited to milk produced in accordance with the requirements of the American Association of Medical Milk commissions. The first requisite is a trustworthy dairyman who is willing to enter into a contract with a medical milk commission which in turn is appointed by the local county medical society. Certificates are the caps for the bottles which are furnished by the commission.

SMOKING AND NASAL TISSUES

A. B. writes: In your article on mistreatment of the nose you did not mention the effects of smoking. Would you care to comment on this aspect?

REPLY

In my opinion, smoking should be taboo in the presence of disturbances of the upper air passages including the nose. Smoke is irritating and may interfere with healing.

PRESSURE COOKING

Mrs. D. writes: Does cooking in a pressure pan or cooker affect the nutritive value of food?

REPLY

We do not have the final answer on whether quick cooking preserves all the food elements better than does ordinary cooking. Experts believe that the loss of vitamins A and C and other soluble factors is reduced by cooking quickly and in little water but there are varying opinions about vitamin B.

IRRITATED NERVE CENTER

B. V. writes: Is it safe for a person with a carotid sinus disorder to drive?

REPLY

Yes. The vast majority of persons with a sensitive carotoid sinus in the neck will not faint unless the structure is rubbed or pressed upon. The exception occurs when a tight or wing collar is worn and the individual turns the head quickly.

Electric Lobby Spends $477,941.74 For Influence; Interior Department Budget Cut On Government Power Projects Traced To NAEC

WASHINGTON — Top-spending lobby group in the nation's capital today is the National Association of Electric Companies, which doled out $477,941.74 to influence Congress and the government last year.

This topped the doctors lobby by about $170,000, though the American Medical Association, by taxing every M. D. member, now ranks as the second largest lobby with a total expenditure to influence Congress last year of $309,514.93.

Under the lobbying act these groups, plus private influence-wielders, plus attorneys practicing before Congress, are required to register. There is nothing derogatory about such registration. The sound principle behind it is to let the public know who is spending the money to swing votes and pass appropriations.

During the Hoover administration there was no Lobbying Registration Act, and one of the things that helped defeat Hoover was revelation that the electric power lobby—its newer name is the National Association of Electric Companies—was spending money secretly to influence textbooks, newspapers, schools and colleges without the public knowing it.

Today the amount of money spent by the electric power lobby in Washington must be publicly registered so the American people are better able to judge what's happening. However, the manner in which the lobby pulls wires is still kept about as secret as a classified cable in the Pentagon, though this columnist can report some of the lobby's back-stage operations.

Secret Wire-Pulling

The public doesn't realize it, but the utility lobby has been more successful than at any time since Hoover's day and the Association of Electric Companies deserves credit for more than earning its pay.

What the lobby has done is virtually to write the budget of the Interior Department so as to cut off $110,000,000 of funds for transmission lines, public power, and irrigation-reclamation projects.

This was accomplished by working through Congressman Ben F. Jensen of Iowa, chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee and long-time friend of the private utilities. Jensen has co-operated so closely with the power lobbyists in the past that Purcell Smith, who draws $65,000 a year plus expenses as top influence man for NAEC, has actually used the congressman's office. In 1950, when the power lobby was trying to cut government power appropriations, Smith was found secluded in Jensen's office, sending notes to Jensen by messenger while Jensen sat in the House Appropriations Committee deciding how much should be cut from government funds.

More recently the chopping down of the Interior Department budget —with the complete acquiescence of Secretary of the Interior McKay —was so brazen that Congressman H. Carl Anderson of Minnesota, himself a Republican, accused Jensen of "selling out" to the private utilities.

What the power lobby, plus Secretary McKay, plus the House Appropriations Committee succeeded in doing was to reverse a policy enacted into law by another Republican President, Teddy Roosevelt, in 1906, providing that power from government dams shall be sold with preference rights to cities, states, and other public bodies.

Chief immediate effect of this power-lobby victory will be to boost future rates to REA co-ops serving millions of farmers; also permit private utilities to purchase government power dirt cheap without going to the expense of building the dams. Thus the taxpayer will pay for building future dams and generating the electricity, while private utilities will be able to get the profit from selling the electricity.

Hitherto, the government has kept electric rates down in certain areas, such as the Tennessee Valley and the Northwest by selling the power itself.

Big Business Objects

Significantly the first people to kick about Secretary McKay's new power policy are not the farmers —who don't know what's in store for them yet—but some of the biggest companies in the U.S.A. They include: the Aluminum Corporation of America, Reynolds Metals and Kaiser Aluminum Industries.

These and other private concerns have been getting cheap government power from Bonneville Dam in the Northwest and from TVA in the South. Without cheap power they would be unable to make aluminum at a low-enough price to compete with Canadian aluminum, especially now that a tariff reduction is in prospect.

These three companies now have contracts for government power which expire in the 1960's. However, Secretary of the Interior McKay proposes to sign 20-year contracts with the private utilities giving them the first call on all new power, which may leave the three big aluminum companies out on a limb. The effect may be equally

"Mr. Silvermaster. I refuse to answer the question under the same privilege.

"Mr. Morris. Did you ever have conversations with Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Silvermaster. I refuse to answer the question under the same privilege."

Now we come to Frederick Palmer Weber, who has worked for several congressional committees, for the CIO-PAC, for the Progressive party, and for the American Management Council of New York City, and who testified concerning his activities in Southern states as follows:

"Mr. Morris. Now were you a member of the Communist party when you were organizing those 11 states for the Progressive party?

Lowenthal Different

"Senator Welker. You can't tell us whom you did meet in the executive branch of the government by virtue of your work on the hill?

"Mr. Weber. Mr. Senator, I am very reluctant to mention any number of very well known administrators and wartime officials from business and various policy-making people in the executive branch of the government.

"Senator Welker. That is because you don't want to embarrass them regardless of whether or not there is any connection whatsoever.

"Mr. Weber. I don't.

"Senator Welker. Is that the reason you decline to answer the question about Max Lowenthal?

"Mr. Weber. declined under my privilege.

"Senator Welker. In other words, you draw two different lines — one time you don't want to involve anyone that might be embarrassed by your testimony, but when we get to Mr. Lowenthal you invoke your privilege under the Fifth Amendment as to not giving testimony that might be used against you.

"Mr. Weber. That is right."

When analyzed, this is a startling reply, because Weber segregates Lowenthal as different from others. He is reluctant to speak of some, but to speak of Lowenthal would incriminate him. Why? What has Lowenthal done that it would incriminate Silvermaster and Weber to have known him?

Great Britain today sends no strategic materials to Red China but admits sending them to the Soviet Union and hides behind the fiction that Communist Russia is not "legally" an aggressor.

Cites Russian Relationship

The other day a letter appeared in a Washington newspaper signed "Diplomat" which was written presumably by someone connected with one of the British Commonwealth embassies. He said:

"The British have to live with—and, to a certain extent, by—trade with the Soviet Bloc. They sell rubber to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the European satellites, and refuse to sell it to Communist China, as a part of a policy which recognizes their need for grains and timber from the European Soviet bloc, which looks to the 'legal' situation in which Red China is an 'aggressor' under the UN resolution but the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is not; and which strives to achieve a workable and sensible balance.

"Like all compromises, the balance they strike may seem inconsistent, and may, in fact, be inconsistent or stupid or wrong. But it is their official policy in a matter of great delicacy."

Surely this is a matter of "great delicacy" for the parents and relatives of the more than 130,000 American boys who have become casualties in Korea. One wonders when the British government will discover that it is more important to put economic pressure on the Communist countries and bring the "cold war" to an end than it is to seek profits no matter where they can be obtained.

Surely, also out of the five to six billions of ecoonmic aid about to be voted by Congress to foreign countries, some few millions might be "earmarked" to buy the timber Britain needs and to absorb the freight expenses from distant points and thus aid in every way to achieve the "sensible balance" the British want. It would cost $800,000,000 a year to buy up the East-West trade. The American people would gladly pay it to end the "cold war." It might even replace some other $800,000,000 item in the foreign-aid budget.

Surely to "bribe" or "induce" the British producers with American dollars cannot be less harmful if trade is to be maintained than to let them be influenced by Soviet rubles or commodities—and if money is the only consideration, perhaps the American Congress can agree to pay the expenses of a complete embargo. It would be worth while to do so if American lives could be saved in Korea. For rubber is a strategic material, and when rubber is sold by Britain to the Soviet Union, everyone knows it is shipped over the Trans-Siberian Railway to Red China just as certainly as if it had been sent there by boat direct.

Real Reason Disclosed

It was Senator McCarthy who recently uncovered the scandal in foreign shipping which reveals that citizens of various countries, including Britain, are engaged in selling directly to Red China. Then, all of a sudden, the European press began to denounce "McCarthyism" with far more vigor than would normally be expected from a foreign press which has so little interest in whether subversives are being driven out of the American government. Now the "London Times" has revealed the real animus against Senator McCarthy —he is exposing the details of the improper trade with the Communists. The British newspaper says:

"The McCarthy policy, if one can dignify it by such a name, would logically lead to the stopping of all trade with the whole of that part of the world that is under Soviet influence, without regard to the strategic or non-strategic character of the goods carried. It would mean, on the trade front, a general state of war . . .

"The idea seems to be gaining fresh hold in the United States that trade with a Communist country is in itself wrong."

To most Americans — and now President Eisenhower has agreed— the fighting in Korea is not a "police action" but a "war." And when there is a war going on, Americans have been taught to believe it is wrong to trade with the enemy. During World War I, before America entered the conflict, Great Britain seized American vessels carrying cargoes to neutral countries because they might ultimately get to enemy countries. In World War II, the United States and Great Britain bought up the production of neutral countries to prevent its going to enemy countries.

The UN has adopted a resolution calling on all members to refrain from aiding the aggressors. This wasn't a hair-splitting resolution which said there could be exceptions if some country wanted to make profits or if some country wanted to send her strategic materials to a country bordering on Russia. The embargo resolution was clear-cut and the question now is how do the British and other nationals justify the use of shipping to permit trade directly or indirectly with the enemy.

On top of all this, Premier Nehru of India has announced that India does not and will not accept the UN embargo on strategic materials. How can the other UN members now allow India to remain a member of that organization? This is another question which deserves a realistic answer.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The U. S. airlines have ordered, or are in the course of ordering, the last piston-engined big planes they'll ever buy, C. R. Smith, president of American, asserts. But we have not fallen behind the jet-minded British by more years than first supposed.

The next big wave of U. S. orders will be for jet-engined planes. But the former Air Transport Command general says they won't be pure jets, such as Britain's Comet. We'll take the intermediary step and order prop-jets, planes which make use of turbine engines geared to propellors. They won't be as fast as the present or improved-type Comets. But they'll be faster than our latest conventional type airliners, smoother in the air, cheaper to run and easier to handle than the pure jets.

Neither the airlines nor the customers can now afford a pure jet, Smith said in a talk at Syracuse University. (The British insist they are making money on their Comet runs.)

He listed the pure jet's disadvantages as he sees them: (1) An estimated $30,000,000 for the prototype model; (2) production model costs of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 each; (3) tremendous fuel consumption; (4) longer runways for takeoffs; (5) no way to stop the roll after landing, except by brakes; (6) difficulty of "holding" at low altitude over a stacked-up airport; (7) inefficiency on short hops—because the pure jet operates best at great altitudes; (8) deafening noise around airports; (9) upkeep expenses; (10) not now suited for very long range operation, due to high fuel consumption and limited pay-load capacity.

The prop-jet, on the other hand, can use airstrips now in being, reverse the props for ground control, "stack up," burn less fuel, stay quieter and fly short or long distances. (The British have these in operation, too.)

Speeds of 450-500 miles per hour are possible with prop-jets, Smith said. That will enable transcontinental times to be cut from eight hours—with the equipment now on order—to six hours. When finally we graduate to pure jets, and their range is increased to permit them to fly non-stop, the flying time across the country will be shaved to five hours.

Smith feels, and most of his opposite numbers in TWA, Pan-Am, United, Eastern, Northwest, etc., agree, that the Wright compound engine that will power the new DC-7 and the newest Constellation represents the end of the line for piston engines. It will permit the new Douglas and Connie to cruise at 350 and cut coast-to-coast flying times to eight hours. It "recaptures" power normally spent through exhaust pipes.

Since most of these last-word-in-pistons won't be delivered before next year, you can expect the airlines to use them for maybe four or five additional years. Then will come the turbo-props (which will have to be used for another four or five years to get back the investment) and at long last the jets.

From this it would appear that in time we will be ten or even 15 years behind the British in the matter of advanced commercial flying, instead of five or six.

Smith traced the long uphill fight of U. S. airlines to win their independence from government subsidy. He acknowledged tacitly that it was necessary at first.

". . . The tri-motored Ford, one of the best known transports of the early days, was not able to earn its operating cost with a full load of paying passengers. A profit without subsidy was then a mathematical impossibility. It was often said then if someone should give you a transport airplane without charge you would not be able to operate it without loss.

"Some of the operating loss was reimbursed through mail pay, but a substantial part of it was borne by the capital of the shareholders. They were the real pioneers.

"The airlines began to 'turn the corner' and see the prospect of self-sustaining service when the twin-engined Douglas DC-3 transport was available for service in 1936. . . . Today, not a single one of the principal air carriers receives any subsidy from the federal government for its domestic operation. Most of them pay federal income taxes in excess of the total of their mail income and in excess of the total of their net earnings."

Smith wants to keep it that way. Hence his and the U. S. aviation industry's pedestrian pursuit of the jet-propelled British.

Age of Simplicity

Greene garbed for 20th century; Swayze for 18th

FASHION: Compared with former times, the 1950s are an age of simplicity in men's wear. The long-term trend has been away from extravagant dress. This was graphically demonstrated at the Chicago opening of the Hotel Ambassador's "Beau Nash" room, when actor Richard Greene, dressed in the modern style, lined up next to TV's John Cameron Swayze, who was decked out in elaborate 18th-century costume (at right).

In the Stores: A pocket-size "Sportsman" kit that holds 27 items for repairing most anything. . . . Lobster bibs, like those used in seafood restaurants, are now available for home use in packages of 10. . . . A new dry-cleaning process for clothes uses chlorophyll. . . . A men's hat company now has an electronically processed hat band guaranteed against stains and discolorations for one year of wear.

Travel Tips: If you're taking a foreign-make camera out of the country, register it with the U. S. Customs Service to avoid difficulty when you bring it back. . . . If you use a portable garment bag, see that the bellboys don't hang it upside down—as they often do.

Handy Hints: Rub your hands with a little butter to remove fish or onion odors. . . . Dented ping-pong balls can be renewed by dropping them for a second in hot water. . . . If you're transporting live minnows on a fishing trip, best way to keep them alive is to pack them in a bucket of wet grass. . . . Rub cold cream on the stopper of a bottle of glue before replacing it. That will keep it from sticking.

Ten-Second Interviews: Dean Anthony Casavone, of a N. Y. barber college—"The mustache is getting popular again. While one is growing it's advisable to rub the upper lip occasionally with petroleum jelly to keep it from getting dry and sore." . . . Met Opera's Renato Cellini—"To clean your Venetian blinds, dump them into a bathtub of hot water. Add detergent. Rinse with shower, let dry in tub—and they'll look like new."

Pass the Cigars: This week to—shoe manufacturer Herbert Posner, who celebrated his company's 65th anniversary by giving 1,000 pairs of shoes to needy youngsters through New York's Police Athletic League.

Casual Colors: Many men who dress sensibly for street and business wear seem to lose their sense of balance when it comes to sports clothes. In general, the same color rules should apply for all sorts of clothing, with sportswear leaning toward the lively side. Below is a chart of good combinations for your casual wear.

Scientists Believe World Tensions Would Ease If Sun's Power Tapped

URBANA, Ill. — (INS) — Two University of Illinois scientists claim they are doing research on a scientific road that may lead to the discovery of a new source of power and thus relieve tension in an embattled world.

They believe that man's yearning for peace would have a greater chance for success if an inexhaustible source of power supply—the sun—could be broken down into a workable formula.

Prof. Robert Emerson, who with Prof. Eugene I. Rabinowitch, is directing the university's study of plants passing one chlorophyll molecule to another, and seeking to learn how microscopic plants efficiently use light energy, point out their objective—if achieved—"will be more revolutionary than (discovery of) atomic energy."

Prof. Emerson believes that since much of the unrest in the world is caused by competition for power resources, world tensions might be lessed if the sun's energy could be used to provide enough power for everyone.

He points out that "while the pressure for more power increases, fossil fuel resources are dwindling," and added: "Even at the present rate of consumption coal and oil will become scarce in some areas in the next 50 years."

Prof. Rabinowitch, who edits the "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists," points out the weakness of atomic energy:

"Every time an atom bomb is exploded, enough energy is released to supply power to a country the size of Denmark for one year. Once the bomb is exploded, however, the energy is lost forever."

Emerson calls attention to the use of power in America and credits it with the nation's high standard of living. He emphasized that "new sources of energy will continue to be needed, since the desire of backward peoples to improve their living standard demands an increase in the use of power."

Without any increase in world population, the world would exhaust the present known major sources of energy—if everyone used as much as Americans—in 800 years at most.

Roughly, Americans daily use about 3,000 calories for food and about 200,0000 for power. The Chinese, by contrast, use 2,000 calories for food and only 200 for power.

The two scientists claim that atomic energy—like coal and oil energy—will eventually have its sources exhausted.

Capital Woman Reports Assault

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP) — A woman Pentagon employe told State Police she was raped early today by two men who sideswiped her car to a stop near the intersection of Routes 40 and 29, about five miles west of here.

The 25-year-old Washington woman said she noticed a car pulling up beside her and then [illegible]ing back of her while she was driving out Route 40 about 12:30 a.

At Ellicott City, she said, she lost sight of the car when she turned onto Route 29. It later reappeared, passed her and stopped in the road trying to force her to stop. She said she swerved around it and kept going.

Then, said the woman, the car sped past her and crashed into her front fender forcing her to stop near the Middle Patuxent River bridge.

She said a man forced his way into her car, drew a knife and threatened her. He drove her car up a sideroad with his companion following them, the woman added.

She said both men, who called each other "Pete" and "Jim", assaulted her. Afterward, "Pete" backed her car onto the highway and ordered her to get going.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK — His name was Brandon de Wilde, which rhymes with Mathilda, and he was 11 years old. He was a small boy with fair hair, rigged out in a raincoat and a little rain hat, and he walked into the office with his mother, a pretty but harassed young woman, and took a seat in the corner in the big red leather chair. We eyed each other non-committally and I don't know what he was thinking but I know I was thinking: this is one of America's great actors. How do you talk to an 11-year-old who is one of America's great actors?

I will say this for 11-year-olds: occasionally they relent on grown-ups and make things easier. I was approaching the uneasy stage swiftly when Mr. de Wilde picked up a gilt letter-opener from my desk, turned it on himself like Cassius having at Caesar and said, "Look, I'm committing suicide." The atmosphere cleared. It was evident that Mr. de Wilde was more 11-year-old boy than he was great actor.

There is a movie due in your neighborhood one of these months called "Shane." It was directed by a superior sort, George Stevens, and it features old Alan Ladd acting pretty much like old Alan Ladd, tight-lipped and handsomely enigmatic. The startling thing about "Shane," which is a dilly, is that for once Mr. Ladd's style rings the bell, but more to the point, Mr. de Wilde wraps up the movie and takes it home with him. I asked Mr. de Wilde, who has just come into town from his Baldwin, L. I., home this rainy morning, how he liked making all those movies. "All?" he said. "I've only made two."

Well, how did he like making two movies? "Tough," he said. "Nothing is in order. You switch from a beginning scene to the end of the picture, in shooting. I like the stage better."

What had Mr. de Wilde acted in on the stage recently? "'The Emperor's Clothes,'" he said. "It was a flop. I don't see why. It was a very good play, one of my two favorites. Oh, those wicked New York critics."

Mrs. de Wilde, who acts herself and is married to another actor who is pretty much devoting himself to managing young Mr. de Wilde, told how his debut at seven in "The Member of the Wedding" —he had the third longest part— was pretty accidental because nobody ever had thought of young Mr. de Wilde as an actor before, in all his life. Once rehearsals began, they thought his halting reading would slow up practicing, but it developed it didn't.

"Hey," young Mr. de Wilde said, "I'm a very good reader. One of the best. I hate to brag." He held the letter-opener by the tip. "I could throw this," he suggested thoughtfully. Mrs. de Wilde and I shifted from the line of fire.

When I was around 11, I used to burn at the adults who patted me on the head and called me their sweet little boy and I asked young Mr. de Wilde how this went with him. He looked disgusted. "You're so cute, they say," he said. "I could just eat you up.' Huh. I could just die."

Did young Mr. de Wilde have any close friends out in Baldwin? "Most of them have moved away," he said in a small voice. "I get along all right with the others but a lot of them always come up and say, 'Lookit the movie star—yaaaa!' I never know what to do. I'm not much of a fighter."

I got into a discussion with Mrs. de Wilde about the problems of trying to raise a young theatrical star as a normal boy and the way she explained things, with a kind of nervous sincerity, made me feel for her. No young boy, of course, ever should be a movie star. Huckleberry Finn himself couldn't escape having his childhood warped by it.

Young Mr. de Wilde racks up real big money, however, as a star. He only gets 50 cents of it a week and he's not allowed to read his notices from the critics, and the de Wildes are saving his paychecks for him to use when he grows up. It is the exceptional set of parents who can look at all this money, for their boy's use when he reaches manhood, and say, "No. It's not worth it."

They try, though. When he's acting on the Broadway stage, he sleeps from midnight to 10:30 a. m., he goes to public school as often as possible and fills in the rest with a tutor, he belongs to the Cub Scouts, Pack 62, Den 5, and in his spare time he's interested in building toy autos.

I asked young Mr. de Wilde what he was going to be when he grew up. "I don't know," he said. "An actor, I guess."

After a while, they left. The small boy in the raincoat, tagging along after his mother down the hall toward the elevator bank, looked very, very small, indeed.

Whether a wedding is formal or informal, a bride's costume should always express her loveliest self!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

Although every girl wishes for a fairy godmother to make her exquisitely beautiful on her wedding day, she needs none. Her own happiness wields the magic wand. Any little incidental requirements can be taken care of by the selection of her wedding raiment.

The dream dress materializes when you combine individual becomingness with fashion sense and give the required bow to a traditional degree of formality. If your wedding is to be a large, formal one, tradition decrees a satin, lace or tulle gown complete with train and yards of illusion veiling.

Decree Of Dame Fashion

But whether it trails or billows, is low or high of neck or long or short of sleeve is no longer tradition's decision. Dame Fashion now dictates what these shall be and at present she smiles on all. Let personal flattery govern your choice — except where church regulations designate otherwise.

But be very conscious of the fact that white is many-toned. Choose your shade of white with the utmost discrimination. With pride in a creamy skin, choose a white with a creamy tone; if you are very fair, be sure the cast is on the oyster or blue.

For the semi-formal wedding in a church, garden or home, you may let your fancy take higher flight. Consider the possibilities of nylon tulle, organdy or any starchy sheer made with bouffant, waltz-length skirt and a snug shoulder hug that when removed reveals a dance dress for the after-wedding gala. (Even some formal wedding gowns are convertible — a practical feature worth considering.)

Dramatic Informality

An informal gown gains a romantic touch when worn with a brief veil, a little cap or a circlet of flowers. With such, carry a perky rather than an elaborate bouquet.

For a quiet, informal ceremony, a daytime dress or suit can be drama-packed for the bride who selects an important fabric, such as faille or taffeta and, to give flower and accessory ideas full rein, chooses an uncomplicated design in a monotone.

Enchanting brides follow the rule of all charmers: Let your costume express your loveliest self!

YOUR BEAUTY DIET

No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same— YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a safe and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating, not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it contains require no extra planning or preparation! For the booklet, write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose 10c in coin to help cover cost, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK — His name was Brandon de Wilde, which rhymes with Mathilda, and he was 11 years old. He was a small boy with fair hair, rigged out in a raincoat and a little rain hat, and he walked into the office with his mother, a pretty but harassed young woman, and took a seat in the corner in the big red leather chair. We eyed each other non-committally and I don't know what he was thinking but I know I was thinking: this is one of America's great actors. How do you talk to an 11-year-old who is one of America's great actors?

I will say this for 11-year-olds: occasionally they relent on grown-ups and make things easier. I was approaching the uneasy stage swiftly when Mr. de Wilde picked up a gilt letter-opener from my desk, turned it on himself like Cassius having at Caesar and said, "Look, I'm committing suicide." The atmosphere cleared. It was evident that Mr. de Wilde was more 11-year-old boy than he was great actor.

There is a movie due in your neighborhood one of these months called "Shane." It was directed by a superior sort, George Stevens, and it features old Alan Ladd acting pretty much like old Alan Ladd, tight-lipped and handsomely enigmatic. The startling thing about "Shane," which is a dilly, is that for once Mr. Ladd's style rings the bell, but more to the point, Mr. de Wilde wraps up the movie and takes it home with him. I asked Mr. de Wilde, who has just come into town from his Baldwin, L. I., home this rainy morning, how he liked making all those movies. "All?" he said. "I've only made two."

Well, how did he like making two movies? "Tough," he said. "Nothing is in order. You switch from a beginning scene to the end of the picture, in shooting. I like the stage better."

American Rival To India's Taj Mahal To Be Dedicated

The gleaming white lace-work of stone which is the breath-taking Baha'i temple towers above Lake Michigan at Wilmette, Ill.

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

WILMETTE, Ill. — The New World rival to the fabulous Taj Mahal as an architectural "wonder of the world" is receiving its final touches here in preparation for dedication in May as part of the centennial celebration of the founding of a comparatively new major religious faith with more than two million followers.

It is the gleaming white Baha'i House of Worship, the Bashriqu'l-Adhkar which has been half a century in the building on an imposing promontory overlooking the Lake Michigan 15 miles north of Chicago.

Almost everyone viewing the remarkable edifice, with its sixth largest dome in the world towering 165 feet and measuring 98 feet in diameter, is reminded either of pictures he has seen or a visit he has made to the 300-year-old Taj Mahal.

Great formal gardens being built at a cost of $200,000 increase the illusion, as does the fact that both are built largely of alabaster concrete.

Architecturally they are comparable in other ways. The Taj was built in 22 years by the Shah Jahan at a cost of $6,200,000 to hold the body of his favorite queen after she died upon having her 14th baby in 14 years; the Baha'i temple cost $2,500,000 and also is built for the ages.

However, similarities end there. The Taj is a monument and memorial to the dead; the Baha'i is a glowing symbol of the faith of a religious sect with members throughout 70 nations in the living hope of a new world in which all peoples eventually will be united "in a confederation more like that of the United States than of the UN."

Although recognized by the UN as an "international community," their members are instructed to be actively law-abiding citizens of whatever state they live in, supporting compulsory education and performing military service.

Deeply respectful of all religions, they include among their prophets Moses, Jesuh, Mohammed, Buddha, and their founder, Baha'u'llah, who died in 1892.

The fact of the temple's location here is one of its most amazing features, because only about 5,000 members of the faith live in Canada and the United States.

Since the Soviets seized the sect's only other house of worship in the Caucasus, it is the only temple maintained by the group which considers Communism one of three great "evils" abroad in the world today, the others being "any exclusive system of nationalism" and "racism."

The site was picked in 1893 by Baha'i visitors from Persia, which still has the greatest concentration of its members, to the Congress of religions held at the first Chicago World's Fair.

They gasped at the beauty of the stretch of blue waters of Lake Michigan, which reminded them of the Caspian sea, and the glories of the exposition convinced them that "the hope of the world lay in the United States."

The cornerstone was laid in May, 1912, by Abdu'l-Baha, son of Baha'u'llah. The pace of construction has been dictated in part by the sect's aversion to incurring any debt.

Present head of the faith is Shoghi Effendi, eldest grandson of Ablul'l-Baha, who maintains world headquarters at Haifa, Israel. But a subsidiary headquarters is situ-

"Mother's work is never done" goes an old adage, but on her day, May 10th, why not change that saying to Mother's work is done for her.

Preparing dinner can be fun for the family, especially if duties are delegated to various members. Remember that meal planning starts by choosing the meat dish. Why not surprise Mother with clever ground beef muffins? They're a simple ground beef mixture (recipe below) pressed into small muffin pans, then roasted in a slow oven. To add a novel touch, onion rings and designs cut from pimiento may be placed in the bottom of the muffin pans and the meat molded over them.

When purchasing the ground beef for this serving be sure to ask your market man to grind boneless beef stew meat rather than round steak. The latter is too lean for a juicy meat patty. Save it for country-fried steak or Swiss steak. Boneless stew meat usually has just the right amount of fat to produce juicy patties and loaves.

Begin dinner with chilled tomato juice and crackers served either in your living room or at the dinner table. Baked potatoes make a simple addition to your menu, as well as buttered asparagus. A relish plate can take the place of a salad in your menu. Rolls that require only a few minutes browning ease the bread situation. For dessert pick Mother's favorite which just might be strawberry shortcake.

Tiny beef muffins are a clever choice for the family when they're taking over mother's cooking responsibilities on her day, May 10. Onion rings and slices and pimiento designs garnish these muffins. The garnishes are placed in the bottom of the muffin pans, the meat molded over them and roasted.

Beef Muffins
1½ pounds ground beef
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
¼ cup horseradish
2 eggs
¾ cup cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup catchup
Onion rings
Pimientos cut as stars or crescents

Combine all ingredients except onion rings and pimiento. Place onion rings or pimiento stars or crescents in greased muffin pans. Pack the meat mixture in the muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 30 minutes. 6 servings.

Strawberry Meringue Puffs
6 sponge cake shells
1 egg white
¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 pint vanilla or strawberry ice cream
1 cup crushed strawberries*

Beat egg whites until quite stiff, but not dry. Add sugar and vanilla gradually, continuing to beat until very stiff. Spread meringue around the sides of each sponge cake shell. Place on a cookie sheet and bake in a hot oven (450° F.) for five minutes. Fill center of each puff with a scoop of ice cream. Top each serving with crushed strawberries.

*Frozen or sweetened fresh berries may be used.

Chocolate Brownie Pie For Dessert

Tempting, new, easy, too! That's the exciting new kind of pie — Chocolate Brownie pie. If you like chocolate brownies, you'll love Chocolate Brownie pie.

Its rich, chocolatey, chewy goodness is accented by crunchy pecans mixed all the way through. And its shiny glazed top is crusty with pecan halves. This delicious treat reminds you, too, of that old Southern favorite, pecan pie, which in fact inspired its creation.

And chocolate brownie pie is so easy to make. There is no separate cooking of filling and pastry. The filling, made with either unsweetened chocolate or cocoa, is poured into the unbaked pastry shell and baked with it.

This delectable finish to your menu goes so far you can get 8 to 10 servings from a single pie. It is ideal for church circle meetings, dessert luncheons, and family and company meals.

Favorite ways of serving Chocolate Brownie pie are with (1) whipped cream, (2) a la mode (a scoop of ice cream atop each wedge), or with (3) whipped ice cream. To make Whipped Ice Cream: Put ice cream into a bowl and beat it with a wooden spoon or electric mixer at low speed until it is softened and fluffy but still holds its shape.

Chocolate Brownie Pie

Preheat oven to 375° (quick moderate).

Make pastry for 9-in. One-Crust Pie. (recipe below).

Melt together over hot water 2 sq. unsweetened chocolate (2 oz.), 2 tbsp. butter.

Beat thoroughly with rotary beater 3 large eggs, ½ cup sugar, the chocolate mixture, ¾ cup dark corn syrup.

Mix in ¾ cup pecan halves.

Pour into pastry-lined pan. Bake 40 to 50 minutes in quick moderate oven (375°) just until set. Serve slightly warm or cold garnished with ice cream or whipped cream. Serves 8 to 10.

To use cocoa, omit chocolate and sift ½ cup cocoa with the sugar. Then add ¼ cup melted butter to the egg and sugar mixture.

Pastry For 9-In. One-Crust Pie

Mix together 1⅓ cups sifted flour and 1 tsp. salt.

Pour into one measuring cup (but don't stir together) ⅓ cup Wesson Oil, 3 tbsp. cold whole milk.

Then pour all at once into flour. Stir until mixed. Press with hands into smooth ball. Flatten slightly. Place between 2 sheets of waxed paper (12-in. square). Roll out gently until circle reaches edges of paper. (Waxed paper will not slip while rolling pastry if table top under paper is slightly damp.) Peel off top paper. If dough tears, mend without moistening by pressing edges together—or by presing a scrap of pastry lightly over tear. Lift paper and pastry by top corners; they will cling together. Place paper-side-up in 9-in. pie pan. Carefully peel off paper. Gently ease and fit pastry into pan. Build up fluted edge.

The United States, which turned out 15 per cent more raw materials than it needed in 1900, now produces 9 per cent less than it consumes.

Gingerbread-Banana Shortcake
1 gingerbread square, 9 inches
1 cup sliced bananas
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon confectioner's sugar

Cut gingerbread into 9 square servings. Combine whipped cream, vanilla and confectioners' sugar. Top each serving with bananas and whipped cream.

Yield: 9 Gingerbread - Banana Shortcakes.

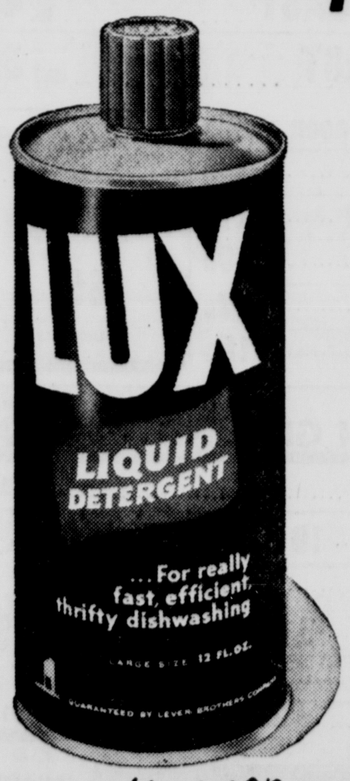
this can in your kitchen is the next best thing to a dishwashing machine

A week's dishwashing is a bigger job than the weekly laundry. (It's around a thousand cooking and eating utensils for a family of four.) Like your weekly laundry, dishwashing deserves a special something that will make it less of a chore—and yet not harm your hands.



Packed in a can as it should be— with a dripless spout

Won't break like a bottle. Won't get soggy or take up room like a box. And the dripless spout keeps the liquid from dripping down the side of the can.

Our laboratories found that one canful of this new Lux Liquid Detergent will wash more dishes than several boxes of the most popular laundry powder. It cleans so well and costs so little because it's designed for dishwashing... not for getting out the entirely different kind of grease and dirt in soiled overalls.
—And it's almost as mild on your hands as Lux Toilet Soap.

YEARS AGO, we asked our laboratories to develop a product especially for dishwashing. Something that would be as superior for dishes as Lux Flakes care is for stockings.

Now, it's no small order to come up with something as good as a product that lets you double the wear of your nylons. But we think you'll agree Lux Liquid Detergent is that good for dishes.

It gets dishes clean like nothing else does by literally soaking them clean. It cuts away the grease. Gets between the clinging grease and the dish. Dissolves the grease.

For fast, efficient dishwashing—with or without wiping—no powder can touch it.

What's more, it dissolves instantly (it's predissolved). It has a nice smell and it will make suds even in ice water.

As for mildness, we can truthfully say it's almost as mild as Lux Toilet Soap—and that's going some. Lux Liquid Detergent is mild.

Now, how about cost? For what it does, Lux Liquid Detergent costs less than any leading soap or detergent.

A few drops wash a whole dishpan-full of dishes. A couple of trials will show you how little you have to use.

In other words, it's pleasant and thrifty to use, it does the job well without a lot of fuss, and it's easy on your hands. For these virtues it's unequaled by any other product.

This new Lux Liquid Detergent naturally has a Lever Brothers guarantee. You can have your money back if you don't think it's the greatest little helper with the dishes that ever came along—but we honestly believe you'll love it. LEVER BROTHERS

Pot Roast, International Style

What American family could dispense with pot roast as one of the dishes best liked at the table. It's in the tradition of hearty American cooking, is good, old-fashioned pot roast, and most everyone knows how to make it. But everyone may not have realized how low the prices are on cuts for this favorite dish at market. Beef chuck, a good cut for pot roast, is vastly reduced from its price last year, the reason being record supplies of beef cattle coming to market.

It's good to have a standard family recipe for pot roast, but have you tried serving pot roast as it's made in other countries? The basic recipe is the same, but the flavorings are a little different. Italy likes its pot roast flavored with tomato and served with spaghetti. Sweden spices its pot roast. And soy sauce varies the Oriental style. To make pot roast more varied with the low priced beef in the market now, try our international styles.

Basic Pot Roast

3 to 4 lbs. beef, chuck, round or rump
2 tablespoons fat
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Brown beef evenly on all sides in hot fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; add water. Cover tightly and simmer about 2½ to 3 hours or until meat is tender. Turn meat occasionally. Add more water during cooking, if necessary. Remove roast to hot platter and keep warm. Make gravy, using liquid. Yield 6 to 8 servings.

International Variations

Pot Roast, Italian Style

In basic recipe, substitute 2 tablespoons olive oil for fat. Brown ½ cup chopped onions with the meat. Add 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 3 or 4 whole cloves, 1 bay leaf and garlic clove with the water. Serve with spaghetti that has been generously sprinkled with cheese.

Pot Roast, Swedish Style

Pot Roast, Oriental Style

Old Fashioned Treat Is Smothered Steak

Anyone who has lived on a farm will remember the delicious steaks and the way they were slowly cooked on the farm stove. These were not the Porterhouse or Sirloin steaks served in hotels. They were steaks cut from the round or chuck and they were cooked not by broiling, but by slow braising in a covered skillet. The slow cooking developed wonderful flavor in the steak and a rich gravy. Mashed potatoes accompanied the dish to the table to make the most of the delicious gravy from the steak. These were known as Smothered Steaks in contrast to broiled steaks, and if you want to create a real nostalgia in the gentleman you cook for, make him some Smothered Steak with the low-priced beef in the market now.

Swiss Steak is another good dish to make with the inexpensive beef in the market now. Although sirloin steak is selling at the price of hamburger in the market of a year ago in most localities, it is good to vary the menu with old-fashioned treats cooked by different methods than broiling. Have your broiled steaks, too. You can well afford them at today's prices.

Rib End Of Roast Beef Helps Make Extra Meal

When you buy a standing rib roast or beef, and everybody is buying roast beef these days since it's selling in many places at the price of hamburger and other thrifty meats a year ago, there's a good way to use that rib end of the meat that is less tender than the center part. Just have the meat man cut off the rib end from the standing rib, and reserve it. Buy one or two other short ribs of beef, according to the number of people to be served, and you can braise the rib end of your roast with the additional short ribs for a delicious, extra meal at a real bargain price. Perhaps you'll like the Barbecued Short Rib recipe included with this article for making an extra meal with the rib end of your roast.

Some prefer to leave the rib end on the beef, and roast it with the rest of the meat. Then they cube the meat for a casserole dish, or grind it for a sandwich filling, or make hash with it.

RIB END MAKES SOUP FOR GOOD LUNCH

Mothers of small children sometimes make soup with the rib end of the roast and some extra bones. In this case, the rib end is removed from the roast at the meat store, and the rib is trimmed of fat at home before making the soup. When the soup is made, the meat is cubed and served with it to make a nourishing substantial meal for the children.

And for a change, try a different cut of beef cooked by braising.

SMOTHERED STEAK

1½ lbs. round or chuck steak
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
3 medium onions, sliced
1 cup water

Wipe meat with clean damp cloth. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Sprinkle beef with half of flour mixture, pound in with rim of saucer. Turn over, pound remaining flour into other side. Heat lard in skillet, add onions; cook until light brown, remove. Add meat and brown well on both sides. Put onion rings on top of meat. Add water; cover, and simmer 1¾ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender. Yield: 6 servings.

BARBECUED SHORT RIBS

3 lbs. short ribs of beef
2 tablespoons lard
1 medium onion, chopped
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup catchup
½ cup water
½ teaspoon Tabasco
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup diced celery
2 teaspoons salt

Have ribs cut into sections two to three inches long. Melt fat in heavy frying pan. Add meat and brown well; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and cook slowly on top of range or bake in large casserole in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1½ to 2 hours or until tender. YELD: 4 or 5 servings.

Pot Roast, International Style

What American family could dispense with pot roast as one of the dishes best liked at the table. It's in the tradition of hearty American cooking, is good, old-fashioned pot roast, and most everyone knows how to make it. But everyone may not have realized how low the prices are on cuts for this favorite dish at market. Beef chuck, a good cut for pot roast, is vastly reduced from its price last year, the reason being record supplies of beef cattle coming to market.

It's good to have a standard family recipe for pot roast, but have you tried serving pot roast as it's made in other countries? The basic recipe is the same, but the flavorings are a little different. Italy likes its pot roast flavored with tomato and served with spaghetti. Sweden spices its pot roast. And soy sauce varies the Oriental style. To make pot roast more varied with the low priced beef in the market now, try our international styles.

Basic Pot Roast

3 to 4 lbs. beef, chuck, round or rump
2 tablespoons fat
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Brown beef evenly on all sides in hot fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; add water. Cover tightly and simmer about 2½ to 3 hours or until meat is tender. Turn meat occasionally. Add more water during cooking, if necessary. Remove roast to hot platter and keep warm. Make gravy, using liquid. Yield 6 to 8 servings.

International Variations

Pot Roast, Italian Style

In basic recipe, substitute 2 tablespoons olive oil for fat. Brown ½ cup chopped onions with the meat. Add 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 3 or 4 whole cloves, 1 bay leaf and garlic clove with the water. Serve with spaghetti that has been generously sprinkled with cheese.

Pot Roast, Swedish Style

Pot Roast, Oriental Style

Old Fashioned Treat Is Smothered Steak

Anyone who has lived on a farm will remember the delicious steaks and the way they were slowly cooked on the farm stove. These were not the Porterhouse or Sirloin steaks served in hotels. They were steaks cut from the round or chuck and they were cooked not by broiling, but by slow braising in a covered skillet. The slow cooking developed wonderful flavor in the steak and a rich gravy. Mashed potatoes accompanied the dish to the table to make the most of the delicious gravy from the steak. These were known as Smothered Steaks in contrast to broiled steaks, and if you want to create a real nostalgia in the gentleman you cook for, make him some Smothered Steak with the low-priced beef in the market now.

Swiss Steak is another good dish to make with the inexpensive beef in the market now. Although sirloin steak is selling at the price of hamburger in the market of a year ago in most localities, it is good to vary the menu with old-fashioned treats cooked by different methods than broiling. Have your broiled steaks, too. You can well afford them at today's prices.

Rib End Of Roast Beef Helps Make Extra Meal

When you buy a standing rib roast or beef, and everybody is buying roast beef these days since it's selling in many places at the price of hamburger and other thrifty meats a year ago, there's a good way to use that rib end of the meat that is less tender than the center part. Just have the meat man cut off the rib end from the standing rib, and reserve it. Buy one or two other short ribs of beef, according to the number of people to be served, and you can braise the rib end of your roast with the additional short ribs for a delicious, extra meal at a real bargain price. Perhaps you'll like the Barbecued Short Rib recipe included with this article for making an extra meal with the rib end of your roast.

And for a change, try a different cut of beef cooked by braising.

SMOTHERED STEAK

1½ lbs. round or chuck steak
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
3 medium onions, sliced
1 cup water

Wipe meat with clean damp cloth. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Sprinkle beef with half of flour mixture, pound in with rim of saucer. Turn over, pound remaining flour into other side. Heat lard in skillet, add onions; cook until light brown, remove. Add meat and brown well on both sides. Put onion rings on top of meat. Add water; cover, and simmer 1¾ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender. Yield: 6 servings.

Some prefer to leave the rib end on the beef, and roast it with the rest of the meat. Then they cube the meat for a casserole dish, or grind it for a sandwich filling, or make hash with it.

RIB END MAKES SOUP FOR GOOD LUNCH

Mothers of small children sometimes make soup with the rib end of the roast and some extra bones. In this case, the rib end is removed from the roast at the meat store, and the rib is trimmed of fat at home before making the soup. When the soup is made, the meat is cubed and served with it to make a nourishing substantial meal for the children.

BARBECUED SHORT RIBS

3 lbs. short ribs of beef
2 tablespoons lard
1 medium onion, chopped
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup catchup
½ cup water
½ teaspoon Tabasco
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup diced celery
2 teaspoons salt

Have ribs cut into sections two to three inches long. Melt fat in heavy frying pan. Add meat and brown well; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and cook slowly on top of range or bake in large casserole in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1½ to 2 hours or until tender. YELD: 4 or 5 servings.

Sweet Tooth Suggestion

"Mock Coconut Chocolate Balls" are baffling — in a most pleasant sort of way. They taste deliciously of coconut, but a review of the recipe tells us that coconut is not one of the ingredients. Be that as it may, they are unusual. Sugar coated corn flakes, newcomer among the pre-sweetened cereals, is featured. Something else good about this confection; it improves with age (several days anyhow).

Mock Coconut Chocolate Balls

1 cup (6-oz.) semi-sweet chocolate, chopped to bits; 3 tablespoons light corn syrup; ½ cup orange juice; 7 cups sugar coated cornflakes; ½ cup confectioners' sugar; 1 cup finely chopped nutmeats granulated sugar.

Melt chocolate over hot but not boiling water. Remove from heat; stir in corn syrup and orange juice. Crush sugar coated corn flakes into fine crumbs. Combine with confectioners' sugar and nutmeats. Add chocolate mixture and mix thoroughly. Let stand 30 minutes. Form into balls about 1½-inches in diameter. Roll in granulated sugar. Let stand in covered container for several days before serving.

Yield: About 3 dozen balls.

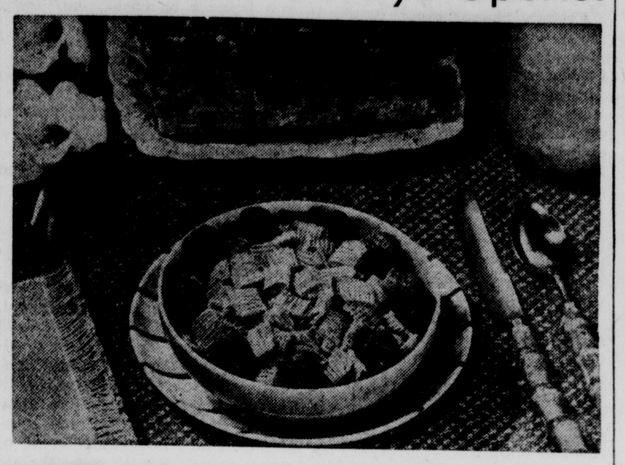
Pineapple Marshmallow Cake Pudding

½ pint heavy cream, whipped
2 cups diced marshmallows
2 cups cake cubes, ½ inch
1 cup drained crushed pineapple

Combine whipped cream, marshmallows, cake cubes and pineapple. Refrigerate for three hours before serving.

Yield: 8 servings.

Three Breakfast Favorites Combine For An Eye-Opener



A GOOD start for a good day: this breakfast featuring three family favorites—fruit, cereal, and milk. Serve them to your sleepy family for an extra appealing eye-opener.

Foods Are Adaptable

Any breakfast that's planned around the basic pattern of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter is sure to open their eyes, though, for the foods included in the breakfast outline are easily adaptable to many different and interesting serving ideas. The basic foods may be changed in several ways, all of which may be aimed to please the family.

Spring breakfasts call for food that is refreshing and appetizing, as well as substantial for pleasant warm weather days. Strawberries, the popular fruit now in season, and crisp bite-size shredded rice are combined with cold milk for a colorful eye-opener. Raisin coffeecake squares and pats of butter contribute the other two foods needed to complete this breakfast "cut" from the pattern.

Thrifty Foods

Other tempting variations on this breakfast pattern are easy to find at your grocer's. These versatile meals are possible because they contain readily available and thrifty foods.

Eating an adequate morning meal will help you get more work done during the latter hours of the morning. You'll also be quicker in your reactions and you won't tire as easily. So to be in the best of spring spirits eat a good breakfast, fashioned by you from the basic pattern.

The Taj Mahal is in Agra, India. It was built in the 17th Century by Emperor Shah Jehan for his favorite wife.

Three Breakfast Favorites Combine For An Eye-Opener

A GOOD start for a good day: this breakfast featuring three family favorites—fruit, cereal, and milk. Serve them to your sleepy family for an extra appealing eye-opener.

Foods Are Adaptable

Any breakfast that's planned around the basic pattern of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter is sure to open their eyes, though, for the foods included in the breakfast outline are easily adaptable to many different and interesting serving ideas. The basic foods may be changed in several ways, all of which may be aimed to please the family.

Spring breakfasts call for food that is refreshing and appetizing, as well as substantial for pleasant warm weather days. Strawberries, the popular fruit now in season, and crisp bite-size shredded rice are combined with cold milk for a colorful eye-opener. Raisin coffeecake squares and pats of butter contribute the other two foods needed to complete this breakfast "cut" from the pattern.

Thrifty Foods

Other tempting variations on this breakfast pattern are easy to find at your grocer's. These versatile meals are possible because they contain readily available and thrifty foods.

Eating an adequate morning meal will help you get more work done during the latter hours of the morning. You'll also be quicker in your reactions and you won't tire as easily. So to be in the best of spring spirits eat a good breakfast, fashioned by you from the basic pattern.

The Taj Mahal is in Agra, India. It was built in the 17th Century by Emperor Shah Jehan for his favorite wife.

WHICH IS LESS FATTENING?

3 Teaspoons of Pure Domino Sugar Contain Fewer Calories than ⅔ Cup of Cooked Green Peas!

And 3 teaspoons of Domino Sugar contain fewer calories than 1 poached or boiled egg!

"Counting calories" nowadays? You should know that generous amounts of Domino Granulated Sugar, used in your favorite foods and beverages, contain fewer calories than usual servings of many foods regularly included in reducing diets.

Nutritionists say that no single food is fattening unless you take in more calories than your body uses up. Peas and eggs are excellent foods . . . but, sugar, too, is nutritionally important in the well-balanced diet you need for good health.

So don't deny yourself the pleasureful extra flavor that Domino Sugar adds to your daily meals. And always insist on Domino Pure Cane Sugar because only one sugar is Domino pure!

Customs Change In Wedding Gifts

AP Newsfeatures

Although the custom of giving engagement and wedding gifts dates back to ancient times, the rules change from generation to generation.

In the Middle Ages most gifts sometimes were made at the church porch by best man and bridesmaid.

Nowadays, we start the gift merry-go-round with the engagement announcement and continue it up to the wedding day. Usually the bride-to-be is on the receiving end of the gift list, although she may, if she wishes, give her fiance a present. This is not obligatory, however, or even usual.

The gifts start with engagement showers, where friends present the future bride with miscellaneous gifts chosen, not for their expensiveness, but for general usefulness. They may include lingerie, household linens, kitchen utensils or anything that might be needed in a new home.

FOR THE BRIDE . . . Table crystal with air twist stem, by Steuben, a gift from bridegroom's parents.

Wedding gifts, which are sent to the bride before the marriage but intended for both bride and groom, are more formal. Usually, the bride's family gives her a set of flat silver, and the bridegroom's parents may give table crystal.

Friends choose other items, in silver, crystal or china, planned to enhance the new home. Modern brides often select their favorite patterns in silver, china and glassware at a specific jewelry store or gift shop, where a bridal consult keeps a careful list of items wanted by the bride. Then friends may consult the list and find out what things already have been sent, which are still needed to complete the list. This avoids duplication, and the embarrassing necessity of exchanging gifts after the wedding.

The bridal couple, also have some gift obligations. The groom customarily gives the bride a wedding gift of a piece of jewelry, while her gift to him may be cuff-links, studs or a watch—or perhaps a gift connected with his favorite hobby.

The bride also gives her bridesmaids some small identical gifts of sentimental value, while the groom gives best man and ushers some gifts of lasting value, personally inscribed, if possible. Frequent gifts of this sort are cigarette lighters or cases, cuff links, etc.

Pound Cake With Orange Sunshine Filling

2 tblspoons butter or margarine
1½ tablespons flour
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
¾ cup orange juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk, beaten
1 small loaf pound cake
Walnut Sauce

Melt butter in a sauce pan. Blend in flour. Add sugar, orange rind, orange juice and salt. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Gradually add small amounts of hot mixture to beaten egg yolk until both are combined. Cook for an additional two minutes, stirring constantly. Place between 2 layers of pound cake. Serve with Walnut Sauce.

Apple-Mint Jelly Superb With Meat

Mint flavor just naturally goes with lamb, doesn't it? So your family is going to enjoy Apple-Mint Jelly with hot roast lamb, cold sliced lamb, lamb chops. Looks wonderfully gay, too, served as a sparkly green garnish on orange slices set around the meat.

But there's more! The lively mint taste also glorifies pork or ham, lends zest to chicken or duckling, steps up beef and veal. Apple-Mint Jelly likewise belongs in the snack department ... as a jolly jelly with crackers and cream cheese.

Make apple-mint jelly yourself—and use apple juice . . . that juice that's been pressed from deliciously crisp apples . . . hurried into cans and bottles . . . and handy at any grocery store. Thanks to ready-to-go apple juice, this jelly is triflin' simple to put together.

And easy it certainly is . . . one, two, three and the jelly can be poured into glasses to set. It'll turn out tender, quivery, invitingly green in color . . a real-perker-up for family and company meals.

Apple-Mint Jelly

2 cups apple juice; 3½ cups sugar; 5 drops green vegetable coloring; ½ cup liquid pectin, ½ teaspoon spearmint extract.

Measure juice into large sauce pan. Add sugar and mix well. Place over high heat; bring to full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Add enough green vegetable coloring (about 5 drops) to give the desired color. Quickly add pectin and extract. Bring to full rolling boil; boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly into jelly glasses. Paraffin at once. Yields about 5 six-ounce glasses. (note: Let jelly stand several days before serving.)

Valuable Meat Nutrition Thriftily Furnished By Beef

Meat is one of our most valuable foods, and beef is one of the best-liked meats. At today's prices there is beef for every budget from sirloin steak to chuck beef for stew. Record numbers of cattle have reduced beef prices phenomenally at the meat counter, as any marketing housewife knows.

Perhaps the majority of people value meat because it is their favorite main dish food. But the most important thing about meat is its nutritional values. Meat is an important source of protein. It has been referred to as a yardstick of protein foods.

Complete Protein Sustains Life

Protein is composed of substances known as amino acids. ten are essential. Meat contains all ten of these that the human body must have to replace tissues that constantly are wearing out. When we know that without protein it is impossible to sustain life, the importance of meat is realized.

Besides being an excellent source of high quality complete protein, meat offers the important B vitamins and essential minerals, iron and copper for good red blood, and phosphorus, another nutritional essential. Not the least of the good qualities of meat is the fact that it is 96 to 98 per cent digestible.

Need For Knowledge of Beef Cuts

With the present supplies of beef in the market at such low prices, the housewife who will save best on her meat budget is the one who knows a variety of beef cuts. With this knowledge she can achieve an interesting variety of main dishes cooked by different methods, and can take advantage of the very low prices for the less known cuts of beef.

The wise housewife will serve steak and roast beef at these low prices. But she will also serve other cuts at even lower prices. Rib roasts and steaks account for only 26 per cent of a side of beef. The other 74 per cent consists of cuts just as good in nutrition and in flavor, but fewer people know how to order and cook them. An excellent, less known beef cut is brisket which may be simmered for a boiled beef dinner. Heel of round, rump and chuck make fine, thrifty pot roasts with the same nutrition as steaks or roast beef. Short ribs of beef are a less known cut, delicious braised with vegetables.

Beef liver can be ground and mixed with bread crumbs and seasonings for a meat loaf that is different and economical. This is a thrifty way of fulfilling the recommendation that liver be included in the diet once a week.

Recipes for the less known cuts are included with this article to help the housewife take full advantage of the low priced beef at market.

Braised Oxtails

2 oxtails (1¼ pounds each); ¼ cup flour; 2 tablespoons lard; 2 bouillon cubes; 2½ cups water; 2 tablespoons tomato paste; 2 tablespoons vinegar; 2 tablespoons sugar; 2 teaspoons salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg; Bay leaf; 1 cup chopped carrots; 1 cup chopped onions.

Have oxtails cut into 1½-inch pieces. Trim off excess fat. Roll pieces in flour until well coated. Heat fat in Dutch oven or deep floured meat in it until richly kettle. When hot slowly saute floured meat in it until richly browned on all sides, about 1 hour. Add bouillon cubes dissolved in water, tomato paste, vingear, sugar, salt, pepper, nutmeg, bay leaf and vegetables. The chopped vegetables will cook to a puree to make a flavorful gravy. Cook and simmer over very low heat about 3½ hours, or until tender. Serve with wide egg noodles. Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

BEEF BRISKET WITH HORSERADISH SAUCE

Select a three or four-pound piece of fresh beef brisket. Cover with hot water. Season with salt and pepper. Cook at a simmering temperature three to four hours or until tender. Serves 3 to the pound.

Horseradish sauce

A tablespoon butter; 1 tablespoon flour; 1 cup milk; ½ cup horseradish; 1 tablespoon lemon juice; Salt; Pepper.

Melt butter and add flour. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Drain roseradish, combine with lemon juice, seasonings, and pimiento. Add to sauce. Serve hot with brisket of beef.

Let 'Em Eat Beef

Your budget probably has been benefiting from our plentiful supplies of beef. Your family can go right on enjoying this favorite meat this spring at prices considerably below last year's.

For a springtime dinner, what could taste better than a fine, tender oven roast of beef, new potatoes doused in chive butter, and fresh asparagus? But take advantage, too, of the thriftier less tender cuts of beef that need braising and use them for pot roast.

If you want your pot roast to take on party airs, serve it as pictured here, with buttered noodles flavored with caraway seeds. One or two tomatoes, quartered and broiled or lightly sauteed in a little butter or margarine, will make a pretty garnish for the platter. Or open some of your homemade preserves such as crabapples, pickled peaches or pears, and let them fancy up the meat.

An arm or round-bone (chuck) pot roast, with an ample marbling of creamy white fat, will make a delicious beef meal. Rub the meat with seasoned flour and brown it slowly and thoroughly in a tablespoon or two of fat in a heavy skillet or kettle that has a tight-fitting cover — you'll need to cover the meat later on. Allow plenty of time for the browning, using moderately low heat; this process will take at least half an hour, so don't get impatient.

When the meat is the color that starts the taste buds working, slip a rack under it and add about a cup of bouillon or tomato juice. You may also add a bay leaf — but no more than one, or the flavor of the herb will be too dominant. Some cooks also like to cut a small onion in thin strips and add it, too. Cover and simmer until fork-tender — two to three hours — but remember that simmering doesn't mean boiling.

When the pot roast is done, remove the meat to a hot platter. Skim off any excess fat from the liquid in the pan. The liquid may be strained, or just the bay leaf (if it is used) removed, and served as is for "natural" gravy.

Another way to treat a pot roast is to cook it sweet-and-sour. Serve slices of the roast with its sauce over hot fluffy rice, add a cooked green or yellow vegetable, and you'll have a hearty main course.

SWEET-SOUR POT ROAST

Ingredients: 3½ pounds pot roast of beef, 2 tablespoons fat, ½ cup water, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 bay leaf, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cider vinegar, 3 tablespoons catchup, ⅓ cup raisins (rinsed in hot water).

Method: Brown beef well in fat. Add water, onion, salt and bay leaf. Cover and simmer 1 hour. Add brown sugar, vinegar, catchup and raisins. Cover and continue to simmer 1½ hours or until fork-tender. Skim excess fat from gravy if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The word blimp dates back to World War I when England built a certain type of small non-rigid airship called the B-limp, which quickly became blimp.

When the Revolutionary war ended, the United States was composed of a land and water area totaling 892,135 square miles.

Canned Tomato Aspic Is Unique Food Development

Latest canned tomato aspic contains a new type pectin which gels faster than ever before and has additional unique characteristics. Scientifically termed "low methoxyl pectin" (a modified citrus type), this one gels with almost no cooling and holds its shape at room temperature. It has excellent texture and is completely neutral in taste. It neither absorbs nor modifies the mest delicate flavor of any food with which it is used.

Canned tomato aspic made with citrus pectin can be liquefied by heat and regelled at about 130 degrees F., practically without cooling. Thus, salads made from it will not melt at even the highest room temperatures. This quality makes it popular with homemakers who prefer to serve food buffet-style. It never requires refrigeration — a real boon during the summer when refrigerator space is at a premium Canned tomato aspic is quick too — it can be liquefied, other salad ingredients added to it, and it will reset in a matter of minutes at room temperature.

This new development in the food industry is being produced now under several different brand names — each the creation of its producer. Each is a nationally known packer of quality tomato products and as they are in widely diversified areas, distribution of canned tomato aspic is very wide.

Ready to serve just as it comes from the can, this tomato aspic also lends itself to a variety of salads which are easy on the cook and can be prepared in a hurry. Here are some favorite tested recipes. Others will occur to time-saving cooks who try the new aspic.

Canned Tomato Aspic Crabmeat Buffet Mold

Canned tomato aspic holds up so well at room temperature that it is perfect for buffet supper parties. Perfectly delicious too, when molded with crabmeat — and simple to prepare ahead of time!

Aspic-Crabmeat Mold

6 cans tomato aspic
2 cups flaked crabmeat (2 6½-oz. cans)
2 teaspoons lemon juice, fresh, frozen or canned
2 cups chopped celery
8 stuffed olives, sliced
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon salt
6 deviled egg halves

Place aspic in large saucepan and heat gently until melted. Pour about 1½ cups melted aspic in bottom of oiled 2 quart mold and allow to cool slightly. In a bowl mix together crabmeat, lemon juice, celery, stuffed olives, mayonnaise and salt. Add about 1½ cups melted aspic to crabmeat mixture and mix well. Carefully spoon crabmeat mixture over aspic layer in mold. Pour remaining melted aspic over crabmeat to form a clear aspic layer. Chill. Unmold on decorative platter or chop plate, garnish with deviled egg halves and lemon wedges. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 12.

Cake For Desserts

Frozen Apricot Shortcake

1 (No. 2½) can peeled apricot halves or 1¼ cups apricot pulp
1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon apricot juice or cold water
1 egg
⅓ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 layer pound cake, 1 inch thick

Drain apricot juice from apricot halves. Mash apricots to a pulp with a fork then heat in saucepan. Soften gelatin in apricot juice, then dissolve in hot apricots. Cool apricot mixture. Beat egg until foamy, add sugar and vanilla and beat again. Whip cream and combine with egg mixture. Cut pound cake to fit bottom of a deep refrigerator tray. Spread apricot mixture over cake, cover with whipped cream mixture. Freeze in refrigerator tray, using coldest control, until firm. Slice into 6 portions when serving.

Yield: 6 servings.

Peach Meringue Pudding

3 cups cake cubes, ½ inch
1 cup peach slices
1 package vanilla pudding
1 pint peach juice plus milk to fill measure
2 tablespoons corn sirup
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 tablespoon chopped walnuts

Place half of cake cubes in the bottom of a 1½ quart casserole. Pour peaches over cake and cover with rest of cake cubes. Prepare vanilla pudding according to directions on package, using peach juice as liquid. Pour pudding over cake and peaches in casserole. Beat sirup into stiffly beaten egg whites. Spread meringue over pudding and sprinkle with nuts. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) for fifteen minutes, or until brown.

Yield: 8 servings.

DON'T EASE HIS PATH

WHEN you are on the defense, you have to keep your eyes open to avoid helping the declarer. While seeking tricks for your own side, it is just as important to make sure, if possible, that you don't develop them for him. Sometimes the cashing of one of your own tricks—which you otherwise could surely take later—will enable him to have available a winner he could not establish for himself. You of course don't wish to do that and ease his path.

At both tables of a team game the bidding went exactly like that shown. The result of the deal depended therefore on the play. Each South led his diamond K. One of them, however, followed it with his A, whereas the other shifted to the club K, when he saw the diamond Q in the dummy. That difference beat the contract at the second table whereas it was made at the first.

The successful defense followed up the club K shift with the 7 to the Q and then the A, which forced the dummy to ruff in order to win the trick, thereby removing a vital entry from the dummy. That hapless declarer then led a diamond to the J and A, to establish the Q. The heart 7 came back to East's A. He led the spade 7 to the Q and brought forth the diamond 9, which North ruffed and the closed hand overruffed. With no way now to reach dummy and use the diamond Q to discard his losing heart, East had to drop one there for the setting trick.

Where South followed his diamond K with the A, the Q was set up immediately. South then shifted to his club K and the 7 to the Q. North sensed the need of building a heart trick, so returned his Q, which the K won. Now East led his club J and ruffed it with dummy's spade 2. The diamond Q was ruffed by North and over-ruffed. The spade A and 8 to the Q cleared trumps, whereupon the diamond 9 furnished a discard of the heart 6. A heart to the A and two good trumps then completed the contract for the fortunate declarer.

Canned Tomato Aspic Is Unique Food Development

Latest canned tomato aspic contains a new type pectin which gels faster than ever before and has additional unique characteristics. Scientifically termed "low methoxyl pectin" (a modified citrus type), this one gels with almost no cooling and holds its shape at room temperature. It has excellent texture and is completely neutral in taste. It neither absorbs nor modifies the mest delicate flavor of any food with which it is used.

Canned tomato aspic made with citrus pectin can be liquefied by heat and regelled at about 130 degrees F., practically without cooling. Thus, salads made from it will not melt at even the highest room temperatures. This quality makes it popular with homemakers who prefer to serve food buffet-style. It never requires refrigeration — a real boon during the summer when refrigerator space is at a premium Canned tomato aspic is quick too — it can be liquefied, other salad ingredients added to it, and it will reset in a matter of minutes at room temperature.

This new development in the food industry is being produced now under several different brand names — each the creation of its producer. Each is a nationally known packer of quality tomato products and as they are in widely diversified areas, distribution of canned tomato aspic is very wide.

Ready to serve just as it comes from the can, this tomato aspic also lends itself to a variety of salads which are easy on the cook and can be prepared in a hurry. Here are some favorite tested recipes. Others will occur to time-saving cooks who try the new aspic.

Canned Tomato Aspic Crabmeat Buffet Mold

Canned tomato aspic holds up so well at room temperature that it is perfect for buffet supper parties. Perfectly delicious too, when molded with crabmeat — and simple to prepare ahead of time!

Aspic-Crabmeat Mold

- 6 cans tomato aspic
- 2 cups flaked crabmeat (2 6½-oz. cans)
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice, fresh, frozen or canned
- 2 cups chopped celery
- 8 stuffed olives, sliced
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 deviled egg halves

Place aspic in large saucepan and heat gently until melted. Pour about 1½ cups melted aspic in bottom of oiled 2 quart mold and allow to cool slightly. In a bowl mix together crabmeat, lemon juice, celery, stuffed olives, mayonnaise and salt. Add about 1½ cups melted aspic to crabmeat mixture and mix well. Carefully spoon crabmeat mixture over aspic layer in mold. Pour remaining melted aspic over crabmeat to form a clear aspic layer. Chill. Unmold on decorative platter or chop plate, garnish with deviled egg halves and lemon wedges. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 12.

Cake For Desserts

Frozen Apricot Shortcake

- 1 (No. 2½) can peeled apricot halves or 1¼ cups apricot pulp
- 1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
- 1 tablespoon apricot juice or cold water
- 1 egg
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 layer pound cake, 1 inch thick

Drain apricot juice from apricot halves. Mash apricots to a pulp with a fork then heat in saucepan. Soften gelatin in apricot juice, then dissolve in hot apricots. Cool apricot mixture. Beat egg until foamy, add sugar and vanilla and beat again. Whip cream and combine with egg mixture. Cut pound cake to fit bottom of a deep refrigerator tray. Spread apricot mixture over cake, cover with whipped cream mixture. Freeze in refrigerator tray, using coldest control, until firm. Slice into 6 portions when serving.

Yield: 6 servings.

Peach Meringue Pudding

- 3 cups cake cubes, ½ inch
- 1 cup peach slices
- 1 package vanilla pudding
- 1 pint peach juice plus milk to fill measure
- 2 tablespoons corn sirup
- 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- 1 tablespoon chopped walnuts

Place half of cake cubes in the bottom of a 1½ quart casserole. Pour peaches over cake and cover with rest of cake cubes. Prepare vanilla pudding according to directions on package, using peach juice as liquid. Pour pudding over cake and peaches in casserole. Beat sirup into stiffly beaten egg whites. Spread meringue over pudding and sprinkle with nuts. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) for fifteen minutes, or until brown.

Yield: 8 servings.

DON'T EASE HIS PATH

WHEN you are on the defense, you have to keep your eyes open to avoid helping the declarer. While seeking tricks for your own side, it is just as important to make sure, if possible, that you don't develop them for him. Sometimes the cashing of one of your own tricks—which you otherwise could surely take later—will enable him to have available a winner he could not establish for himself. You of course don't wish to do that and ease his path.

Salad Ring Mold For Spring Lunch

It's spring again — and at this season we look forward to new foods on the table, to a new look in party refreshments.

The gelatin mold is a perennial for family meals and parties — but in spring, it arrives in a light and gay and exciting dress, like the Salad Ring Mold. This handsome mold, with its cream and mayonnaise base, is enlivened with chopped green pepper, chopped celery, pimiento and onion.

Mayonnaise has been blended into every bite of the mold, contributing both to flavor and consistency. This basic dressing finds delicious use everywhere in the salad repertory, not only as it is, but in a thousand and one variations

Young and tender lettuce leaves were chosen to fill the center of the mold. Serve this gelatin ring for luncheon with a clear hot bouillon and melba toast; or at dinner, accompany with slices of baked ham and hot corn muffins, topping the menu with a strawberry rhubarb pie.

Salad Ring Mold

1 envelope gelatin; ½ cup cold water; ½ cup cream; ½ cup mayonnaise; ½ cup chopped green pepper; ¼ cup chopped pimiento; 1 cup chopped celery; ¼ teaspoon finely chopped onion; ¾ teaspoon salt; lettuce.

Soften the gelatin in the cold water; dissolve over hot water. Gradually add the cream to the mayonnaise. Add the gelatin and combine well. Chill until slightly thickened. Add the remaining ingredients except the lettuce. Pour into a 6½-inch ring mold and chill until firm.

Unmold on lettuce on a salad platter and fill the center with tiny lettuce leaves.

Poland is quietly stepping up its persecution of the Jews, a la Hitler. The Poles have set up a "special bureau for registering the Polish population of Jewish origin," which is rounding up the Jews and throwing them into labor camps in the Bialystok district . . . . Secretary of Commerce Weeks and his undersecretary in charge of transportation, Robert Murray, have been talking over long-range plans to abolish the Interstate Commerce Commission. They say the railroads are overregulated, and want to take over ICC functions themselves. . . . . The closed-door testimony hasn't been released, but Army Chief of Staff General Collins put the finger on the Defense Department's budget boss, Assistant Secretary W. J. McNeil, as the man chiefly responsible for the ammunition shortage. Collins read into the record a 1951 memo by McNeil, ordering the Joint Chiefs to assume the Korean War would end within six months for budget and planning purposes. The Joint Chiefs formally protested, but McNeil got then-Secretary of Defense Lovett to back him up. As a result, the Joint Chiefs weren't allowed to figure their ammunition needs for more than six months in advance. Actually, the BBC is not government-operated; it is a private corporation operated under charter of the House of Commons, quite a different thing entirely. The chief difference is that a small group of —lets face it—highbrows determine what the British shall and shall not see and hear. It is a tyranny of good taste which in many ways is as inherently dangerous as our own tyranny of the rating systems or popular demand.

Frankly, I think we are both wrong and that we should profit from each other's systems. It wouldn't do American television a bit of harm to have some of its programs directed toward the top cultural level of the country—in short, programs which a body of expert opinion feels the American people ought to see rather than just those programs the Americans want to see. And conversely I feel that competition would not always operate as Sir William Haley says it would; that commercial television, crass as it frequently is, might stimulate the BBC rather than extinguish it. The experts can be wrong.

$8.50 FOR THOSE 16 YELLOW CAPSULES?

Yes, we've heard this question more than once, you can be sure, since the new wide-range antibiotics were discovered and found to be so effective in the treatment of dozens of diseases.

Strangely enough, however, these dramatic "wonder drugs" often save you money, proving that expensive medicine is often cheap therapy.

Not too many years ago, a case of pneumonia was not only serious, but costly. With no specific drugs to help the body to combat this infection, pneumonia often had to run its course—pass the crisis—and be followed by a rather lengthy period of recuperation.

Today's broad-spectrum antibiotics usually are quickly effective against most organisms causing pneumonia, give prompt response in lowering the temperature, and effect cures in a matter of days. Hospitalization is often avoided, repeated calls by your busy physician are minimized—and you are back on the job again sooner without a loss in pay.

Time and again it has been proved that antibiotics save you money in the long run.

American Navy Drops Old "Tradition" Of Scrapping Ships After Major Wars

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The United States Navy today is following a new and startlingly different pattern, scuttling a "tradition" that has persisted since the Revolutionary war.

This was the "tradition" which seemed to call for scuttling of a large proportion of the nation's floatilla after each major war in which the United States participated, to the point where in the years immediately following its greatest strength, the country often was rendered largely impotent on the high seas.

After World War II it has been different. United States naval power today tops the combined fleets of the world, and the margin of its supremacy never has been greater.

It has approximately 400 major ships in commission, and a total of 1,500 ships of all types in active service, including 1,200 auxiliaries. At latest count there were 16 battleships, 27 large aircraft carriers, 78 other carriers, 69 cruisers, 579 destroyers, and 175 submarines.

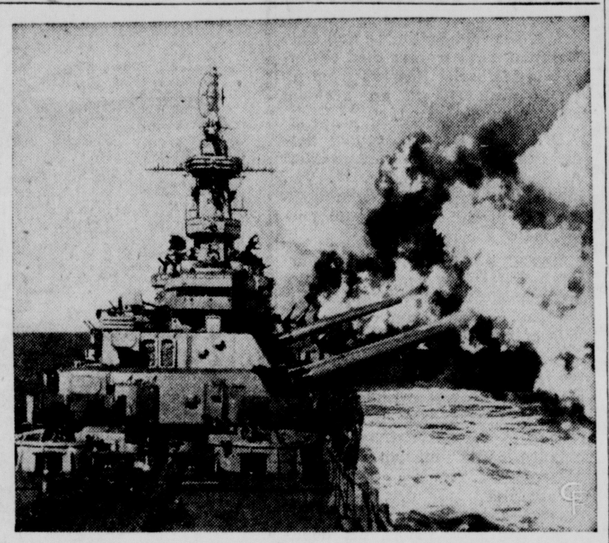
Britain, once undisputed ruler of the waves, still is second strongest with five battleships, six large carriers, seven other carriers, 25 cruisers, 278 destroyers, and 68 submarines.

This is a far cry from the summer of 1775, when Silas Deane, John Adams and John Langdon earned the distinction of being "Fathers of the Navy" by outfitting two Continental warships in Boston harbor. The youthful nation quickly demonstrated its aptitude for sea fighting, however, when by the end of the Revolutionary war it had 64 warships.

Incomprehensibly, all immediately were sold or scrapped so that when the nation adopted the Constitution it had no navy at all. Washington's scratch of the pen launched a building program of six famous frigates, one of them the Constitution which became "Old Ironsides."

The traditional scuttling of the Navy after each triumphant era was continued after the War of 1812, which had been marked by a series of brilliant American naval victories.

The federal Navy was completely inadequate at the start of the Civil war, but the building of the Monitor, the ironclad "Yankee cheesebox on a raft," turned the tide. After fighting ceased, however, the Navy again was cut adrift.



The battleship Missouri fires a salvo. This big battlewagon and other powerful weapons developed during World War II have been retained.

Not so today, because a big building program is under way to lengthen the already overwhelming lead of the United States fleet through starting construction on a mammoth 60,000-ton aircraft carrier in each of the next 10 years, as well as the current building of two atomic-powered submarines.

The A-submarines, representing the unfolding of "the Navy of the Future," are compared by Navy men with other milestones of Uncle Sam's advancement as a sea power, including the building in 1844 of the Princeton, the first screw steam war vessel ever constructed, and the launching in 1884 of the Dolphin, the first ship of the new steel fleet that lived up to expectations in the Spanish-American war.

The atom subs also are a dynamic answer to the most persistent challenge existing today—the 360 submarines believed to be the core of the third-place Russian navy. That is five times the number of Hitler's U-boats at the start of World War II.

Fourth and fifth ranking naval powers are France and Italy, who trail the leaders by a wide margin. Most of the world's 40 navies are relatively puny forces, although Australia cuts a figure in the South Pacific with its one carrier and three cruisers, and Sweden makes a cheeky challenge to Russia's naval might in the Baltic.

Missing from the roster of ranking naval powers, of course, are the Germans and Japanese who have made ambitious but abortive bids in the last half century.

Return last year of Helgoland to West Germany revived some hopes for Reich naval development.

Japan's naval comeback ironically is tied to the 68 warships lent to her last November by an Uncle Sam who has so many ships he can afford to be generous with them. France, with a gift of 44 dredges and 118 sub-chasers, also has benefited from extra American ships.

Tornadoes in the United States occur oftenest from March through June between 4 and 7 p. m. The peak danger area in the world for tornadoes is in the southern and midwestern United States.

Potomac River Flow Is Below Normal In April

The mean daily flow of the North Branch Potomac River at Cumberland during April was 2,090 cubic feet per second according to a monthly report by Robert M. Beall, engineer in charge of the local office of the Geological Survey, U. S. Department of the Interior.

The mean flow, 1,351 million gallons a day, was 10.5 per cent below normal for April. The normal flow is based on 18 years record.

Beall said the flow varied between 1,040 cubic feet per second on April 30, and 4,800 cubic feet per second on April 11.

The local engineer pointed out that seasonal storage behind Savage River Dam caused an average decrease of 166 cubic feet per second or 5.6 per cent of the flow in the Potomac River at Cumberland.

Ooutlook for runoff during May shows that under normal conditions of rainfall, the average runoff of the Potomac River at Cumberland is expected to be close to the 18-year normal for May, which is 1,593 cubic feet per second.

Under adverse conditions of little or no rainfall, the flow is expected to be about 500 cubic feet per second or 31 per cent of normal. Minimum flow will be affected by any release of water from the Savage River Dam.

Total precipitation at Cumberland, as reported by the Weather Bureau, was 3.08 inches, 0.20 inches below normal. The Average daily temperature for April was 52.6 degrees or 0.5 degree above normal.

REDS REPORTED WITHDRAWING—Curved arrows (1) indicate where sizable Communist-led Vietminh units were reported pulling back yesterday from the heart of Laos after overrunning more than a third of the Indo-Chinese kingdom. In Thailand (2), government officials were reported reinforcing a long string of police posts (open arrows) along the country's northern border, where Indo-Chinese refugees are being moved back to new locations deep in west and northwest Thailand.

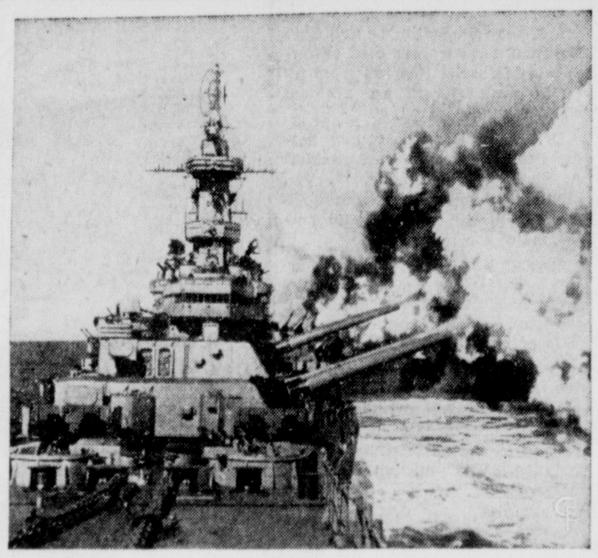
The federal Navy was completely inadequate at the start of the Civil war, but the building of the Monitor, the ironclad "Yankee cheesebox on a raft," turned the tide. After fighting ceased, however, the Navy again was cut adrift.



The battleship Missouri fires a salvo. This big battlewagon and other powerful weapons developed during World War II have been retained.

Not so today, because a big building program is under way to lengthen the already overwhelming lead of the United States fleet through starting construction on a mammoth 60,000-ton aircraft carrier in each of the next 10 years, as well as the current building of two atomic-powered submarines.

The A-submarines, representing the unfolding of "the Navy of the Future," are compared by Navy men with other milestones of Uncle Sam's advancement as a sea power, including the building in 1844 of the Princeton, the first screw steam war vessel ever constructed, and the launching in 1884 of the Dolphin, the first ship of the new steel fleet that lived up to expectations in the Spanish-American war.

The atom subs also are a dynamic answer to the most persistent challenge existing today—the 360 submarines believed to be the core of the third-place Russian navy. That is five times the number of Hitler's U-boats at the start of World War II.

Fourth and fifth ranking naval powers are France and Italy, who trail the leaders by a wide margin. Most of the world's 40 navies are relatively puny forces, although Australia cuts a figure in the South Pacific with its one carrier and three cruisers, and Sweden makes a cheeky challenge to Russia's naval might in the Baltic.

Missing from the roster of ranking naval powers, of course, are the Germans and Japanese who have made ambitious but abortive bids in the last half century.

Return last year of Helgoland to West Germany revived some hopes for Reich naval development.

Japan's naval comeback ironically is tied to the 68 warships lent to her last November by an Uncle Sam who has so many ships he can afford to be generous with them. France, with a gift of 44 dredges and 118 sub-chasers, also has benefited from extra American ships.

Tornadoes in the United States occur oftenest from March through June between 4 and 7 p. m. The peak danger area in the world for tornadoes is in the southern and midwestern United States.

Potomac River Flow Is Below Normal In April

The mean daily flow of the North Branch Potomac River at Cumberland during April was 2,090 cubic feet per second according to a monthly report by Robert M. Beall, engineer in charge of the local office of the Geological Survey, U. S. Department of the Interior.

The mean flow, 1,351 million gallons a day, was 10.5 per cent below normal for April. The normal flow is based on 18 years record.

Beall said the flow varied between 1,040 cubic feet per second on April 30, and 4,800 cubic feet per second on April 11.

The local engineer pointed out that seasonal storage behind Savage River Dam caused an average decrease of 166 cubic feet per second or 5.6 per cent of the flow in the Potomac River at Cumberland.

Ooutlook for runoff during May shows that under normal conditions of rainfall, the average runoff of the Potomac River at Cumberland is expected to be close to the 18-year normal for May, which is 1,593 cubic feet per second.

Under adverse conditions of little or no rainfall, the flow is expected to be about 500 cubic feet per second or 31 per cent of normal. Minimum flow will be affected by any release of water from the Savage River Dam.

Total precipitation at Cumberland, as reported by the Weather Bureau, was 3.08 inches, 0.20 inches below normal. The Average daily temperature for April was 52.6 degrees or 0.5 degree above normal.

Escapees Sought In Area After Fleeing Hospital

Frank Earl Brown Keyser, Fugitive

West Virginia authorities last night were looking for two area men, at least one of them described as dangerous, who broke out of Weston (W. Va.) State Hospital early yesterday.

The men were among nine patients in a ward for the criminally insane who threatened to kill four attendants in order to gain their freedom.

Sought are Frank Earl Brown, 27, of Shaw, Mineral County, and Ralph Eugene Morgart, 37, of Randolph County.

Sheriff Earl Kemp of Mineral County said Brown was committed to Weston by a court after he had threatened to kill several persons. He broke out two years ago, but later was recaptured at Keyser. Kemp said he usually carried a knife or gun.

Brown, Morgart and seven other inmates took Attendant Gilbert Lowther hostage when they made their escape, but released him unharmed after they got outside the security building in which they had been quartered.

Hospital Superintendent H. Sinclair Tait said an inmate called to an attendant at about 2 a. m. to say that another inmate was "having a fit."

When four attendants went to investigate, inmates who had been hiding behind a door grabbed them and threatened to cut their throats if they would not surrender the keys.

Then they locked three of the attendants in the seclusion room and took Lowther with them as a hostage. An inmate in the seclusion room joined in the escape.

The escape party then ordered an attendant to open the electrically controlled front entrance of the building, saying they would kill Lowther if he didn't.

Outside, they freed Lowther.

Dr. Tait said that as far as he knew, none of the escapees was armed, but that one had some sort of hastily-fashioned imitation knife.

Three-Day Blue Ridge Bus Strike Settled

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 7 (AP)—Some 230 drivers and maintenance workers agreed today to end a three-day strike against the Western Division of Blue Ridge Bus Lines.

D. R. Webb, office manager for Blue Ridge, said the workers agreed to accept an eight cent hourly increase retroactive to May 1 and another two cents effective Nov. 1. Other terms were not disclosed. Under the old scale drivers averaged $1.60 an hour.

The workers, members of the AFL Motor Coach Employes, Division 1063, struck Monday and halted service for about 10,000 commuters in Western Pennsylvania, Northern West Virginia and parts of Ohio.

Company officials said service would be restored as soon as possible.

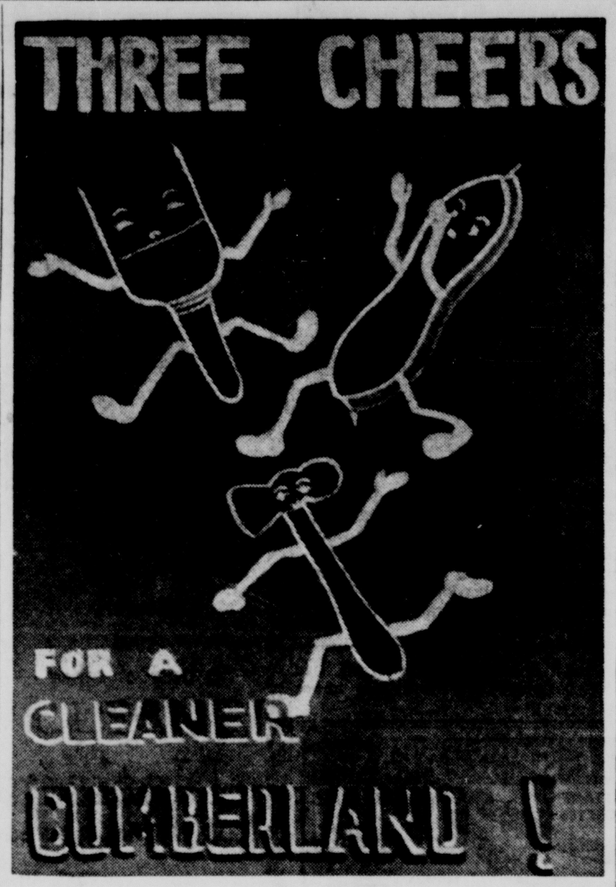
of License Commissioners is determined by the last election for county commissioners, under terms of Senate Bill 276. It provides that two members of the board shall be members of that political party which received the greatest number of votes in the aggregate for county commissioners in the last general election. The third member shall belong to the party receiving the second highest number of votes for county commissioners in the last general election.

All three county commissioners are Republicans following the county's usual tradition.



Winning Poster

The above poster submitted by Janet Taschenberg, Fort Hill High School senior, has been chosen as the official poster for the annual clean-up drive which will be conducted here May 9 through 16 under the auspices of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. The symbols shown in the poster are the "three cheers" that lead to a cleaner, healthier city.

6th Grader Wins Slogan Competition

A sixth grader's slogan, one of hundreds entered in a city-wide school contest, was chosen last night as the official slogan for Clean-Up Week, sponsored by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

The top entry, submitted by Robert Robinette, a student at Johnson Heights School, is:

"If there's a will, there's a way; clean up Cumberland today!"

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, declared that the Robinette entry was considered to be the one that best exemplifies the true nature and purpose of the clean-up campaign.

"It places the responsibility upon the citizens of Cumberland," he said. "It makes clear that if we want to, we can do the job. It puts the burden on each of us — and challenges us to accept the burden."

Saeli pointed out that the annual clean-up observance, to be conducted here May 9 through 16, is essentially educational. Its basic purpose is to remind Cumberlanders that a clean city is a more healthful and beautiful city in which to live."

Three Men Granted Divorces In Court

Three men were granted divorces yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Raymond H. Jones was given a divorce from Audrey M. Jones and was awarded custody of their four infant children. Ralph J. Rice was granted a divorce from Dorothy F. Rice and he was given custody of their infant daughter. James Wayne Dawson was divorced from Mary Esther Dawson and was given custody of their infant child.

Second Boiler Is Being Repaired

A complete overhauling of the boilers which heat the Queen City Station is near completion, according to Charles F. Owens, deputy city smoke inspector.

B. & O. workers about 10 days ago completed repairs on No. 1 boiler but had to halt the program due to a cold snap, since both boilers are needed to provide steam.

Early this week, workers began repairing the second boiler.

Owens said No. 1 boiler is operating satisfactorily and that smoke complaints should drop when both are in good operating condition.

Seeks Wine License

Gladys M. Bloss yesterday filed an application with the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for a beer and wine license on premises near Oldtown.

Data On Water Bonds Sought

The city has received a number of requests from banking firms in Baltimore, New York and Cincinnati for information on the coming sale of $200,000 of Water Improvement Bonds.

Bids on the issue, which will comprise Series A of a $350,000 bond issue authorized in 1949, will be opened by the Mayor and Council Monday afternoon.

The revenue bonds issued by the Water Department have always proved to be good selling issues, according to Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor.

The last water bond issue, which was sold May 15, 1948, bore an interest rate of two per cent but sold at a premium of $100.805 and provided a 1.94 per cent rate of return.

A general city obligation sold at about the same time provided a yield of 2.19 per cent. It was a $700,000 Flood Protection issue sold in 1948.

The high rating of the water revenue bonds results from the fact that they are backed by water revenues plus the full faith and credit of the city.

Should water revenues at any time be insufficient to pay the principal and interest of the bonds, the city must levy on property to make up the difference and increase its water rates so as to prevent a recurrence of the deficiency.

Three equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Floyd Nelson Frizzell, Jr., and Helen Thomasine Frizzell, Emma Brown vs. Edward Brown and Virgie M. Powell vs. Robert M. Powell.

Railroader Dies After Accident

A 43-year-old Baltimore and Ohio Railroad track worker died yesterday in Memorial Hospital from injuries sustained in an accident while working May 1.

Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner, said Earl A. Spriggs, of Magnolia, W. Va., died about 1:40 p. m. from hemorrhage of the brain due to contusions of the brain.

Spriggs was admitted to Memorial Hospital May 1 after a heavy jack under a track rail slipped and its handle struck him on the left side of the neck.

Dr. Deming said Spriggs was working with the jack lifting the track rail near Hansrote, W. Va., when the jack slipped. He was rushed to the hospital by an ambulance. The mishap occurred about 8:20 a. m.

According to Dr. Deming, Spriggs was in good condition until about one hour before his death when he collapsed.

He was a son of the late Boyd E. and Goldie A. (Farris) Spriggs. He was born March 27, 1910.

The "Miss America" pageant originated in 1920 at Atlantic City.

Warrants Issued For Pair After Teen-Age Beer Party

TOWSON, Md., May 7 (AP)—State's Attorney John E. Raine Jr. said today warrants had been issued for two men on charges arising out of a Saturday night beer party attended by hundreds of teen-agers.

"The party," said Raine, "was unquestionably a teen-age orgy and the source of the beer supply is an important factor."

He said one aspect of the continuing investigation of the party involves a large Baltimore brewery which supplied the beer.

Raine would not identify the two men for whom the warrants were issued, but said they are charged with serving an intoxicating beverage to minors and selling without a license.

He said the party, which took place at a swimming club near Granite, was sponsored by a "nebulous fraternity" not affiliated with any academic institution.

A full-scale investigation into the affair was ordered by Juvenile Court Judge J. Howard Murray after a boy and girl, both 16, appeared before him on charges of intoxication.

The two were picked up by police after leaving the party.

Sanitarium Escapees Are Nabbed By Police

ROMNEY — Two Hampshire County men who escaped from the Hopemont Sanitarium at Terra Alta, where they had been sent as trusties from the Huttonsville Medium Security Prison, were recaptured last Friday at Winchester, Va.

They are Teddy Davis Whitacre, 23, of Capon Bridge, and Robert Moran, 19, of Enterprise.

Both men were serving two to 10 years on robbery and larceny charges.

ated here, and plans call eventually for building a great hospital and university near the temple.

The unusual design was the product of Louis Bourgeois, French-Canadian designer of many Gothic churches in France, Canada and the United States, who spent the last 20 years of his life working on it as his masterpiece.

Numerous American architects and builders, however, have contributed to carrying out the details which provide an auditorium seating 1,600 persons.

The building is nine-sided, and features combinations of the digit nine throughout as a symbol of universalist faith. Each side is devoted to one of nine great faiths: Chrisianity, Hinduism, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, Sabaism, Zorastrianism, Babism and Baha'i.

The design also features the Swastika, symbol of ancient religions; the six-pointed star of Judaism, the cross of Christianity, the star and crescent of Islam, and the nine-pointed star adopted by the Baha'is is as symbolic of the coming relgious unity of the human race.

However, the temple defies classification as to architectural type, experts clashing over whether it is dominantly Egyptian, Romanesque, Arabic, Renaissance or Byzantine. This delights the Baha'is, who say that it is none of them; but all put together.

McKeldin Vetoes Assessment Bill, Signs Various Other Measures

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. McKeldin has vetoed a bill to put new property values on the tax books of one-third of each county every year.

The governor said the measure passed by the 1953 General Assembly would "perpetuate inequalities" among taxpayers in each of the state's subdivisions.

The governor said it seemed clear the measure was unconstitutional because the House and Senate passed different versions.

He rejected the bill, however, mainly on the theory it would be a bad revision of the new assessment plan which goes into effect next year.

The Legislative Council proposed and the Legislature adopted changes which would give immediate effect to reassessments made in one-third of Baltimore and one-third of each county every year.

With the bill discarded, new values will be held off the books until the entire subdivision has been reappraised at the end of a three-year cycle.

McKeldin said the whole subject could be reconsidered next year and should be carefully studied by the Legislative Council.

The governor said the measure would have retained objectionable features of the present five-year rotation system which ends at the end of 1953.

By holding off reassessments until the entire subdivision is reviewed, "equality will be preserved," he said. McKeldin added he found nothing in the present law which would prevent assessing new or newly improved property in any year of the cycle.

The governor vetoed 32 bills passed by the 1953 General Assembly, most of them local measures or ones on which he already had indicated his displeasure.

Among bills passed in the General Assembly during the past session and signed Wednesday by Governor McKeldin were:

House Bill 101 — Providing for licensing by the State Health Department of manufacturers and dealers in matresses and related articles at an annual fee of $25.

House Bill 329 — Permitting building and homestead associations to forego dividends on Christmas and vacation club funds but allow dividends on other funds during the same dividend period.

House Bill 608 — Allowing the State Roads Commission to regulate use of land adjacent to roads opening after July 1, 1953.

House Bill 753 — Allowing two days of steeplechase racing a year with parimutuel betting at Fair Hill.

Senate Bill 95 — Sponsored by State Senator Robert B. Kimble of Allegany County — Authorizing $15,200,000 in bonds for capital improvements at state institutions.

Senate Bill 117 — Appropriating for public library use 40 cents for each person in each county and Baltimore City.

Senate Bill 207 — Continuing after the present deadline of June 1, 1953, the maximum motor vehicle weight of 65,000 pounds.

Senate Bill 415 — Amending the laws relating generally to the correctional administration and procedure of the state.

The island of Yap has been ruled by Spain, Germany, Japan and the United States, in control at present by virtue of a United Nations trusteeship.

The average depth of the ocean below sea level is 12,450 feet.

McKeldin Vetoes Assessment Bill, Signs Various Other Measures

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. McKeldin has vetoed a bill to put new property values on the tax books of one-third of each county every year.

The governor said the measure passed by the 1953 General Assembly would "perpetuate inequalities" among taxpayers in each of the state's subdivisions.

The governor said it seemed clear the measure was unconstitutional because the House and Senate passed different versions.

He rejected the bill, however, mainly on the theory it would be a bad revision of the new assessment plan which goes into effect next year.

The Legislative Council proposed and the Legislature adopted changes which would give immediate effect to reassessments made in one-third of Baltimore and one-third of each county every year.

With the bill discarded, new values will be held off the books until the entire subdivision has been reappraised at the end of a three-year cycle.

McKeldin said the whole subject could be reconsidered next year and should be carefully studied by the Legislative Council.

The governor said the measure would have retained objectionable features of the present five-year rotation system which ends at the end of 1953.

By holding off reassessments until the entire subdivision is reviewed, "equality will be preserved," he said. McKeldin added he found nothing in the present law which would prevent assessing new or newly improved property in any year of the cycle.

The governor vetoed 32 bills passed by the 1953 General Assembly, most of them local measures or ones on which he already had indicated his displeasure.

Among bills passed in the General Assembly during the past session and signed Wednesday by Governor McKeldin were:

House Bill 101 — Providing for licensing by the State Health Department of manufacturers and dealers in matresses and related articles at an annual fee of $25.

House Bill 329 — Permitting building and homestead associations to forego dividends on Christmas and vacation club funds but allow dividends on other funds during the same dividend period.

House Bill 608 — Allowing the State Roads Commission to regulate use of land adjacent to roads opening after July 1, 1953.

House Bill 753 — Allowing two days of steeplechase racing a year with parimutuel betting at Fair Hill.

Senate Bill 95 — Sponsored by State Senator Robert B. Kimble of Allegany County — Authorizing $15,200,000 in bonds for capital improvements at state institutions.

Senate Bill 117 — Appropriating for public library use 40 cents for each person in each county and Baltimore City.

Senate Bill 207 — Continuing after the present deadline of June 1, 1953, the maximum motor vehicle weight of 65,000 pounds.

Senate Bill 415 — Amending the laws relating generally to the correctional administration and procedure of the state.

Large Amount Of Rare Germanium Found In Ashes Of Burned Plants

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP) — A young Swiss chemist announced today the discovery of an amazingly large amount of germanium — a rare metal used in modern electronics — in the ashes of burned plant life.

Dr. Hans Brauchli, who conducted hundreds of experiments on the subject at Johns Hopkins University, said he also had extracted germanium from the flue dust in chimneys of wood-working plants.

Germanium is a vital part of the new transistor, the tiny device which performs the functions of the vacuum tube. But the transistor is not much larger than a medicine capsule and, unlike the vacuum tube, it resists shock and moisture, lasts an extremely long time and requires no warmup.

Brauchli said in a statement he had found, after reducing hundreds of samples of vegetation to ash, that the germanium content of the ashes often was as high as five percent.

Coal veins yielding one-tenth of one percent previously were considered a boon.

The 35-year-old Swiss scientist said he also noted that vegetation absorbs germanium carried in water.

He visualized "farming" for germanium in areas where the underground water supply has a high content of the metal, with the plants absorbing the germanium and then being burned so the ashes could be processed.

The processing would involve chemical steps similar to those Brauchli himself developed to remove germanium from coal ash.

A reasonably cheap method of doing this has not been hit upon, Brauchli said, but he thinks a big research organization should look into the possibility of developing one.

Brauchli, a native of Zurich, came to the United States in 1947. He did research at the University of Pennsylvania and Duke University before coming to the Hopkins three years ago under a courtesy fellowship.

HOT PAVEMENT—A burning asphalt truck sends a dark column of smoke skyward and spreads the melting paving material over a highway yesterday after it was set afire in a collision with a gasoline truck on U. S. Route 20 at crossing of Monon Railroad near Michigan City, Ind. Accident forced re-routing of traffic for a day or two.

Three Persons Hurt When Car Strikes Pole

Three persons were hospitalized yesterday after the auto in which they were riding crashed against a power pole on Cumberland Street.

Admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital at 1:15 a. m. were the driver, John F. Cross, 30, of 843 Gephart Drive, who suffered facial lacerations; John Willetts, 42, of 311 Pulaski Street, cuts about the face, head and right ear, and Mrs. Nina Bramble, 37, RD 1, LaVale, jaw injuries and lacerations.

Willets was reported in "fair" condition. Both Cross and Mrs. Bramble, a widow, were listed as satisfactory.

Police said seven sutures were used to close a gash on Willetts' forehead. Investigation is continuing.

Robert Bruce Liller, Keyser, escaped harm Tuesday in a coal truck-car collision along Route 50 on the West side of Cooper Mountain in nearby West Virginia. An Army officer, Major George H. Carlton, his wife and two children were slightly hurt.

According to State Police, Carlton crossed the center line and hit the truck driven by Liller. The injured were treated at Winchester Memorial Hospital. Carlton's address is unknown.

A weekend two-car crash on Route 40 at the Fayette County Home near Uniontown resulted in injury to Cecil G. Dawson, 20, and Yvonne Adams, 17, both of Keyser, and Mrs. Dorothy J. Nixon, 21, Masontown, Pa.

Police said a car operated by Mrs. Nixon's husband, Samuel G., 24, attempted to turn across the highway and collided with Dawson's vehicle.

Dawson suffered a cut above the left eye and the Adams girl sustained a laceration of the chin and abrasions of the face and hands.

Mrs. Nixon was admitted to Uniontown Hospital with multiple abrasions, lacerations of the right knee and shock.

Girl Clerk Charged With Embezzlement

ROCKVILLE, Md., May 7 (AP)—Phyllis Ann Geisberg, 21, Barnesville, Md., a clerk in the Montgomery County Division of Revenue and Disbursements was held under $1,000 bond today for a hearing May 14 on charges of embezzling county tax funds.

She was charged specifically with embezzlement of $133.80 on July 2, 1952.

Acting County Manager Alex K. Hancock said recently that a check of county records showed $546 was unaccounted for.

Amethysts once were thought to prevent drunkenness.

"Peeper" Is Fined

Norman Gale DeWitt, 26-year-old carnival worker from Altoona, was fined $15 following a hearing Wednesday in Police Court on a disorderly conduct charge. He pleaded guilty.

Accused of being a "peeping Tom", DeWitt was arrested early Tuesday on the complaint of Alex F. Schute, 113 Polk Street, who said the man was looking in his kitchen window off an alleyway.

Street Paving Measure Passed At Westernport

Property Owners Help To Pay Cost

WESTERNPORT — Mayor and City Commissioners of Westernport unanimously passed an ordinance requiring property owners to share one-third of the costs of paving any unimproved streets and curbing which the council may deem necessary.

A large delegation of Westernport property owners attended the council meeting in the city hall requesting information on the measure before its second reading at the regular meeting of the commissioners.

Mayor Okey E. Michael explained the ordinance required property owners to share the cost of paving curbs, gutters and streets so ordered by the commissioners with the approval of the majority of the property owners concerned.

The city officials also explained that ordinary repairs to paved streets and curbing would not be shared by owners but that costs for this work would be carried by the town.

Following a question and answer discussion on the proposed measure the bill was read for the second time and passed unanimously by the mayor and commissioners.

Rain Washes Out Highway

MIDLAND—A torrential downpour of rain Wednesday washed out about 500 to 600 feet of the Dan's Rock Road above Midland, according to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

Chapman said the roadway, located above Midland, is being repaired by the County Roads Department. The washout was near the Llewellyn Dairy farm. The full force of Wednesday's heavy rain was centered in the Georges Creek section.

In nearby Bedford County, Pa., rains of similar intensity caused streams to overflow their banks in the Rainsburg area. Other streams came dangerously close to flooding. Road workers hastily reopened ditches along many secondary roads to prevent rocks and dirt from being washed onto the roadways.

Gardeners in hilly sections saw the rain wash their newly-planted crops to such an extent that replanting will be required in many cases.

Hardy County 4-H Clubs Name Officers

Repairs Planned At Camp Pinacle

MOOREFIELD — Robert L. Baker, Fabius, was reelected president of the Hardy County 4-H Clubs, an organization which handles the 4-H Camp Pinacle near Wardensville, at a recent meeting here.

Other officers reelected were Mrs. B. J. McWhorter, vice president, and S. L. Dodd, secretary treasurer.

The organization is composed of directors of the Hardy County Farm Bureau, members of the Farm Women's Council, presidents of the Farm Women's Clubs, 4-H Club leaders, members of the Board of Education, trustees of the Hardy County 4-H Clubs, county superintendent of schools, members of the county court.

Senator R. J. Bean, Mrs. R. E. Fisher and William Clarke were appointed a committee to plan for a permanent organization.

There was a discussion of the immediate needs for the county camp and it was brought out that certain things must be done before the camp can be rented when not in use by the local 4-H groups and other organizations. The dormatories need new roofs, the new dining hall needs paint and toilets and showers must be installed.

Last year the camp was used not only by the 4-Hers and the Moorefield High School football team in fall practice, but was rented by a couple of church groups. More would be interested if the camp was completed.

Since repairs must be done and the indebtedness of $6,800 removed from the camp, a finance committee of Senator R. J. Bean, Ted Burns and Mrs. R. E. Fisher was appointed to make plans for this purpose.

New Well Producing Supply Of Water For Lonaconing

A newly-drilled well at the Koontz Dam which is producing an overflow of 72,000 gallons a day has apparently solved Lonaconing's water problems, the Lonaconing Water Company announced yesterday.

The eight-inch well has been sunk 1,175 feet and the F. V. Carpenter Well Drilling Company has been authorized to continue for another 325 feet, John H. Evans, water company manager, reports. The average depth for a private well is 75 feet.

The well is being sunk into a red formation — called manuch chunk—which geologists say contains an inexhaustible water supply.

Evans said the well site had been drilled before about two years ago to a depth of 248 feet without success but the company decided to give another try and hopes the result will answer the water problem.

Carpenter reported yesterday that if the well overflows as it is at the rate of 3,000 gallons an hour, addition of a pump will provide the town with plenty of water.

Break-Up Of Southern Conference Is Reported Imminent

Large Schools Seeking More Compact Loop

Terps, Mountaineers Favor Pulling Out Of 13-Member Circuit

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 7 (AP)—While Southern Conference school presidents met with athletic directors and faculty chairmen here today on the eve of the annual spring meeting, reports circulated that the long-discussed break-up of the 17-member circuit was imminent.

There have been reports for several years that the larger schools of the conference, which embraces the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, favored pulling out of the sprawling circuit and setting up a more compact organization, better-balanced competitively.

The latest report had North Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest, North Carolina State, Maryland, Clemson, South Carolina, and possibly West Virginia and Virginia forming a new league. Virginia withdrew from the conference many years ago.

Realignment Is Planned

The school heads didn't mention the matter at their three-hour session, but there were indications the midnight oil would burn tonight as men interested in the realignment planned to get together. One of them, who preferred not to be identified, said a statement on the progress of the talks may be issued tomorrow.

At the presidents' closed meeting, presided over by Walter S. Newman, president of Virginia Tech, it became apparent that the Virginia Tech proposal to eliminate all Freshman team competition would be rejected when it is presented to the conference tomorrow.

Newman said there appeared to be a divided opinion among the six presidents in attendance, and he gathered that the proposal would not receive the two-thirds vote required. Rejection would mean no organized competition next season.

The rule allowing freshmen to participate on varsity teams extends only through this spring. Virginia Tech's proposal has no connection with use of Freshmen on varsity teams.

Terps Offer Proposal

Maryland's proposal, under which conference teams would be allowed to take part in extra events approved by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, was discussed but Newman did not venture an opinion as to the sentiments expressed at the meeting.

The proposal, which will be given formally to the conference tomorrow, would make it possible for conference teams to participate in Bowl football games — something present conference rules forbid. Clemson and Maryland drew football suspensions last season for playing in Jan. 1, 1952 football Bowl games.

The Bowl and Freshmen proposals, along with a holdover from last winter's meeting concerning athletic scholarships, head the list of 11 proposals on the agenda tomorrow.

President Ervin Stewart of West Virginia was named chairman of the president's group succeeding Newman.

Unbeaten PVC Teams To Play Games Today

Undefeated Moorefield High School's baseball team will go after its 7th victory in the Potomac Valley Conference when it meets Circleville High's Indians today at Moorefield.

Coach Johnny Paugh's tossers hold a 4-2 decision over the Pendleton county nine.

Capon Bridge, another unbeaten PVC nine, will be angling for its sixth triumph today when it plays a return game with Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. Capon Bridge holds a 12-8 decision over Romney.

Washington Wins, 10-4

CHESTERTOWN, Md., May 7 (AP)—Washington College pulled itself together after a ragged first half to score nine goals after the intermission and hand Lehigh a 10-4 lacrosse beating today.

Only Goalie Bill Russell's noble work in the first two periods kept the Shoremen in the game as they trailed 3-1. Russell made 17 saves during this time, compared with two in the second half.

Washington College bounced back with five markers in the third period and four in the fourth to make it a runaway.

As You Were

In 1927 Beall High School had an undefeated girls basketball team. The coach was Miss Agnes Howat and the player pictured here was the team's leading scoring ace.

This young lady also was a member of Beall's championship team of 1925 and played with the WMI League runners-up the following year when Central nosed out the Frostburgers by a single game. In her junior year she earned a place on the second league all-star team.

The season of 1927, however, was her banner one. Coach Howat's aggregation turned in a 9-0-1 record and the tie contest (27-27) was played with Barton. This sharp-shooting forward rang up a total of 239 points or 60 per cent of the 397 tallies credited to the Beall sextet in league competition.

After capturing the WMI League title, the Frostburg girls went on to defeat Hagerstown High, champions of the Cumberland Valley League, twice.

For her stellar performance as a senior, the star shown here was named captain of the WMI League all-star team of 1927. Three other Beall players earned berths on this sextet, namely, Viola Skidmore, Leolia Cooper and Annice Harriet Evans, Alice Wilson, Gladys Jenkins and Elsie Perdew.

Miss Howat, coach of the 1927 champs, and the high point maker of that team are members of the current Beall High School faculty.

Can you name this bobbed-hair basketball ace of 26 years ago?

University High Wins At Oakland

OAKLAND, Md., May 7—University High School of Morgantown swept its baseball series with Southern High School by defeating the Highlanders here today by the score of 6-1.

After being held on even terms for five innings, Coach Homer Fizer's West Virginia aggregation coupled three hits with a walk and two errors for five runs to sew up the game in the sixth stanza.

Each team was limited to four hits in a well pitched game in which Lambert was returned the victor over Bill Sharpless. Berry of University High and Timmy Sisler of Southern led the hitters with two safeties each. Lambert fanned eight and Sharpless whiffed seven.

Southern plays Kingwood at Oakland, Saturday at 1 p. m., and meets Bruce of Westernport here next Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. Box score:

NFL Is Reported Making TV Deal

Coverage Of Country Seen By 1954 Season

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP)—The National Football League today was reported on the verge of a television deal that would bring play-for-pay gridiron coverage to the entire country starting with the 1954 season.

NFL Commissioner Bert Bell met last Monday with representatives of the 12 league clubs to discuss the television issue. No details of that discussion were released except that the topic had been TV and that the club delegates had gone back home to outline the plan to stockholders and other interested persons.

Today, Hugh Brown, Philadelphia Bulletin sports columnist, wrote: industry, involving a dowry of several million dollars, is reported to be in the matchmaking stage."

The proposal under consideration, the Bulletin columnist said, calls for a full schedule of pro football games on TV on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons—with the 11 league cities (Chicago has two teams) receiving the TV programs except when their own team is at home.

Bridgewater Eagles Whip Shepherd, 5-3

BRIDGEWATER, Va., May 7 (AP)—Bridgewater's Eagles jumped off to a three-run lead in the first inning here today and went on to turn back Shepherd College, 5-3, in baseball.

Shepherd Pitcher Bill Heyser, who yielded only five hits, contributed largely to his own downfall, though his teammates found trouble doing anything with Eagle Hurler John Vance.

Heyser hit Bridgewater Leadoff Man Don Mitchell with a pitched ball to start the first inning fireworks which sewed up the decision for the Eagles.

Bob Thomas followed with a single, Ray Shull sacrificed, and two runs chased across when Charlie Kurtz whacked a one-bagger between third and shortstop. Kurtz himself came home moments later when Heyser's attempted pickoff pitch to second base was wide and rolled into center field.

Touring Pros Pose Problem For Sponsors

Pass Up Tournaments To Play Exhibitions

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today reported the Professional Golfers' Association would invite tournament sponsors to meet here this month to thrash out the problem of touring pros who pass up tourneys for higher-paying exhibitions.

The newspaper said it had been told of the proposed gripe session by Horton Smith of Detroit, PGA president.

Smith's proposal for the third such meeting in a little more than a year, the Post-Dispatch said, followed disclosure that Ben Hogan Sam Snead, Jimmy Demaret and Jack Burke do not intend to play in the Western Open here May 28-31. The four are scheduled to play an exhibition at Kiamesha Lake, N. Y. on the Western dates.

Hord W. Hardin, tournament chairman, said he had appealed to Smith after learning the four stars would not appear in the Western.

The newspaper quoted Smith as saying "my first concern is to cooperate with the Western Golf Association, but unfortunately we (the PGA) have no rules to compel the players to play in a tournament."

While Smith did not say so, the Post-Dispatch said it was implied that the tournament sponsors "could swing a big stick if they joined in country-wide action."

The newspaper further quoted Smith as saying "we're very sorry that some of those who made their reputations and built themselves up in the tournament program now do not support that program."

Homer Decides Game

Witnesses Laud Johnson's Bill To Help Minors

Justice Department Blasted By Marshall

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Sports-minded senators heard dire predictions today on baseball's future unless Congress does something to help.

The Justice Department's anti-trust division got a vigorous going over from the second day in a row, and the senators on a commerce subcommittee listened with obvious sympathy.

Former Sen. Francis J. Myers (D-Pa) foresaw the end of baseball, "reverently referred to as our national pastime," unless Congress passes a law.

George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins of the National Pro Football League, told the committee "you've got to take corrective action against the Department of Justice or they will destroy all sports."

And Al Harroway of Helena, Ark., president of the Cotton States League, told the senators the league he heads has "really suffered" in attendance from the broadcasting of major league games into the territory of his clubs.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) beamed approval as the witnesses poured out laudatory words for a bill he is sponsoring.

Johnson's bill would permit, without fear of anti-trust prosecution, the banning of transmission of major league games into the territory of minor league clubs without their consent.

Johnson's bill applies only to baseball but everyone at the hearing seemed to agree its passage might do something to Justice Department thinking on sports in general.

Break-Up Of Southern Conference Is Reported Imminent

Large Schools Seeking More Compact Loop

Terps, Mountaineers Favor Pulling Out Of 8-Member Circuit

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 7 (AP)—While Southern Conference school presidents met with athletic directors and faculty chairmen here today on the eve of the annual spring meeting, reports circulated that the long-discussed break-up of the 17-member circuit was imminent.

There have been reports for several years that the larger schools of the conference, which embraces the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, favored pulling out of the sprawling circuit and setting up a more compact organization, better-balanced competitively.

The latest report had North Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest, North Carolina State, Maryland, Clemson, South Carolina, and possibly West Virginia and Virginia forming a new league. Virginia withdrew from the conference many years ago.

Realignment Is Planned

The school heads didn't mention the matter at their three-hour session, but there were indications the midnight oil would burn tonight as men interested in the realignment planned to get together. One of them, who preferred not to be identified, said a statement on the progress of the talks may be issued tomorrow.

At the presidents' closed meeting, presided over by Walter S. Newman, president of Virginia Tech, it became apparent that the Virginia Tech proposal to eliminate all Freshman team competition would be rejected when it is presented to the conference tomorrow.

Newman said there appeared to be a divided opinion among the six presidents in attendance, and he gathered that the proposal would not receive the two-thirds vote required. Rejection would mean no organized competition next season.

The rule allowing freshmen to participate on varsity teams extends only through this spring. Virginia Tech's proposal has no connection with use of Freshmen on varsity teams.

Terps Offer Proposal

Maryland's proposal, under which conference teams would be allowed to take part in extra events approved by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, was discussed but Newman did not venture an opinion as to the sentiments expressed at the meeting.

The proposal, which will be given formally to the conference tomorrow, would make it possible for conference teams to participate in Bowl football games — something present conference rules forbid. Clemson and Maryland drew football suspensions last season for playing in Jan. 1, 1952 football Bowl games.

The Bowl and Freshmen proposals, along with a holdover from last winter's meeting concerning athletic scholarships, head the list of 11 proposals on the agenda tomorrow.

President Ervin Stewart of West Virginia was named chairman of the president's group succeeding Newman.

Unbeaten PVC Teams To Play Games Today

Undefeated Moorefield High School's baseball team will go after its 7th victory in the Potomac Valley Conference when it meets Circleville High's Indians today at Moorefield.

Coach Johnny Paugh's tossers hold a 4-2 decision over the Pendleton county nine.

Capon Bridge, another unbeaten PVC nine, will be angling for its sixth triumph today when it plays a return game with Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. Capon Bridge holds a 12-8 decision over Romney.

Tryouts Scheduled In Frostburg Loop

FROSTBURG, May 7 — All 13-year-old boys who were not under contract in the Hot Stove League prior to this year are asked to report at the Frostburg Ball Park Friday at 5:30 p. m. for tryouts.

Washington Wins, 10-4

CHESTERTOWN, Md., May 7 (AP)—Washington College pulled itself together after a ragged first half to score nine goals after the intermission and hand Lehigh a 10-4 lacrosse beating today.

Only Goalie Bill Russell's noble work in the first two periods kept the Shoremen in the game as they trailed 3-1. Russell made 17 saves during this time, compared with two in the second half.

Washington College bounced back with five markers in the third period and four in the fourth to make it a runaway.

As You Were

In 1927 Beall High School had an undefeated girls basketball team. The coach was Miss Agnes Howat and the player pictured here was the team's leading scoring ace.

This young lady also was a member of Beall's championship team of 1925 and played with the WMI League runners-up the following year when Central nosed out the Frostburgers by a single game. In her junior year she earned a place on the second league all-star team.

The season of 1927, however, was her banner one. Coach Howat's aggregation turned in a 9-0-1 record and the tie contest (27-27) was played with Barton. This sharpshooting forward rang up a total of 239 points or 60 per cent of the 397 tallies credited to the Beall sextet in league competition.

After capturing the WMI League title, the Frostburg girls went on to defeat Hagerstown High, champions of the Cumberland Valley League, twice.

For her stellar performance as a senior, the star shown here was named captain of the WMI League all-star team of 1927. Three other Beall players earned berths on this sextet, namely, Viola Skidmore, Leolia Cooper and Annice Harriet Evans, Alice Wilson, Gladys Jenkins and Elsie Perdew.

Miss Howat, coach of the 1927 champs, and the high point maker of that team are members of the current Beall High School faculty.

Can you name this bobbed-hair basketball ace of 26 years ago?

Miss Martha Dillon, now Mrs. Calvin Hinkle, 217 Glenn Street, is the former Beall High star shown here. Mrs. Hinkle has been teaching in the county public schools since 1929. Before joining the faculty at Beall High School she taught at Pine Ridge, John Humbird and LaVale schools. The picture was taken when Martha played on the Beall squad of 1925.

OAKLAND, Md., May 7—University High School of Morgantown swept its baseball series with Southern High School by defeating the Highlanders here today by the score of 6-1.

Touring Pros Pose Problem For Sponsors

Pass Up Tournaments To Play Exhibitions

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today reported the Professional Golfers' Association would invite tournament sponsors to meet here this month to thrash out the problem of touring pros who pass up tourneys for higher-paying exhibitions.

The newspaper said it had been told of the proposed gripe session by Horton Smith of Detroit, PGA president.

Smith's proposal for the third such meeting in a little more than a year, the Post-Dispatch said, followed disclosure that Ben Hogan Sam Snead, Jimmy Demaret and Jack Burke do not intend to play in the Western Open here May 28-31. The four are scheduled to play an exhibition at Kiamesha Lake, N. Y. on the Western dates.

Hord W. Hardin, tournament chairman, said he had appealed to Smith after learning the four stars would not appear in the Western.

The newspaper quoted Smith as saying "my first concern is to cooperate with the Western Golf Association, but unfortunately we (the PGA) have no rules to compel the players to play in a tournament."

While Smith did not say so, the Post-Dispatch said it was implied that the tournament sponsors "could swing a big stick if they joined in country-wide action."

The newspaper further quoted Smith as saying "we're very sorry that some of those who made their reputations and built themselves up in the tournament program now do not support that program."

Homer Decides Game

Witnesses Laud Johnson's Bill To Help Minors

Justice Department Blasted By Marshall

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Sports-minded senators heard dire predictions today on baseball's future unless Congress does something to help.

The Justice Department's anti-trust division got a vigorous going over from the second day in a row, and the senators on a commerce subcommittee listened with obvious sympathy.

Former Sen. Francis J. Myers (D-Pa) foresaw the end of baseball, "reverently referred to as our national pastime," unless Congress passes a law.

George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins of the National Pro Football League, told the committee "you've got to take corrective action against the Department of Justice or they will destroy all sports."

And Al Harroway of Helena, Ark., president of the Cotton States League, told the senators the league he heads has "really suffered" in attendance from the broadcasting of major league games into the territory of his clubs.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) beamed approval as the witnesses poured out laudatory words for a bill he is sponsoring.

Johnson's bill would permit, without fear of anti-trust prosecution, the banning of transmission of major league games into the territory of minor league clubs without their consent.

Johnson's bill applies only to baseball but everyone at the hearing seemed to agree its passage might do something to Justice Department thinking on sports in general.

Eastern Clubs Thump West In Major Leagues

Hold 35 To 24 Edge In Games To Date

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Rain and an open date in the American League schedule gave the trend spotters a chance to observe today that the eastern clubs thumped the West in the first intersectional tests of the Major League season. The margin was 18-14 in the American League and 17-10 in the National.

The smart dash of the youthful Boston Red Sox through the western half of the league was the big surprise. Unlike the muscular men of old who used to batter the handy left field wall at Fenway Park and then fold on the road, the new crop thrived on hotel and pullman living.

George Kell To Return

Lou Boudreau's Sox played ball at a 6-2 clip in the West with George Kell sailing along over the .400 mark and Mel Parnell toting a handsome 4-0 win record. Although Kell missed the last series due to a bad back, he is expected back in the lineup for tomorrow's Fenway date with the New York Yankees.

Brooklyn's success against the western brethren in the National didn't raise an eyebrow. It was as common as a weather forecast of rain. The Dodgers usually fatten up on visitors. This year seems to be no exception. Their margin over the West was a comfortable 6-1, losing one to the transplanted Milwaukee Braves.

Pittsburgh Surprises

The big story of the National's first East-West series was Pittsburgh's fine 5-2 pace. The Pirates, who became an eastern team this year when Boston moved to Milwaukee, hit dizzy heights with a five-game win streak (their best last year was two). In the midst of the excitement, Rookie Carlos Bernier tied a modern big league record with three successive triples.

Both St. Louis and Milwaukee played better than .500 ball in the East (4-2) to dig into first division berths.

Wyrostek Leads League

The Phillies did no better than .500 (3-3) against the West with Robin Roberts (4-1) and Curt Simmons (4-1) clicking at a 20-game pace. Johnny Wyrostek still is leading the league in hitting at .434 and Connie Ryan is right up there among the first 10 with .354. Despite the Phils slow down against the Cardinals, they still lead the league by a half game over Brooklyn.

The New York Giants still are floundering in the second division after a losing stand against the West (3-4) and both Cincinnati (1-6) and Chicago (1-7) are relieved to be getting back to western soil.

In the American, the Red Sox's hot pace left them no better than third, behind the leading New York Yankees, the St. Louis Browns settled down to play .500 ball against the East (4-4). The Philadelphia A's also broke even at 4-4 in the West. Both Chicago and Washington were 4-5, Cleveland 3-4 and Detroit 3-5.

Bergelin Beats Seixas

ROME, May 7 (INS)—Lennart Bergelin of Sweden upset Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4 in the quarter-finals of the Rome tennis championships today.

Meanwhile, Bernard Bartzen of Fort Sill, Okla., defeated Enrique Morea, Argentinan Davis cupper, 6-4, 10-12, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Fuller B. Whitworth qualified for the women's spring golf tournament at the Cumberland Country Club by posting a 102. Four players have qualified for the tourney.

Mayfield Leads At Greenbrier

Hogan, Snead, Cooper Trail By One Stroke

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 7 (AP)—Shelley Mayfield, one of the youthful brigade, stole a march at the start of the 72-hole Greenbrier Open today, but three old pro golfers were only a stroke behind.

The 28-year-old blonde stripling soared to the fore of 41 other pros chasing a $2,000 first prize by shooting 66, four strokes better than par, in the first round.

Looking directly over his shoulder were Sam Snead, playing at home and stalking his third straight triumph in the tourney, Ben Hogan and Pete Cooper.

Five more were bracketed at 68 and another nine at 69 to put 18 of the starting field on the credit side of par 70.

Snead and Hogan shot similar rounds although they found different holes to their liking and disliking. Each canned five birdies and twice carded bogeys on the 6,368-yard course nestled in the Allegheny Mountains. Their cards came out the same, 33-34—67.

Snead is playing with an aching left hand which he injured several weeks ago. It is only the third tournament of the year for Hogan and he is out to bat 1.000, having won the Masters and Pan-American.

Notice to Car Owners

The following is a paragraph from Owners Manuel 1953 issued by Nash Motors Corp.—

"Avoid cut rate gasoline as in many cases these tend to form troublesome gum deposits. Gum tends to impair carburetor operation and may even build up heavy deposits in the intake manifold and on valve stems. Sulphur compounds also found in many cut rate gasolines in excessive quantities tend toward accelerated corrosion"

It is known that inferior properties found in some cut rate gasoline lowers the octane rating of the gasoline.

For your protection it pays to deal at those service stations displaying the placard of the . . .

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, May 6 (INS)—Sometimes it seems most of the country's outstanding athletes come from towns so small they are listed only on the largest maps.

Few ever think of great athletes springing to national fame from the sidewalks of New York. And yet the big town has produced many a star in every line of sport and two of them — Lou Gehrig and Frankie Frisch — even made baseball's Hall of Fame.

The iron-hard New York sidewalks would seem to be the worst possible place to develop a marathoner but our only Olympic marathon winner was a little New York ribbon clerk named Johnny Hayes.

More surprising still, perhaps, is the fact that New York has produced, and still is producing great jockeys although a horse in this town is almost rare enough to be put in a zoo.

One of the current sensations among the smaller fry of the saddle smith fraternity is Charley O'Brien who learned his horsemanship in — of all places — the Bronx section of New York.

Charley who is only 18 and has no trouble making 103 pounds is a rough rider who asks and gives no quarter in a race.

His riding is reminiscent of Eddie Arcaro when that peerless booter was young and thought nothing of knocking a rival over the fence. In fact, Eddie once drew a whole year's suspension for doing that very thing.

Our hero, the aforesaid Charley, is currently sitting out his fifth 10-day suspension this year for what is tactfully called careless riding.

This last was a tough break because, as they say at the track, he was "hotter than a firecracker" when set down. The day he drew the stewards' ire he had ridden three winners at $29.10, $8.70 and $8.10 to the great delight of his large following.

When Charley sees a needle-eye opening in the stretch he goes for it regardless of consequences, a trait which endears him to the punters but is frowned upon in the stewards' stand.

Trainers also must appreciate his skill, courage and daring for last year the Trio Stable paid Eddie Holton $12,000 for the Irish boy's contract. This was one of the highest prices ever paid for an apprentice's contract.

The black-haired youngster got his first job with horses at a riding academy when he was only nine years old and there he worked for five years after school hours and during vacations.

Three years ago he went up to Lincoln Downs where he got a job galloping horses and walking "hots."

At the end of his second high school year Eddie Holton let him gallop his horses for a year and then gave him his first mount in a race. A month later he rode his first winner and he's been red hot ever since.

Trainer Merritt Buxtom — himself a great jockey in his day — says Charley never forgets anything he is told, and never makes the same mistake twice.

Charley says he intends to ride as long as he can and then become a trainer and when asked which jockey's style he copies, he promptly replied: "Charley O'Brien's."

Holloman, No-Hit Star, Has Won 104 Games

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—Rookie Bobo Holloman, who pitched a no-hit game against the Philadelphia Athletics last night, has won nearly twice as many games as he has lost in his eight years of professional baseball.

The St. Louis Browns pitcher's 6-0 victory, coming in his first starting assignment as a major leaguer, was his 104th victory against 58 defeats in regular season play since he broke into pro ball in 1946.

Last season he won 16 and lost seven for Syracuse, including a one-hitter in which he belted a home run for himself, and yielded the fewest base hits in the International League.

Eastern Clubs Thump West In Major Leagues

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Rain and an open date in the American League schedule gave the trend spotters a chance to observe today that the eastern clubs thumped the West in the first intersectional tests of the Major League season. The margin was 18-14 in the American League and 17-10 in the National.

The smart dash of the youthful Boston Red Sox through the western half of the league was the big surprise. Unlike the muscular men of old who used to batter the handy left field wall at Fenway Park and then fold on the road, the new crop thrived on hotel and pullman living.

George Kell To Return

Lou Boudreau's Sox played ball at a 6-2 clip in the West with George Kell sailing along over the .400 mark and Mel Parnell toting a handsome 4-0 win record. Although Kell missed the last series due to a bad back, he is expected back in the lineup for tomorrow's Fenway date with the New York Yankees.

Brooklyn's success against the western brethren in the National didn't raise an eyebrow. It was as common as a weather forecast of rain. The Dodgers usually fatten up on visitors. This year seems to be no exception. Their margin over the West was a comfortable 6-1, losing one to the transplanted Milwaukee Braves.

Pittsburgh Surprises

The big story of the National's first East-West series was Pittsburgh's fine 5-2 pace. The Pirates, who became an eastern team this year when Boston moved to Milwaukee, hit dizzy heights with a five-game win streak (their best last year was two). In the midst of the excitement, Rookie Carlos Bernier tied a modern big league record with three successive triples.

Both St. Louis and Milwaukee played better than .500 ball in the East (4-2) to dig into first division berths.

Wyrostek Leads League

The Phillies did no better than .500 (3-3) against the West with Robin Roberts (4-1) and Curt Simmons (4-1) clicking at a 20-game pace. Johnny Wyrostek still is leading the league in hitting at .434 and Connie Ryan is right up there among the first 10 with .354. Despite the Phils slow down against the Cardinals, they still lead the league by a half game over Brooklyn.

The New York Giants still are floundering in the second division after a losing stand against the West (3-4) and both Cincinnati (1-6) and Chicago (1-7) are relieved to be getting back to western soil.

In the American, the Red Sox's hot pace left them no better than third, behind the leading New York Yankees, the St. Louis Browns settled down to play .500 ball against the East (4-4). The Philadelphia A's also broke even at 4-4 in the West. Both Chicago and Washington were 4-5, Cleveland 3-4 and Detroit 3-5.

Bergelin Beats Seixas

ROME, May 7 (INS)—Lennart Bergelin of Sweden upset Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4 in the quarter-finals of the Rome tennis championships today.

Meanwhile, Bernard Bartzen of Fort Sill, Okla., defeated Enrique Morea, Argentinan Davis cupper, 6-4, 10-12, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Mayfield Leads At Greenbrier

Hogan, Snead, Cooper Trail By One Stroke

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 7 (AP)—Shelley Mayfield, one of the youthful brigade, stole a march at the start of the 72-hole Greenbrier Open today, but three old pro golfers were only a stroke behind.

The 28-year-old blonde stripling soared to the fore of 41 other pros chasing a $2,000 first prize by shooting 66, four strokes better than par, in the first round.

Looking directly over his shoulder were Sam Snead, playing at home and stalking his third straight triumph in the tourney, Ben Hogan and Pete Cooper.

Five more were bracketed at 68 and another nine at 69 to put 18 of the starting field on the credit side of par 70.

Snead and Hogan shot similar rounds although they found different holes to their liking and disliking. Each canned five birdies and twice carded bogeys on the 6,368-yard course nestled in the Allegheny Mountains. Their cards came out the same, 33-34—67.

Snead is playing with an aching left hand which he injured several weeks ago. It is only the third tournament of the year for Hogan and he is out to bat 1.000, having won the Masters and Pan-American.

Notice to Car Owners

The following is a paragraph from Owners Manuel 1953 issued by Nash Motors Corp.—

"Avoid cut rate gasoline as in many cases these tend to form troublesome gum deposits. Gum tends to impair carburetor operation and may even build up heavy deposits in the intake manifold and on valve stems. Sulphur compounds also found in many cut rate gasolines in excessive quantities tend toward accelerated corrosion"

It is known that inferior properties found in some cut rate gasoline lowers the octane rating of the gasoline.

For your protection it pays to deal at those service stations displaying the placard of the . . .

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, May 6 (INS)—Sometimes it seems most of the country's outstanding athletes come from towns so small they are listed only on the largest maps.

Few ever think of great athletes springing to national fame from the sidewalks of New York. And yet the big town has produced many a star in every line of sport and two of them — Lou Gehrig and Frankie Frisch — even made baseball's Hall of Fame.

The iron-hard New York sidewalks would seem to be the worst possible place to develop a marathoner but our only Olympic marathon winner was a little New York ribbon clerk named Johnny Hayes.

More surprising still, perhaps, is the fact that New York has produced, and still is producing great jockeys although a horse in this town is almost rare enough to be put in a zoo.

One of the current sensations among the smaller fry of the saddle smith fraternity is Charley O'Brien who learned his horsemanship in — of all places — the Bronx section of New York.

Charley who is only 18 and has no trouble making 103 pounds is a rough rider who asks and gives no quarter in a race.

His riding is reminiscent of Eddie Arcaro when that peerless booter was young and thought nothing of knocking a rival over the fence. In fact, Eddie once drew a whole year's suspension for doing that very thing.

Our hero, the aforesaid Charley, is currently sitting out his fifth 10-day suspension this year for what is tactfully called careless riding.

This last was a tough break because, as they say at the track, he was "hotter than a firecracker" when set down. The day he drew the stewards' ire he had ridden three winners at $29.10, $8.70 and $8.10 to the great delight of his large following.

When Charley sees a needle-eye opening in the stretch he goes for it regardless of consequences, a trait which endears him to the punters but is frowned upon in the stewards' stand.

Trainers also must appreciate his skill, courage and daring for last year the Trio Stable paid Eddie Holton $12,000 for the Irish boy's contract. This was one of the highest prices ever paid for an apprentice's contract.

The black-haired youngster got his first job with horses at a riding academy when he was only nine years old and there he worked for five years after school hours and during vacations.

Three years ago he went up to Lincoln Downs where he got a job galloping horses and walking "hots."

At the end of his second high school year Eddie Holton let him gallop his horses for a year and then gave him his first mount in a race. A month later he rode his first winner and he's been red hot ever since.

Trainer Merritt Buxtom — himself a great jockey in his day — says Charley never forgets anything he is told, and never makes the same mistake twice.

Charley says he intends to ride as long as he can and then become a trainer and when asked which jockey's style he copies, he promptly replied: "Charley O'Brien's."

Holloman, No-Hit Star, Has Won 104 Games

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—Rookie Bobo Holloman, who pitched a no-hit game against the Philadelphia Athletics last night, has won nearly twice as many games as he has lost in his eight years of professional baseball.

The St. Louis Browns pitcher's 6-0 victory, coming in his first starting assignment as a major leaguer, was his 104th victory against 58 defeats in regular season play since he broke into pro ball in 1946.

Last season he won 16 and lost seven for Syracuse, including a one-hitter in which he belted a home run for himself, and yielded the fewest base hits in the International League.

Freedom Group Will Honor Allegany Student, Teacher

A teacher-student team representing Allegany High School has left for Valley Forge, Pa., where they will be entertained by Freedoms Foundation as the result of Allegany High being proclaimed the winner of a school project on "The American Way of Life."

The couple, Miss Barbara Nicholls, senior, and Miss Mary E. Murray, history and journalism instructor, will make their headquarters in Philadelphia while on the visit, which will feature tours of Valley Forge. While in Philadelphia, Miss Nicholls and Miss Murray will be guests on radio and television programs, sponsored by Freedoms Foundation.

Next Tuesday, Miss Nicholls, accompanied by Miss Murray, will be presented a $100 Freedoms Foundation library award as the winner of a Foundations contest in Maryland. The presentation, to be made by Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, president of the foundation, will take place in Baltimore and will be televised over Station WAAM from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

Miss Nicholls was presented a medal as the representative of the contest-winning school at a Washington's Birthday program at Valley Forge in February. At that time, Miss Marjorie Hutcheson, also a senior at Allegany, was presented a check for $100 and a George Washington Memorial medal for a winning editorial on "The American Way of Life."

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

Heavy Duty

Army spending $87,000,000 for gag overcoats is no more unusual than perspiration on fish. The last time those coats were worn in battle they were made by blacksmiths.

The floggers are too heavy to wear. So $87,000,000 is down the drain unless we capture enough prisoners to wear 'em. The foist principle of self preservation is to foist 'em on the enemy.

Army overcoats haven't been changed since the revolution. They're made out of condemned blankets.

Another idea was to bronze 'em up for statues.

During the seasonal investigation a Senator proposed giving 'em to the Indians for teepees.

The same coat fits everybody. Soldiers have only two sizes: present and absent.

I took one step in an army benny and stopped. The brakes were frozen. At the first inspection the sergeant looked down the collars to see if the coats were occupied.

Finally, Colonel Kinsolving said, "give Baer a smaller coat. I don't like to be stared at through a button-hole."

St. John's Wins Reaccreditation

ANNAPOLIS Md., May 7 (AP)—St. John's College announced today that it has regained accreditation by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondday Schools that was withdrawn from the school in 1936.

An application for reaccreditation was submitted last year but a decision was deferred because of St. John's financial condition.

The college has since announced it was free of debts and the association is now satisfied with the school's financial structure.

President Richard D. Weigle said accreditation "simply recognizes in formal fashion what has long been an established fact — that the St. John's program provides education which graduate schools and most employers hold in high esteem.

"It is unfortunate that the debts and difficulties of older days so long delayed a full recognition of the significance and worth of the present St. John's program.

"Full accreditation of the college will now eliminate many petty annoyances in the paths of St. John's graduates. It should also have a stimulating effect upon the college's enrollment."

St. John's has always had degree granting power under a charter granted by the General Assembly and certification by the State Department of Education.

The Air Corps of the United States Army, established in 1926, disappeared as such in 1947 when, under terms of the National Defense act of 1947, The United States Air Force was established.

Freedom Group Will Honor Allegany Student, Teacher

A teacher-student team representing Allegany High School has left for Valley Forge, Pa., where they will be entertained by Freedoms Foundation as the result of Allegany High being proclaimed the winner of a school project on "The American Way of Life."

The couple, Miss Barbara Nicholls, senior, and Miss Mary E. Murray, history and journalism instructor, will make their headquarters in Philadelphia while on the visit, which will feature tours of Valley Forge. While in Philadelphia, Miss Nicholls and Miss Murray will be guests on radio and television programs, sponsored by Freedoms Foundation.

Next Tuesday, Miss Nicholls, accompanied by Miss Murray, will be presented a $100 Freedoms Foundation library award as the winner of a Foundations contest in Maryland. The presentation, to be made by Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, president of the foundation, will take place in Baltimore and will be televised over Station WAAM from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

Miss Nicholls was presented a medal as the representative of the contest-winning school at a Washington's Birthday program at Valley Forge in February. At that time, Miss Marjorie Hutcheson, also a senior at Allegany, was presented a check for $100 and a George Washington Memorial medal for a winning editorial on "The American Way of Life."

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

Heavy Duty

Army spending $87,000,000 for gag overcoats is no more unusual than perspiration on fish. The last time those coats were worn in battle they were made by blacksmiths.

The floggers are too heavy to wear. So $87,000,000 is down the drain unless we capture enough prisoners to wear 'em. The foist principle of self preservation is to foist 'em on the enemy.

Army overcoats haven't been changed since the revolution. They're made out of condemned blankets.

Another idea was to bronze 'em up for statues.

During the seasonal investigation a Senator proposed giving 'em to the Indians for teepees.

The same coat fits everybody. Soldiers have only two sizes: present and absent.

I took one step in an army benny and stopped. The brakes were frozen. At the first inspection the sergeant looked down the collars to see if the coats were occupied.

Finally, Colonel Kinsolving said, "give Baer a smaller coat. I don't like to be stared at through a button-hole."

St. John's Wins Reaccreditation

ANNAPOLIS Md., May 7 (AP)—St. John's College announced today that it has regained accreditation by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools that was withdrawn from the school in 1936.

An application for reaccreditation was submitted last year but a decision was deferred because of St. John's financial condition.

The college has since announced it was free of debts and the association is now satisfied with the school's financial structure.

President Richard D. Weigle said accreditation "simply recognizes in formal fashion what has long been an established fact — that the St. John's program provides education which graduate schools and most employers hold in high esteem.

"It is unfortunate that the debts and difficulties of older days so long delayed a full recognition of the significance and worth of the present St. John's program.

"Full accreditation of the college will now eliminate many petty annoyances in the paths of St. John's graduates. It should also have a stimulating effect upon the college's enrollment."

St. John's has always had degree granting power under a charter granted by the General Assembly and certification by the State Department of Education.

The Air Corps of the United States Army, established in 1926, disappeared as such in 1947 when, under terms of the National Defense act of 1947, The United States Air Force was established.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS) — The Robert Cummings were packed and all but on their way to the airport for the coronation when Alex Gottlieb flagged Bob for "Marry Me Again," a high, wide and handsome comedy with Marie Wilson as the co-star!

What disappointment the Cummings felt over their lost vacation (Mrs. C. unpacked her lovely coronation gown) was more than made up for when Bob read Gottlieb's original yarn.

"It's the most romantic and funniest picture I've had since 'Princess O'Rourke'," he told me. "And, I've never worked with Marie before although I'm a fan of her's."

The picture starts on the RKO lot June 2 which gives Cummings a chance for another "My Hero" yarn for TV.

Handsome Cesare Sieppe, Metropolitan basso, arrives Saturday to make a test for MGM's "Kismet." Yes, the former Otis Skinner stage hit, which was made into a not-too-successful motion picture some years ago, is being revived as a film musical.

Sieppe, a romantic favorite of many of the ladies, is young and should be a big asset. He is not going to be in "The Student Prince." That calls for a tenor and Vic Damone is still top favorite according to Joe Pasternak, who says Vic will get that plum after he finishes "Hit the Deck."

Universal-International, which boasts a semi-annual dividend of 50 cents per share on its common stock, is going right ahead in the field of 3D and the wide screen.

On May 27, "It Came From Outer Space" will be shown in two theatres. This, as far as I know, is the first time a 3D picture on a wide screen has been shown with glasses. Of course, there is Cinerama but Cinerama is viewed without Polaroid specs.

"It Came From Outer Space" is one of those thrillers that keep you ready to jump out of your seat and run out for air.

Here's a personal note to David Wayne:

Why, David, how could you be so mean to me. I played cards with you last Saturday and you never told me a word that you're going to Broadway this fall for the first time since you left "Mister Roberts," to star in "The Sycamore Tree."

Maybe my game was so bad that you weren't thinking of anything but how many instructions I needed. Anyway, I congratulate you on getting the top role in "The Sycamore Tree," which Alex Guinness is playing in London right now.

P.S.: I congratulate Author Sam Spewack and Producer Jose Ferrer on getting you.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Seven-months-old Richard Hall makes his official photographic debut with his pretty mother, Ruth Roman, on Mother's Day.

You'll like Mervyn Leroy's book, "It Takes More Than Talent," not only if you're in the film business but if you're just a fan.

Peggy Lee is, as you would expect, doing "beeg business" on the night club circuit. She opens May 8 in Montreal.

Alexis Smith and Bill Bowers have done several dinner encores at the Plymouth House. They seem intrigued with each other.

Bob Mitchum is taking Dorothy, his wonderful wife, back to Delaware for a three weeks visit with her family. Does my heart good to see the change in Bob.

Whatever happened to Ilse Bey's plan to marry Hedy Lamarr's ex, Ted Stauffer? She was at the Mocambo with Carlton Alsop.

Also there at the Harry Belafonte opening was Marguerite Chapman, just back from New York. She's ended her long time romance with John Howard, and Cigar Manufacturer Jack Grabosky, of Philadelphia, was her escort.

On May 23 that patriotic girl, Marie Wilson, will be on the corner of Hollywood and Vine selling poppies. It's for Veteran's Day, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

A ROSE AND A KISS FOR MOTHER—Richard Roman Hall, six months old, plants a moist kiss on the cheek of his mother, Actress Ruth Roman, in Hollywood as he presents her with a rose for Mother's Day. The occasion also marks his first appearance before a camera. The baby's father is Mortimer Hall, radio executive.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

High And Outside

Of all the nonsense, getting some dignitary to throw out the first ball to open the Big League baseball season "takes the cake," as the saying used to be in Yonkers when I was a boy. Recently, there was some muttered criticism of General Eisenhower because he decided to go to Augusta for a few days of golf instead of exposing himself to the crowd in Griffith Stadium and heaving out the initial horsehide. He later got a raincheck for the postponed event.

John Wheeler

In the past, there have been some snide cracks about the game of golf as a rich man's pastime and because formerly it was customary to wear what are known as plus fours which are really short pants. That was before they cut the rough as they do today and a snake might sneak up your trousers' leg while looking for a lost ball. It is true at some clubs, you have to be fairly rich to play in style, but, if you will check over the list of competitors, many of the best performers started as caddies. At any rate, participants get some exercise instead of sitting still for three hours, watching managers try to do the thinking for their teams.

Man and boy, I have seen all sorts of stuffed shirts and some flat ones open the season in the traditional manner and never spotted one who could make a high school team. I have heard President Harding was pretty good, and I believed at one time in his career he played first base. I watched Jimmy Walker, when he was mayor of New York, take his windup, and, if he had a stiff head wind, it was even money he wouldn't be able to hit the playing field with his high hard one. Finally, I don't see why the President of the United States should be used to advertise a commercial enterprise in which the club owners and players work for money. It would be as sensible for him to eat some Wheaties as he was doing his stuff.

Here are a few recommendations to improve the performance and a couple which might be applied to other sports. Instead of picking out an official, why not have Arlene Dahl or Lana Turner deliver the first pitch? Then there is the start of the racing season to consider. To inaugurate the opening of the New York tracks, just before the public goes to the abbattoir, known as pari-mutuel windows, why not have some husky gent throw Eddie Arcaro out on the home stretch? And for the women's tennis season, Miss Nancy Chaffee might be tossed on the court. Which wouldn't be a hard job, judging from photographs and a casual acquaintance.

Recently another birthday came along for me, and they certainly rust past fast as the years whiz by. My wife gave me a dark blue bow tie to wear with my dinner coat.

"Sulka claims that is the stylish color nowadays," she explained.

I was puzzled.

"Then why do invitations say 'black tie?'" I asked.

Another birthday note to cheer me up. My daughter writes:

"On Toscanini's 86th birthday, just before he was about to conduct one of the most difficult and beautiful concerts of his career, the members of the NBC orchestra presented him with a very handsome clock that only has to be wound every 50 years. He thanked them appreciatively and added:

"I'm certainly sorry a lot of you fellows won't be around the next time I wind it."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS) — The Robert Cummings were packed and all but on their way to the airport for the coronation when Alex Gottlieb flagged Bob for "Marry Me Again," a high, wide and handsome comedy with Marie Wilson as the co-star!

What disappointment the Cummings felt over their lost vacation (Mrs. C. unpacked her lovely coronation gown) was more than made up for when Bob read Gottlieb's original yarn.

"It's the most romantic and funniest picture I've had since 'Princess O'Rourke'," he told me. "And, I've never worked with Marie before although I'm a fan of her's."

The picture starts on the RKO lot June 2 which gives Cummings a chance for another "My Hero" yarn for TV.

Handsome Cesare Sieppe, Metropolitan basso, arrives Saturday to make a test for MGM's "Kismet." Yes, the former Otis Skinner stage hit, which was made into a not-too-successful motion picture some years ago, is being revived as a film musical.

Sieppe, a romantic favorite of many of the ladies, is young and should be a big asset. He is not going to be in "The Student Prince." That calls for a tenor and Vic Damone is still top favorite according to Joe Pasternak, who says Vic will get that plum after he finishes "Hit the Deck."

Universal-International, which boasts a semi-annual dividend of 50 cents per share on its common stock, is going right ahead in the field of 3D and the wide screen.

On May 27, "It Came From Outer Space" will be shown in two theatres. This, as far as I know, is the first time a 3D picture on a wide screen has been shown with glasses. Of course, there is Cinerama but Cinerama is viewed without Polaroid specs.

"It Came From Outer Space" is one of those thrillers that keep you ready to jump out of your seat and run out for air.

Here's a personal note to David Wayne:

Why, David, how could you be so mean to me. I played cards with you last Saturday and you never told me a word that you're going to Broadway this fall for the first time since you left "Mister Roberts," to star in "The Sycamore Tree."

Maybe my game was so bad that you weren't thinking of anything but how many instructions I needed. Anyway, I congratulate you on getting the top role in "The Sycamore Tree," which Alex Guinness is playing in London right now.

P.S.: I congratulate Author Sam Spewack and Producer Jose Ferrer on getting you.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Seven-months-old Richard Hall makes his official photographic debut with his pretty mother, Ruth Roman, on Mother's Day.

You'll like Mervyn Leroy's book, "It Takes More Than Talent," not only if you're in the film business but if you're just a fan.

Peggy Lee is, as you would expect, doing "beeg business" on the night club circuit. She opens May 8 in Montreal.

Alexis Smith and Bill Bowers have done several dinner encores at the Plymouth House. They seem intrigued with each other.

Bob Mitchum is taking Dorothy, his wonderful wife, back to Delaware for a three weeks visit with her family. Does my heart good to see the change in Bob.

Whatever happened to Ilse Bey's plan to marry Hedy Lamarr's ex, Ted Stauffer? She was at the Mocambo with Carlton Alsop.

Also there at the Harry Belafonte opening was Marguerite Chapman, just back from New York. She's ended her long time romance with John Howard, and Cigar Manufacturer Jack Grabosky, of Philadelphia, was her escort.

On May 23 that patriotic girl, Marie Wilson, will be on the corner of Hollywood and Vine selling poppies. It's for Veteran's Day, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Old Second Guesser

High And Outside

Of all the nonsense, getting some dignitary to throw out the first ball to open the Big League baseball season "takes the cake," as the saying used to be in Yonkers when I was a boy. Recently, there was some muttered criticism of General Eisenhower because he decided to go to Augusta for a few days of golf instead of exposing himself to the crowd in Griffith Stadium and heaving out the initial horsehide. He later got a raincheck for the postponed event.

John Wheeler

In the past, there have been some snide cracks about the game of golf as a rich man's pastime and because formerly it was customary to wear what are known as plus fours which are really short pants. That was before they cut the rough as they do today and a snake might sneak up your trousers' leg while looking for a lost ball. It is true at some clubs, you have to be fairly rich to play in style, but, if you will check over the list of competitors, many of the best performers started as caddies. At any rate, participants get some exercise instead of sitting still for three hours, watching managers try to do the thinking for their teams.

Man and boy, I have seen all sorts of stuffed shirts and some flat ones open the season in the traditional manner and never spotted one who could make a high school team. I have heard President Harding was pretty good, and I believed at one time in his career he played first base. I watched Jimmy Walker, when he was mayor of New York, take his windup, and, if he had a stiff head wind, it was even money he wouldn't be able to hit the playing field with his high hard one. Finally, I don't see why the President of the United States should be used to advertise a commercial enterprise in which the club owners and players work for money. It would be as sensible for him to eat some Wheaties as he was doing his stuff.

Here are a few recommendations to improve the performance and a couple which might be applied to other sports. Instead of picking out an official, why not have Arlene Dahl or Lana Turner deliver the first pitch? Then there is the start of the racing season to consider. To inaugurate the opening of the New York tracks, just before the public goes to the abbattoir, known as pari-mutuel windows, why not have some husky gent throw Eddie Arcaro out on the home stretch? And for the women's tennis season, Miss Nancy Chaffee might be tossed on the court. Which wouldn't be a hard job, judging from photographs and a casual acquaintance.

Recently another birthday came along for me, and they certainly rust past fast as the years whiz by. My wife gave me a dark blue bow tie to wear with my dinner coat.

"Sulka claims that is the stylish color nowadays," she explained.

I was puzzled.

"Then why do invitations say 'black tie?'" I asked.

Another birthday note to cheer me up. My daughter writes:

"On Toscanini's 86th birthday, just before he was about to conduct one of the most difficult and beautiful concerts of his career, the members of the NBC orchestra presented him with a very handsome clock that only has to be wound every 50 years. He thanked them appreciatively and added:

"I'm certainly sorry a lot of you fellows won't be around the next time I wind it."

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Maybe We're Both Wrong

There is a very interesting parallel between the development of television in Great Britain at this precise moment and its development in our country. When I left the United States, a hot debate had just taken place at the Hot Springs conference of the Association of National Advertisers as to whether the advertiser could continue to pay the television's mounting bills.

John Crosby

Here a fairly warmish debate has taken place both inside and outside the House of Commons as to whether the British Broadcasting Corporation monopoly, which has always controlled radio, was exactly the right thing for television. This is not entirely a matter of money, though British television like our own could use a lot more money than is available. Both British radio and television are supported entirely by the license fee (roughly $3 a year) on radio's 12,000,000 sets and television's 2,000,000.

Just as in the early days in our country, radio is being milked to pay television's bills. There are some important differences between us. In America radio interests almost automatically preempted television as a natural right which no one else disputed. In Britain, though, quite a large body of opinion held that the BBC was not the logical inheritor of television, that it was exactly the wrong one. These people argued that the BBC's entire experience and inclinations were in the field of sound broadcasting and that this would limit its vision and tastes in the development of television. It's a fairly arresting argument and it's rather odd that, to my knowledge, it was never even heard in the United States and that radio should have been allowed to claim television as a sort of divine right.

The BBC won that fight in Commons and is currently in sole charge of British television. But the Conservatives, hotly contested by Labor, have pushed through a bill permitting the development of commercial television in principle only. In practice British commercial television is at least a year away—and may never come about at all. If Labor gets back in power, it won't. The more practical obstacle at the moment is the fact that Britain has only so much of an electronics industry and British rearmament is absorbing most of its output.

If the British ever got sponsored shows on television, they would not be on the BBC; they would be on a separate competing television network. It's rather hard for Americans, accustomed as we are to competing networks, to understand the British objections to competition, why, in short, Britain couldn't have both the lofty aspirations of the BBC side by side with, say, a British Milton Berle.

The chief objection was perhaps best summarized by Sir William Haley, former director general of the BBC and now editor of "The Times" of London: "Under any system of competitive broadcasting all these things would be at the mercy of Gresham's Law. For, at the present stage of the nation's general educational progress it operates as remorsely in broadcasting as it ever did in currency. The good in the long run will inescapably be driven out by the bad."

This is directly contrary not only to American principle but to a lesser extent to American experience. Competition, in many ways has improved programs rather than the other way around—though Sir William has a point there. What strikes me chiefly here about this argument is that the British distrust of commercial television almost exactly matches our own dis-

Radio And Television

Maybe We're Both Wrong

There is a very interesting parallel between the development of television in Great Britain at this precise moment and its development in our country. When I left the United States, a hot debate had just taken place at the Hot Springs conference of the Association of National Advertisers as to whether the advertiser could continue to pay the television's mounting bills.

John Crosby

Here a fairly warmish debate has taken place both inside and outside the House of Commons as to whether the British Broadcasting Corporation monopoly, which has always controlled radio, was exactly the right thing for television. This is not entirely a matter of money, though British television like our own could use a lot more money than is available. Both British radio and television are supported entirely by the license fee (roughly $3 a year) on radio's 12,000,000 sets and television's 2,000,000.

Just as in the early days in our country, radio is being milked to pay television's bills. There are some important differences between us. In America radio interests almost automatically preempted television as a natural right which no one else disputed. In Britain, though, quite a large body of opinion held that the BBC was not the logical inheritor of television, that it was exactly the wrong one. These people argued that the BBC's entire experience and inclinations were in the field of sound broadcasting and that this would limit its vision and tastes in the development of television. It's a fairly arresting argument and it's rather odd that, to my knowledge, it was never even heard in the United States and that radio should have been allowed to claim television as a sort of divine right.

The BBC won that fight in Commons and is currently in sole charge of British television. But the Conservatives, hotly contested by Labor, have pushed through a bill permitting the development of commercial television in principle only. In practice British commercial television is at least a year away—and may never come about at all. If Labor gets back in power, it won't. The more practical obstacle at the moment is the fact that Britain has only so much of an electronics industry and British rearmament is absorbing most of its output.

If the British ever got sponsored shows on television, they would not be on the BBC; they would be on a separate competing television network. It's rather hard for Americans, accustomed as we are to competing networks, to understand the British objections to competition, why, in short, Britain couldn't have both the lofty aspirations of the BBC side by side with, say, a British Milton Berle.

The chief objection was perhaps best summarized by Sir William Haley, former director general of the BBC and now editor of "The Times" of London: "Under any system of competitive broadcasting all these things would be at the mercy of Gresham's Law. For, at the present stage of the nation's general educational progress it operates as remorsely in broadcasting as it ever did in currency. The good in the long run will inescapably be driven out by the bad."

This is directly contrary not only to American principle but to a lesser extent to American experience. Competition, in many ways has improved programs rather than the other way around—though Sir William has a point there. What strikes me chiefly here about this argument is that the British distrust of commercial television almost exactly matches our own dis-

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and neighbors for their kindness and helpfulness during the death of our son, Darrell. We also wish to thank all who gave flowers, contributed the use of their automobiles and Rev. Robert E. Cassell, pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport, for his services.

Mr. & Mrs. Marshall E. Hare.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, George S. Easton, who departed this life May 8, 1950.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

Loving wife and children.

In memory of my dearest Great Grandmother, Mary V. Hefner, who died one year ago today, May 8th, 1952.

Tho she may be gone,
I'll remember her always;
The dearest, the grandest
Grandma in the world;
And to me she'll remain
In my memory evermore.

Sadly missed by:
Her Great Granddaughter,
Barbara Ann Short.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and neighbors for their kindness and helpfulness during the death of our son, Darrell. We also wish to thank all who gave flowers, contributed the use of their automobiles and Rev. Robert E. Cassell, pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport, for his services.

Mr. & Mrs. Marshall E. Hare.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, George S. Easton, who departed this life May 8, 1950.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

Loving wife and children.

In memory of my dearest Great Grandmother, Mary V. Hefner, who died one year ago today, May 8th, 1952.

'Tho she may be gone,
I'll remember her always;
The dearest, the grandest
Grandma in the world;
And to me she'll remain
In my memory evermore.

Sadly missed by:
Her Great Granddaughter,
Barbara Ann Short.

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—The stock market declined today in a moderate manner with resistance to the fall apparent on all sides.

Some key stocks were down as much as a point, but the great bulk of the decline was in minor fractions.

As the retreat got underway, many traders and others took to the sidelines and watched. Their caution was apparent in the small amount of business done.

Prices were lower right from the start with few major divisions holding out against the decline.

One of these was automobiles. On balance the motor section was ahead most of the day, but in the home stretch these gains faded away to be replaced with minus signs.

Chrysler bumped down to a loss of a full point at 79. After the market closed, directors declared the usual $1.50 quarterly dividend and reported first quarter earnings equal to $2.81 a share as compared with $2.16 a year ago.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 60 cents, biggest fall in two weeks. It stood at $109.40 at the close. The Industrial Component was down 50 cents, Railroads were down 70 cents, and Utilities were down 10 cents.

The list with 1,069 individual issues was the narrowest in a little more than seven months. There were 235 issues advancing and 573 declining with 5 new highs and 46 new lows for the year reached during the day.

The greatest indication of trader caution in the market was volume —1,110,000 shares, the same as yesterday and the lowest of the year.

A lot of the caution was attributed to the new tack in Korean truce negotiations with the Communists offering a new eight-point plan for prisoner exchange.

Nesco Inc., was the day's most active issue up ¾ at 12⅛ with 23,300 shares traded.

It was followed by American Airlines up ⅛ at 13⅝, Willys-Overland unchanged at 15¾, Pressed Steel Car up ⅜ at 11⅜, and U.S. Rubber off ¼ at 28⅞. The latter stock had a total volume of 13,900 shares including a block of 11,000 shares at 38¾.

McKeldin Signs Bank Tax Bill But Hits Lobby

D'Alesandro Seeks Court Test Of Law

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today approved tax relief for mutual savings banks but asserted those in Baltimore spent too much money to lobby the proposition in the legislature.

The governor's signature was hardly dry before Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore ordered his aides to prepare a court test on whether the act is constitutional.

Opponents had argued the bill was not constitutional on the grounds that its title did not accurately describe its contents and it contained unclear language.

McKeldin said he had waited until the last minute to sign the bill only because of "disturbing reports about the money spent to bring about its enactment."

Lawyer Got $30,000

The governor referred to a $30,000 fee an association of the seven savings banks in Baltimore reported paying Joseph M. Wyatt for services at Annapolis in the session that ended last month.

Wyatt, a lawyer and partner of Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th) in South Baltimore political activity, received one-third as much as the banks expect to save in one year from the tax cut.

Maryland has only one other such financial institution. It is in Montgomery County. The Baltimore banks teamed together to urge the bill through the General Assembly and, with the governor's assent, reduce their tax from 25 cents to a dime on each $100 of deposits over a period of five years.

By 1958 the annual 3-cent cuts will save them nearly $470,000, the banks estimated. Mayor D'Alesandro of Baltimore had sharply protested such a loss in revenue.

Four Signed, 41 Vetoed

The governor said the levy put the savings banks in a bad competitive spot with similar institutions. He added there appeared little prospect of equalizing the situation by inducing the Legislature to raise the tax on savings and loan associations.

The bill was one of four the governor signed to clear his desk of 1953 legislation. He vetoed 41.

McKeldin approved a special seven-man liquor enforcement unit. This had been proposed especially to stop the import of alcoholic beverages from Washington and near by states where taxes and prices are lower.

The governor said he had been assured by Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) that any signs of "snooping" would provoke future legislatures to wipe out the unit.

Tax Exemption Vetoed

He applied his promised veto to an increase in the state liquor tax which would have allowed Baltimore and the counties a share of the revenue. The proposal was to raise the tax from $1.25 to $1.50 a gallon and redistribute 50 cents of the take.

He also rejected bills that would have:

Removed the sales tax from the trade-in value of farm machinery and lifted it altogether from insecticides and other farm chemicals. He said this would have cost a minimum of $160,000, been hard to administer and affected a tax that should apply equally to all.

Continued indefinitely the current system of using only one license plate on motor vehicles. The $100,000 saving will be repeated next year because only enough was budgeted for a single tag, but the Legislative Council ought to determine whether lack of a front plate handicaps law enforcement, the governor said.

Allowed each delegate two scholarship students at a time in the University of Maryland, instead of one. He said no funds had been appropriated and doubted the increase was justified.

Created special license tags for vehicles equipped with mobile radios. Amateur radio operators may buy extra plates now, if they wish, he said.

AFL Meeting Set

Kenny's Liquor Board Term To Run For 27 Days

Reconstitution Will Take Place June 1

Although the commission which James E. Kenny, Westernport grocer, received from Governor Theodore R. McKeldin Monday stated that he was being appointed to the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for a six-year term, his term actually will last only 27 days.

Senate Bill 276, introduced by State Senator Robert B. Kimble, provides that the Board of License Commissioners, which issues alcoholic beverage licenses, shall be reconstituted as of June 1, 1953.

"The board as it existed prior thereto shall be abolished as of that date and the tenure of the members of the board shall be abolished as of that date," SB 276 reads.

The bill, which has been signed into law by Governor McKeldin, also provides that as of June 1, 1953, the governor shall make recess appointments of three persons to constitute the Board of License Commissioners for terms expiring the first Monday in May, 1955, 1957, and 1959, respectively.

Although there has been no official announcement concerning the appointments to the new liquor board, reliable sources indicate that the same three members will be reappointed. However, these sources predict that Kenny, the Democratic member of the board, will get only a two-year appointment. The prediction also is that former Judge Walter C. Capper, the board chairman, will get a four-year appointment and that Stanley Hamilton, the other Republican board member with Capper, will be named to a six-year term.

Senate Bill 276 had to be enacted into law because the bill reconstituting the liquor board two years ago failed to make any provision for new terms after the first expire. Senate Bill 276 clarifies this by stating that all appointments after these first ones shall be for terms of six years.

Kenny was appointed to the Board of License Commissioners to succeed former Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., as the Democratic member.

Some question has been raised as to the extent of Judge Bruce's term because he was supposed to have been appointed for a two-year term beginning June 1, 1951. However, the law definitely states that his term should end on the first Monday in May, 1953, the same day that Kenny's term began. Consequently, Judge Bruce will be paid for four days in May and Kenny for the other 27.

Then, too, when Kenny was sworn in by Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, he automatically gave up his position on the County Board of Election Supervisors. Matthew J. Mullaney, local attorney, will be appointed as the Democratic member of the election board, but his term will not begin until June 1.

Statewide Armed Forces Day Observance Planned

Cumberland Program Scheduled May 16

Cumberland will join the nationwide observance of Armed Forces Day Saturday, May 16, when Col. M. J. Geraghty, deputy post commander of Fort George G. Meade, will deliver the principal address at ceremonies to be conducted at Fort Hill stadium.

The stadium activities will begin at 2 p.m. with local Marine, Navy, National Guard and Organized Army Reserve units participating in 30-minute demonstrations and preparing exhibits for the show.

An outstanding highlight of the local observance will be a flight of military jets which will appear over the city at 1 p.m., according to Lt. Commander W. E. Woodson, Jr., instructor inspector of the local Navy Reserve units and service project officer for the Cumberland affair.

Fort Hill's High School band will provide music during the program and a group of Girl Scouts will act as ushers for the event.

An honor guard, commanded by Capt. J. E. Rich, Sixth Special Infantry Company, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, will meet Col. Geraghty upon his arrival in Cumberland.

At Fort Meade the army post will host the citizens of Maryland in special observances when mess halls, barracks and orderly rooms will be opened for inspection.

Units from Meade will participate in Armed Forces Day activities in many state cities. Baltimore will be the scene of a huge parade beginning at 8 p.m., Friday, May 15. A battalion of Fort Meade troops with other units from Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, National Guard and Reserve units will participate in the gala parade.

Annapolis will have a display by all branches of the services Saturday, May 16, at the Naval Academy. Fort Meade will send the Bomb Disposal teams of the 68th and 884th EOD squads, mobile field kitchen of Second Army Food Service School and a contingent of WAC's to the Annapolis celebration.

Camp Detrick also will be opened to the public at Frederick and several Fort Meade WAC's will participate in Philadelphia parades, radio appearances and servicewomen's fashion show.

The slogan for Armed Forces Day this year is "Power for Peace," taken from President Eisenhower's Inaugural address.

George's Creek Cattle Will Be "Spot Tested"

Check Will Start Next Monday

Cattle in the George's Creek area will be "spot tested" for bovine tuberculosis beginning Monday, according to County Agent Ralph F. McHenry.

Tests will be conducted on farms from Mt. Savage and Frostburg to Westernport by Dr. O. J. Hummon of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Baltimore.

Dr. Hummon will be assisted by two veterinarians from Pennsylvania. If the tested animals show more than a certain minimum percentage of TB the county will continue to remain accredited.

Such "spot tests" are conducted every three years in order to keep the county's cows accredited. The check is supposed to result in the testing of about one-fifth of the cattle in the county every three years. In 1950, the Flintstone and Little Orleans areas were tested.

The program is expected to take about a month, McHenry explained. Yesterday plans were mapped to learn the location of various farms in the area.

Wherever an animal is infected with tuberculosis, the owner will be notified to get rid of it. He will be reimbursed by the federal and state governments following an appraisal of the animal's value, according to McHenry.

Union Wins Pact At Local Market

Retail Clerks Local 886 (AFL) has signed a one-year contract with Albert's Super Market, first independent store in this area to have full employe representation by the union.

William R. Hartman, business agent for the local, said the agreement provides a store-wide wage increase, one week of vacation for employes with one year of service, and two weeks of vacation for two-year employes.

Six paid holidays a year are provided, with the stipulation that holidays falling on Sundays be observed on the following Mondays.

Seniority rights also are covered by the pact, which provides for reopening of negotiations within six months on wages and certain other provisions.

The agreement, signed Wednesday by Hartman and by Albert Tomsko, president and general manager of the store, covers 18 employes.

Famed Riding Troupe Featured In Circus

The Cristiani Family of bareback riding stars will be one of the many outstanding features of the huge King Brothers and Cristiani Combines Circus which will be here for three performances Monday, May 11, at Community Ball Park.

Under the auspices of the Cumberland Optimist and Exchange Clubs the circus will present an early morning parade at 11:30 a. m., two matinee performances at 1:15 p. m. and 3 o'clock and evening show at 8 p. m.

The Cristianis are nine of the most amazing riders in amusement history. This famous troupe introduces many startling novelty and comedy additions to its superb repertoire of bareback artistry. Heading the aggregation in its sensational equestrian feats is Lucio Cristiani, most noted riding comedian in the world. He is the originator of the full-twist somersault from one galloping horse to another.

Also to be seen on circus day will be nearly 200 men and women arenic stars of international fame, including the famed Hermanos Rodreys, aerial stars from Italy; the Caroli Troupe, high-perch thrillers; the renowned Ortans Troupe, springboard stars featuring Ortans, billed as "the greatest lady acrobat in the world;" Jerry Pressley, tight-wire headliner; the Combera Troupe, risley artists from Australia; and James Millett, aerial star.

The performances will open with a gorgeously produced spectacle, "Persia" in which hundreds of people and animals take part.

Rainfall Delays Circus Showing At Frostburg

The Hagan-Wallace threering circus, scheduled to present two performances at Frostburg yesterday, arrived late in the evening soaked with rain.

School children, who were released from school at 2:30 p.m. for the 3 p.m., show were disappointed when the circus failed to appear. Local band units and fire companies, waiting for the 7 p.m. street parade, were forced to march off alone as the circus still failed to appear.

Later circus trucks, equipment soaked in rain, reached Frostburg, and after an ordeal of setting up tents in a steady downpour started a show at about 10 p.m.

PSC Approves 13 Cent Bus Fares Here May 10

The Public Service Commission has approved cash fares of 13 cents, or token sales at the rate of five for 60 cents, on Cumberland Transit Lines buses.

The new fares will go into effect Sunday, May 10.

The company now charges 10 cents a single fare, or sells 11 tokens for $1. It had asked the PSC for authority to increase that rate to 15 cents cash or four tokens for 50 cents.

The commission said its examination of Cumberland Transit books showed that the company was operating at a deficit and was entitled to some relief, although not as much as it originally had asked.

The order added that the PSC would continue to watch the company's earnings and would be in a position to act promptly if any fare revision appears to be indicated. The company accepted the PSC-approved new rates.

CD Officials Seek Alternate Site For Siren

City Gets Complaints On Use Of Park Area

Civil Defense authorities are looking for another suitable location for a large air raid warning siren as a result of protests to the use of a city park area at Race, Seymour and Second Street.

Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense director for this city, said the search for the alternate site will be made by William G. Barger, Civil Defense director for Allegany County.

The Mayor and Council on March 23 granted permission to erect the 10 horsepower siren at the park area near South End Fire Station upon the recommendation of Civil Defense authorities.

During recent days, city officials received a number of neighborhood complaints after Potomac Edison crews installed poles to hold the 1,500 pound siren which was designed to warn South End residents of approaching air raids or emergencies.

Gibson explained last night that the site was selected only after CD authorities made a thorough check to find locations which would offer maximum protection.

He added that Barger has informed him that if there is an available site not too far from the park area, he will be glad to investigate it.

The problem, Gibson said, is to find another site which will do the job as well.

The siren is one of two which is to be used to set up an air raid warning system in Cumberland.

Plans call for the erection of a two horsepower siren at City Hall or on the West Side.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said the man falsely represents himself as an agent for a Philadelphia photographic concern.

He leaves with whatever cash he can get, never to return.

Van said the sharper will, if he can't get the whole price of the mythical pictures in advance, accept as little as $1 as a deposit.

Dairy Group To Meet In Washington Wed.

The Dairy Technology Society of Maryland and the District of Columbia will meet Wednesday at the Continental Hotel in Washington.

Coming Down

Workers are progressing with the demolition of the above home at 921-923 Frederick Street. It is one of two substandard dwellings which are being razed this month in Cumberland. Two other homes were torn down during April after they were declared substandard by city authorities.

Youth Council To 'Run' City On May 18

Will Observe Action At City Hall Monday

It now has been decided that Youth Mayor David Walton and his City Council will "run" the city on Monday, May 18.

Walton and the four council members will sit in on the regular council meeting at the City Hall.

Then, on the following Monday, immediately after the council adjourns its meeting, the five elected high school students will meet and pass the resolutions and orders they believe necessary for the operation of the city.

The council members who will sit with Mayor Walton, an Allegany High School senior, are Edward Athey, Fort Hill junior, police and fire commissioner; Barbara Ann Campbell, Fort Hill senior, streets commissioner; Chester L. Price, Allegany senior, water and lights commissioner, and Charles Kienhofer, LaSalle senior, finance commissioner.

Some of their key appointive officials also are expected to attend Monday's council meeting. Included are Douglas Houck, Allegany, city attorney; Mary Hafer, Fort Hill, city auditor; Leon Armentrout, Allegany, city clerk; Bernard Beerman, Allegany, city engineer, and Marion Snyder, Fort Hill, council stenographer.

This project is being sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

County Gasoline Bill Vetoed By Gov. McKeldin

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today vetoed an act to license and regulate retail gasoline dealers in Allegany County.

He said if filling stations need regulation, it "should be imposed at the state level in the same manner that the products are taxed."

The bill introduced by the Allegany House delegation would have prohibited signs relating to prices except one or two on each pump itemizing actual cost per gallon.

Opposes Provisions

McKeldin said this sounded like "an unwarranted invasion of private rights bearing no reasonable relation to the public health, safety and welfare."

He also opposed a provision requiring designation as "No Brand" of fuel without a brand name or trade mark. The governor said omission of a name wouldn't be of public concern "so long as there is no attempt at deception, or misrepresentation that it is actually a branded product."

Vetoes Scholarships

Also vetoed by the governor was House Bill 359, introduced by Delegates Fred B. Driscoll and Charles M. See.

The bill would have boosted from one to two the number of scholarships each delegate could award to the University of Maryland.

Another .39 inches of rain fell yesterday as the tri-state area underwent its third straight day of thunderstorms, mild and cloudy weather. The total rainfall for the three days amounted to 1.17 inches according to the official weather bureau at Constitution Park. The official high temperature for the day was 70 and the low 56. At 8 p. m. the thermometer read 61 degrees and the humidity was 63 per cent. The Potomac River was up 1½ feet in the past 24 hours. Forecast for today is cloudy with showers and Saturday, cloudy and mild with scattered thundershowers.

WILLIAM B. KALDOR

William Kaldor Dies Suddenly At His Home

Former Photographer Was Ill Some Time

William B. Kaldor, 45, well-known proprietor of a local parking lot and former commercial photographer, died suddenly at his home, 102 Altamont Terrace, yesterday morning.

Mr. Kaldor collapsed at his desk while talking with his wife, the former Clara Belle Foster, as the couple began preparations for the day's work at the parking lot. He had been ill for some time, his illness forcing his retirement from the photography business which he operated for many years in Cumberland.

A native of New York City, Mr. Kaldor was a son of Mrs. Fannie Tobias Kaldor, New York, and the late Sidney Kaldor. He was born in New York City, Dec. 7, 1907, while his parents were visiting in America, returning to their native Budapest, Hungary, until he was 12 years old.

As a natural citizen of the United States Mr. Kaldor returned with his parents to live in New York City at the age of 12. He later lived in McKeesport, Pa., and Pittsburgh, Pa., before coming to Cumberland in 1933 as advertising director of Sears Roebuck Company.

After several years with Sears Roebuck, he helped establish with Stanley Fields, the Cumberland Shoppers Guide which was published here on a weekly basis for several years. After this partnership was dissolved, Kaldor entered the field of commercial photography and general advertising, in which he had always been interested.

He was known in advertising circles as an expert layout and copy man, and for a time, handled a number of local and area advertising accounts.

While here he met and married Miss Foster, the couple being wed July 28, 1936, by the late Rev. Eugene P. Skyles, then pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church.

Mr. Kaldor did much local defense work during World War II, being trained at Edgewood Arsenal, and lecturing at Aberdeen Proving Grounds where he worked as safety director. He was a member of B'er Chayim Congregation.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are two brothers, Daniel and Louis Kaldor, both New York City.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday with Rabbi Samuel Uman officiating. Interment will be in East View Cemetery.

School Auditorium To Get New Ceiling

The Board of Education yesterday announced it will receive bids from contractors for furnishing and installing an acoustic tile ceiling in the auditorium of Beall High School, Frostburg.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said acoustics in the auditorium have been troublesome since it was built several years ago.

Contractors may obtain specific instructions and specifications at the board's office, 108 Washington Street.

Traffic Club To Elect

The Tri-State Traffic Club will elect new officers at a meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Construction Work Hampered By 3-Day Rain

Aids Forests But Corn Planting Stops

The nearly two inches of rain that has fallen in the past three days in the Cumberland area has pushed the growing operation of spring, but the work of humans was slowed somewhat.

Vital moisture needed in combination with mild temperatures and sunshine has hastened the growth of forests, but construction work, river projects and spring planning were slackened by the downpour.

William H. Johnson, district forester, said last night the current rain has speeded up the growth of vegetation in the forests, lessening the threat of forest fires.

Forests Aided

The steady rain has built up the green floor of the forests, which holds much of the water and acts as a protection against fires, Johnson added. There is no danger of fire east of Cumberland, he said, but west of here a dry spell might bring back the threat.

At the same time, however, work of planting 1,700,000 seedling trees in the district was halted this week. Washington and Frederick counties have been planted with the small trees and a few are still to be rooted in Allegany and Garrett counties.

R. F. McHenry, county agent, also reported a paradoxical condition for farmers here. Although farm lands can use the water, the three-day rain has stopped corn planting and has made land too wet to work. If rain stops today, farmers can continue with their work next week.

Wednesday's scattered flash rains caused spotty damage in nearby sections. A small section of a dirt road near Dan's Rock at Midland was washed away, some small streams in Bedford County, Pa. and nearby West Virginia overflowed their banks and some gardeners in hilly sections lost freshly-planted crops.

Road Work Hampered

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said last night some road construction was hampered by the three-day rain. Although road damage was very minor, he said, work on the Vale Summit Road and the resurfacing job of the McMullen Highway had to be stopped because of the downpour.

Some minor damage was reported by flood control project workers here, but Rex E. Dexter, area engineer for the Corps of Army Engineers, said it was slight.

Dexter reported that a section of a coffer dam in Wills Creek's channel work was washed away when water climbed 18 inches in several hours.

Damage Flood Work

No damage was caused in the Potomac River where workers are building an industrial dam, Dexter added.

Robert R. Golden, weather observer here, said a total of 1.17 inches of rain fell in the three day period at Cumberland. The Potomac River raised from 4.66 feet to 6.47 feet in the period, he added.

Forcasts for Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties today is considerable cloudiness with afternoon showers and thunderstorms likely. High temperature will be about 70 to 75 degrees.

Outlook for Saturday is considerable cloudiness and mild with some showers and thunderstorms likely.

A spot check of weather in the area at 8 o'clock last night showed: Hardman, 65, partly cloudy; Blazier, 63, partly cloudy; Terra Alta, 62, partly cloudy; Altamont 58, light rain; Deal, Pa., 56, light rain; Thomas, 52, cloudy, and Elkins, 56, cloudy.

At Bedford, Pa. temperature was 55 degrees at 9 p. m. with a steady downpour of rain.

W. Md. Optometric Association Meets

The Western Maryland Optometric Association held its bi-monthly meeting this week at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Dr. Ethel Dantzic, secretary, evening speaker, talked on "Optometric Visual Shields."

Attending the meeting from Hagerstown were Dr. Charles Bikle, Dr. Arthur Adams and Dr. Hubert Slocum.

From Frostburg were, Dr. Walter Jefferies and Dr. Lloyd Stevens; from Oakland, Dr. Harold Ashby and from Cumberland, Dr. William S. Firey.

TV Show Features Story Of Local Man's Comeback

The story of a local man's courageous comeback following a crippling injury was featured on a Baltimore television program this week.

Guest on the show at Station WMAR-TV was George H. Keifer, 50, of 439 Columbia Street.

The show, titled "Come Back," is sponsored by the Vocational Rehabilitation Service of the Maryland Department of Education.

Each week, the program presents the story of a Marylander's successful struggle to rehabilitate himself through assistance of the state service.

This week's installment told how Keifer found his way into a useful occupation after his only means of livelihood had been destroyed in an accident.

Twenty-two years ago, Keifer was working in a Consolidation Coal Company mine in the George's Creek section when a cave-in occurred.

Keifer's right leg was crushed between four tons of rock.

Although the injury eventually healed under medical care, the leg remained permanently stiffened, thus robbing Keifer of his ability to make a living in the coal mines.

Through the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, Keifer learned the typewriter repair trade, and has been working for the past 20 years with the Landis Typewriter Company of Cumberland.

Also appearing on the program were R. C. Thompson, director of the Vocational Rehabilitation Service; J. Leo Delaney, local representative of the state service, Frank T. Powers of Frostburg, director of the Maryland Bureau of Mines, and Mine Inspector Harry Buckley of Kitzmiller.

McKeldin Signs Bank Tax Bill But Hits Lobby

D'Alesandro Seeks Court Test Of Law

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today approved tax relief for mutual savings banks but asserted those in Baltimore spent too much money to lobby the proposition in the legislature.

The governor's signature was hardly dry before Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore ordered his aides to prepare a court test on whether the act is constitutional.

Opponents had argued the bill was not constitutional on the grounds that its title did not accurately describe its contents and it contained unclear language.

McKeldin said he had waited until the last minute to sign the bill only because of "disturbing reports about the money spent to bring about its enactment."

Lawyer Got $30,000

The governor referred to a $30,000 fee an association of the seven savings banks in Baltimore reported paying Joseph M. Wyatt for services at Annapolis in the session that ended last month.

Wyatt, a lawyer and partner of Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th) in South Baltimore political activity, received one-third as much as the banks expect to save in one year from the tax cut.

Maryland has only one other such financial institution. It is in Montgomery County. The Baltimore banks teamed together to urge the bill through the General Assembly and, with the governor's assent, reduce their tax from 25 cents to a dime on each $100 of deposits over a period of five years.

By 1958 the annual 3-cent cuts will save them nearly $470,000, the banks estimated. Mayor D'Alesandro of Baltimore had sharply protested such a loss in revenue.

Four Signed, 41 Vetoed

The governor said the levy put the savings banks in a bad competitive spot with similar institutions. He added there appeared little prospect of equalizing the situation by inducing the Legislature to raise the tax on savings and loan associations.

The bill was one of four the governor signed to clear his desk of 1953 legislation. He vetoed 41.

McKeldin approved a special seven-man liquor enforcement unit. This had been proposed especially to stop the import of alcoholic beverages from Washington and near by states where taxes and prices are lower.

The governor said he had been assured by Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) that any signs of "snooping" would provoke future legislatures to wipe out the unit.

Tax Exemption Vetoed

He applied his promised veto to an increase in the state liquor tax which would have allowed Baltimore and the counties a share of the revenue. The proposal was to raise the tax from $1.25 to $1.50 a gallon and redistribute 50 cents of the take.

He also rejected bills that would have:

Removed the sales tax from the trade-in value of farm machinery and lifted it altogether from insecticides and other farm chemicals. He said this would have cost a minimum of $160,000, been hard to administer and affected a tax that should apply equally to all.

Continued indefinitely the current system of using only one license plate on motor vehicles. The $100,000 saving will be repeated next year because only enough was budgeted for a single tag, but the Legislative Council ought to determine whether lack of a front plate handicaps law enforcement, the governor said.

Allowed each delegate two scholarship students at a time in the University of Maryland, instead of one. He said no funds had been appropriated and doubted the increase was justified.

Created special license tags for vehicles equipped with mobile radios. Amateur radio operators may buy extra plates now, if they wish, he said.

AFL Meeting Set

The Building and Construction Trades Council will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at Allegany Trades Council Hall. The Allegany Trades Council will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the council hall.

Demonstrate Weapons

This recoiless rifle team of Company C, 115th Infantry, Maryland National Guard, will demonstrate the use and value of the 57mm. weapon during ceremonies at Fort Hill stadium on Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 16, as part of the Cumberland program scheduled for the nationwide celebration. Handling the shell for the rifle are Pfc. Charles W.Shaw and Cpl. William J. Harbaugh while Cpl. Darwin Trexler is sighting and firing the weapon.

Kenny's Liquor Board Term To Run For 27 Days

Reconstitution Will Take Place June 1

Although the commission which James E. Kenny, Westernport grocer, received from Governor Theodore R. McKeldin Monday stated that he was being appointed to the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for a six-year term, his term actually will last only 27 days.

Senate Bill 276, introduced by State Senator Robert B. Kimble, provides that the Board of License Commissioners, which issues alcoholic beverage licenses, shall be reconstituted as of June 1, 1953.

"The board as it existed prior thereto shall be abolished as of that date and the tenure of the members of the board shall be abolished as of that date," SB 276 reads.

The bill, which has been signed into law by Governor McKeldin, also provides that as of June 1, 1953, the governor shall make recess appointments of three persons to constitute the Board of License Commissioners for terms expiring the first Monday in May, 1955, 1957, and 1959, respectively.

Although there has been no official announcement concerning the appointments to the new liquor board, reliable sources indicate that the same three members will be reappointed. However, these sources predict that Kenny, the Democratic member of the board, will get only a two-year appointment. The prediction also is that former Judge Walter C. Capper, the board chairman, will get a four-year appointment and that Stanley Hamilton, the other Republican board member with Capper, will be named to a six-year term.

Senate Bill 276 had to be enacted into law because the bill reconstituting the liquor board two years ago failed to make any provision for new terms after the first expire. Senate Bill 276 clarifies this by stating that all appointments after these first ones shall be for terms of six years.

Kenny was appointed to the Board of License Commissioners to succeed former Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., as the Democratic member.

Some question has been raised as to the extent of Judge Bruce's term because he was supposed to have been appointed for a two-year term beginning June 1, 1951. However, the law definitely states that his term should end on the first Monday in May, 1953, the same day that Kenny's term began. Consequently, Judge Bruce will be paid for four days in May and Kenny for the other 27.

Then, too, when Kenny was sworn in by Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, he automatically gave up his position on the County Board of Election Supervisors. Matthew J. Mullaney, local attorney, will be appointed as the Democratic member of the election board, but his term will not begin until June 1.

George's Creek Cattle Will Be "Spot Tested"

Check Will Start Next Monday

Cattle in the George's Creek area will be "spot tested" for bovine tuberculosis beginning Monday, according to County Agent Ralph F. McHenry.

Tests will be conducted on farms from Mt. Savage and Frostburg to Westernport by Dr. O. J. Hummon of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Baltimore.

Dr. Hummon will be assisted by two veterinarians from Pennsylvania. If the tested animals show more than a certain minimum percentage of TB the county will continue to remain accredited.

Such "spot tests" are conducted every three years in order to keep the county's cows accredited. The check is supposed to result in the testing of about one-fifth of the cattle in the county every three years. In 1950, the Flintstone and Little Orleans areas were tested.

The program is expected to take about a month, McHenry explained. Yesterday plans were mapped to learn the location of various farms in the area.

Wherever an animal is infected with tuberculosis, the owner will be notified to get rid of it. He will be reimbursed by the federal and state governments following an appraisal of the animal's value, according to McHenry.

Union Wins Pact At Local Market

Retail Clerks Local 886 (AFL) has signed a one-year contract with Albert's Super Market, first independent store in this area to have full employe representation by the union.

Rainfall Delays Circus Showing At Frostburg

The Hagan-Wallace threering circus, scheduled to present two performances at Frostburg yesterday, arrived late in the evening soaked with rain.

School children, who were released from school at 2:30 p.m. for the 3 p.m., show were disappointed when the circus failed to appear. Local band units and fire companies, waiting for the 7 p.m. street parade, were forced to march off alone as the circus still failed to appear.

Later circus trucks, equipment soaked in rain, reached Frostburg, and after an ordeal of setting up tents in a steady downpour started a show at about 10 p.m.

PSC Approves 13 Cent Bus Fares Here May 10

The Public Service Commission has approved cash fares of 13 cents, or token sales at the rate of five for 60 cents, on Cumberland Transit Lines buses.

The new fares will go into effect Sunday, May 10.

The company now charges 10 cents a single fare, or sells 11 tokens for $1. It had asked the PSC for authority to increase that rate to 15 cents cash or four tokens for 50 cents.

The commission said its examination of Cumberland Transit books showed that the company was operating at a deficit and was entitled to some relief, although not as much as it originally had asked.

The order added that the PSC would continue to watch the company's earnings and would be in a position to act promptly if any fare revision appears to be indicated. The company accepted the PSC-approved new rates.

CD Officials Seek Alternate Site For Siren

City Gets Complaints On Use Of Park Area

Civil Defense authorities are looking for another suitable location for a large air raid warning siren as a result of protests to the use of a city park area at Race, Seymour and Second Street.

Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense director for this city, said the search for the alternate site will be made by William G. Barger, Civil Defense director for Allegany County.

The Mayor and Council on March 23 granted permission to erect the 10 horsepower siren at the park area near South End Fire Station upon the recommendation of Civil Defense authorities.

During recent days, city officials received a number of neighborhood complaints after Potomac Edison crews installed poles to hold the 1,500 pound siren which was designed to warn South End residents of approaching air raids or emergencies.

Gibson explained last night that the site was selected only after CD authorities made a thorough check to find locations which would offer maximum protection.

He added that Barger has informed him that if there is an available site not too far from the park area, he will be glad to investigate it.

The problem, Gibson said, is to find another site which will do the job as well.

The siren is one of two which is to be used to set up an air raid warning system in Cumberland.

Plans call for the erection of a two horsepower siren at City Hall or on the West Side.

City Police yesterday warned local housewives to be on the lookout for a fast-talking grifter who has been plying a photographic racket here.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said the man falsely represents himself as an agent for a Philadelphia photographic concern.

The bogus agent asks for a deposit on the cost of a picture to be taken at a local home before he sends the cameraman to the house.

He leaves with whatever cash he can get, never to return.

Van said the sharper will, if he can't get the whole price of the mythical pictures in advance, accept as little as $1 as a deposit.

YouthCouncil To 'Run' City On May 18

Will Observe Action At City Hall Monday

It now has been decided that Youth Mayor David Walton and his City Council will "run" the city on Monday, May 18.

Walton and the four council members will sit in on the regular council meeting at the City Hall.

Then, on the following Monday, immediately after the council adjourns its meeting, the five elected high school students will meet and pass the resolutions and orders they believe necessary for the operation of the city.

The council members who will sit with Mayor Walton, an Allegany High School senior, are Edward Athey, Fort Hill junior, police and fire commissioner; Barbara Ann Campbell, Fort Hill senior, streets commissioner; Chester L. Price, Allegany senior, water and lights commissioner, and Charles Kienhofer, LaSalle senior, finance commissioner.

Some of their key appointive officials also are expected to attend Monday's council meeting. Included are Douglas Houck, Allegany, city attorney; Mary Hafer, Fort Hill, city auditor; Leon Armentrout, Allegany, city clerk; Bernard Beerman, Allegany, city engineer, and Marion Snyder, Fort Hill, council stenographer.

County Gasoline Bill Vetoed By Gov. McKeldin

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today vetoed an act to license and regulate retail gasoline dealers in Allegany County.

He said if filling stations need regulation, it "should be imposed at the state level in the same manner that the products are taxed."

The bill introduced by the Allegany House delegation would have prohibited signs relating to prices except one or two on each pump itemizing actual cost per gallon.

Opposes Provisions

McKeldin said this sounded like "an unwarranted invasion of private rights bearing no reasonable relation to the public health, safety and welfare."

He also opposed a provision requiring designation as "No Brand" of fuel without a brand name or trade mark. The governor said omission of a name wouldn't be of public concern "so long as there is no attempt at deception, or misrepresentation that it is actually a branded product."

Vetoes Scholarships

Also vetoed by the governor was House Bill 359, introduced by Delegates Fred B. Driscoll and Charles M. See.

The bill would have boosted from one to two the number of scholarships each delegate could award to the University of Maryland.

WILLIAM B. KALDOR

William Kaldor Dies Suddenly At His Home

Former Photographer Was Ill Some Time

William B. Kaldor, 45, well-known proprietor of a local parking lot and former commercial photographer, died suddenly at his home, 102 Altamont Terrace, yesterday morning.

Mr. Kaldor collapsed at his desk while talking with his wife, the former Clara Belle Foster, as the couple began preparations for the day's work at the parking lot. He had been ill for some time, his illness forcing his retirement from the photography business which he operated for many years in Cumberland.

A native of New York City, Mr. Kaldor was a son of Mrs. Fannie Tobias Kaldor, New York, and the late Sidney Kaldor. He was born in New York City, Dec. 7, 1907, while his parents were visiting in America, returning to their native Budapest, Hungary, until he was 12 years old.

As a natural citizen of the United States Mr. Kaldor returned with his parents to live in New York City at the age of 12. He later lived in McKeesport, Pa., and Pittsburgh, Pa., before coming to Cumberland in 1933 as advertising director of Sears Roebuck Company.

After several years with Sears Roebuck, he helped establish with Stanley Fields, the Cumberland Shoppers Guide which was published here on a weekly basis for several years. After this partnership was dissolved, Kaldor entered the field of commercial photography and general advertising, in which he had always been interested.

He was known in advertising circles as an expert layout and copy man, and for a time, handled a number of local and area advertising accounts.

While here he met and married Miss Foster, the couple being wed July 28, 1936, by the late Rev. Eugene P. Skyles, then pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church.

Mr. Kaldor did much local defense work during World War II, being trained at Edgewood Arsenal, and lecturing at Aberdeen Proving Grounds where he worked as safety director. He was a member of B'er Chayim Congregation.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are two brothers, Daniel and Louis Kaldor, both New York City.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday with Rabbi Samuel Uman officiating. Interment will be in East View Cemetery.

The Board of Education yesterday announced it will receive bids from contractors for furnishing and installing an acoustic tile ceiling in the auditorium of Beall High School, Frostburg.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said acoustics in the auditorium have been troublesome since it was built several years ago.

Contractors may obtain specific instructions and specifications at the board's office, 108 Washington Street.

Traffic Club To Elect

The Tri-State Traffic Club will elect new officers at a meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Construction Work Hampered By 3-Day Rain

Aids Forests But Corn Planting Stops

The nearly two inches of rain that has fallen in the past three days in the Cumberland area has pushed the growing operation of spring, but the work of humans was slowed somewhat.

Vital moisture needed in combination with mild temperatures and sunshine has hastened the growth of forests, but construction work, river projects and spring planning were slackened by the downpour.

William H. Johnson, district forester, said last night the current rain has speeded up the growth of vegetation in the forests, lessening the threat of forest fires.

Forests Aided

The steady rain has built up the green floor of the forests, which holds much of the water and acts as a protection against fires, Johnson added. There is no danger of fire east of Cumberland, he said, but west of here a dry spell might bring back the threat.

At the same time, however, work of planting 1,700,000 seedling trees in the district was halted this week. Washington and Frederick counties have been planted with the small trees and a few are still to be rooted in Allegany and Garrett counties.

R. F. McHenry, county agent, also reported a paradoxical condition for farmers here. Although farm lands can use the water, the three-day rain has stopped corn planting and has made land too wet to work. If rain stops today, farmers can continue with their work next week.

Wednesday's scattered flash rains caused spotty damage in nearby sections. A small section of a dirt road near Dan's Rock at Midland was washed away, some small streams in Bedford County, Pa. and nearby West Virginia overflowed their banks and some gardeners in hilly sections lost freshly-planted crops.

Road Work Hampered

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said last night some road construction was hampered by the three-day rain. Although road damage was very minor, he said, work on the Vale Summit Road and the resurfacing job of the McMullen Highway had to be stopped because of the downpour.

Some minor damage was reported by flood control project workers here, but Rex E. Dexter, area engineer for the Corps of Army Engineers, said it was slight.

Dexter reported that a section of a coffer dam in Wills Creek's channel work was washed away when water climbed 18 inches in several hours.

Damage Flood Work

No damage was caused in the Potomac River where workers are building an industrial dam, Dexter added.

Robert R. Golden, weather observer here, said a total of 1.17 inches of rain fell in the three day period at Cumberland. The Potomac River raised from 4.66 feet to 6.47 feet in the period, he added.

Forcasts for Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties today is considerable cloudiness with afternoon showers and thunderstorms likely. High temperature will be about 70 to 75 degrees.

Outlook for Saturday is considerable cloudiness and mild with some showers and thunderstorms likely.

A spot check of weather in the area at 8 o'clock last night showed: Hardman, 65, partly cloudy; Blazier, 63, partly cloudy; Terra Alta, 62, partly cloudy; Altamont 58, light rain; Deal, Pa., 56, light rain; Thomas, 52, cloudy, and Elkins, 56, cloudy.

At Bedford, Pa. temperature was 55 degrees at 9 p. m. with a steady downpour of rain.

TV Show Features Story Of Local Man's Comeback

The story of a local man's courageous comeback following a crippling injury was featured on a Baltimore television program this week.

Guest on the show at Station WMAR-TV was George H. Keifer, 50, of 439 Columbia Street.

The show, titled "Come Back," is sponsored by the Vocational Rehabilitation Service of the Maryland Department of Education.

Each week, the program presents the story of a Marylander's successful struggle to rehabilitate himself through assistance of the state service.

This week's installment told how Keifer found his way into a useful occupation after his only means of livelihood had been destroyed in an accident.

Twenty-two years ago, Keifer was working in a Consolidation Coal Company mine in the George's Creek section when a cave-in occurred.

Keifer's right leg was crushed between four tons of rock.

Although the injury eventually healed under medical care, the leg remained permanently stiffened, thus robbing Keifer of his ability to make a living in the coal mines.

Through the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, Keifer learned the typewriter repair trade, and has been working for the past 20 years with the Landis Typewriter Company of Cumberland.

Also appearing on the program were R. C. Thompson, director of the Vocational Rehabilitation Service; J. Leo Delaney, local representative of the state service, Frank T. Powers of Frostburg, director of the Maryland Bureau of Mines, and Mine Inspector Harry Buckley of Kitzmiller.
